Roosevelt Asks Tax Fair to All, Tells OPM Arming Is 24-Hour Job

Calls for Measure That 'Will Not Make The Rich Richer And Poor Poorer'

Spending Under Fire

A MOVE TO CUT nondefense spending grew at the Capitol as divergent views of farmers and labor were heard at hearings on proposals to raise $3,500,000,000 in new taxes. Page 6.

According to Ability

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Charlottesville, Va., May 2.—President Roosevelt tonight asked Congress to write a broader base into a tax bill that will not "make the rich richer and the poor poorer."

In his first public statement since the Treasury called for $3,500,000,000 in new taxes, the President made it plain that in his view the new levies, now being framed by Congress, must be based on "the principle of ability to pay."

From this storied town in the heart of Virginia's Piedmont section, where he is weekending as the guest of his military aide, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, actually within sight of the home of the spiritual father of the Democratic Party, Thomas Jefferson, the Chief Executive sent to Congress an appeal for a tax system "so devised that every individual and every corporation will bear its fair share burden."

In a letter addressed to Chairman Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee, the President issued his call for a system of levies that would be "evasion proof." White House aides said the letter to Doughton constituted, in effect, a message to Congress.

Two Alternatives Considered

The letter was made public as Congress was considering two taxing alternatives; a schedule centering around stiff income levies proposed by the Treasury that would fall hard on members of the middle income group, and a program advanced by Congressional tax experts that would bear more heavily on larger incomes and increase a wide range of excises.

The President's tax message followed shortly after word from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that he believed he was voicing the views of the Administration, when at a press conference, he unequivocally denounced proposed excise taxes on coffee, tea, sugar and similar commodities used in every home.

Telling Congress, through Doughton, that larger segments of income must be brought within the scope of the tax system, the President wrote:

"The income tax can not fix the liability of individuals and corporations with equity as long as the tax base is defined to exclude substan-

Knudsen, Hillman Offer Plan To Push Industry to the Limit

THE DEFENSE MEDIATION Board made progress in its effort to avert the General Motors strike threat when union and company officials agreed to meet by themselves in joint session. Page 6.

The "urgent necessity" for 24-hour-a-day 7-day-a-week use of machine tools voiced yesterday by President Roosevelt, will swiftly be translated into a campaign led by Defense Chief William S. Knudsen to increase shifts, eliminate weekend blackouts and spread defense production to tens of thousands of the Nation's machine shops.

It was learned yesterday that Knudsen plans an immediate appeal to machine tool makers and users to heed Mr. Roosevelt's plea for larger quantities, speedier production schedules and utilization "to the very limit" of those critical machines.

Within a few hours of the President's request, made by letter to Knudsen and OPM Associate Director General Sidney Hillman, the two defense chiefs recommended to defense industries that they pay bonuses to workers who voluntarily forego vacations this year.

The policy to substitute bonuses for vacations was adopted "as a means of getting maximum production this summer and at the same time protecting the rights and health of the workers," the OPM

85,000 Await Kentucky Derby; Porter's Cap 8-to-5 Favorite

(Hear the Kentucky Derby Broadcast—WJSV, 5:30 p. m.)

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Louisville, Ky., May 2—Horse talk has supplanted war talk, in fact, all sorts of talk, here deep in the Blue Grass country tonight as colonels, real, synthetic and imaginary, await the sixty-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby tomorrow. Upward of 85,000 persons, making one of the largest crowds ever to witness a Louisville classic, eagerly await the drive on Matt Winn's Churchill Downs track.

PORTER'S CAP
Says "Let It Rain"

Before sundown tomorrow, when a new champion will join Aristides, Black Gold, Exterminator, Gallant Fox, Twenty Grand and the other turf immortals, it is useless to try to discuss any other subject in this horse-bitten city. Hitler, taxes, convoys—important next week, certainly, but tonight fetlocks, manes and hoofs hold the center of the stage.

Bedded down in their stalls and as closely guarded as royal jewels are the 11 thoroughbreds destined to battle it out through the stretch for the major portion of $75,000 and the glory that can come out of only one race—the Kentucky Derby. And there is every indication that all of the field, made eligible with the filing of entries this morning, will find positions in the starting gate.

Porter's Cap is the pick of this correspondent. The Charles S. Howard colt has shown by victories in the Santa Anita Derby and the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace

Folk Dances, Songs Entrance Youngsters and Adults Alike

A cross-section of American folk-culture from colonial, pre-Revolutionary days to the most recent contributions to the color and design morticed into that culture by the foreign groups who have found a home here, was presented yesterday at two performances in the eighth annual National Folk Festival.

BERTHA ESPARZA
Jarabe Dancer

Large audiences were in Constitution Hall for both programs, with about 3,000 district school children at the afternoon performance, who roared with applause for the Kiowa Indians, the Haitian dancers, and the Lloyd Shaw Dance Group from Cheyenne Mountain School in Colorado Springs. The audience last night was mostly adult but it was equally if more sedately enthusiastic.

Beyond the historical significance of the festival there rides the fact that it is a great national merry-making as well. Beginning with the gourd and shield dances of the Kiowas, both rich with ritualistic meaning, the programs moved swiftly through dances indigenous to Mexico, presented by the handsome youngsters of the Jarabe Dance Group of Pasadena, Calif. Then came the youths of the School of Organic Education, of Fairhope, Ala., in Morris dances, swift and sometimes clownish, and in the

Tent Colony Here to Be Ready For Visiting Soldiers Tonight

One-hundred soldiers—wrestling mightily with folding iron cots and canvas tents—yesterday had almost completed erection of Washington's new tent colony for visiting soldiers.

Designed to accommodate 268 of the several hundred men from nearby Army posts who are expected here today and Sunday, the tents are 4-H Club property owned by the Department of Agriculture Extension Service.

Electric lights, wood floors and walks, running water and showers will all be in order for tonight's guests, it was said yesterday by Army officers directing the work. The 100 soldiers erecting the tents belong to the Washington Provisional Brigade and are from the Twelfth Infantry at Arlington Cantonment and Third Cavalry at Fort Myer.

TENTING TONIGHT
Soldiers Prepare Beds

Part of a District Government project to supply lodgings for visiting soldiers and selectees at inexpensive prices, a non-profit Government welfare agency will manage it. Nightly rental per soldier will be 50 cents to defray expenses. Other quarters in local high school and college gymnasiums are planned.

The camp nearly finished yesterday is on the Mall at South Monument Road near the Tidal Basin. It will be available to Army visitors until June 18,

Furness-Withy Liner Sunk; 90 Survivors Landed

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 2 (INS).—Loss of a steamer well known in St. Johns was confirmed by the British Furness-Withy Lines tonight. It refused to identify the steamer, but stated 90 survivors had been landed safely.

The line operated the luxury liners Queen of Bermuda and Monarch of Bermuda, ships of more than 22,000 tons, famous as cruise ships. The liners sailed from New York on summer cruises to Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, but their regular destination was Bermuda.

Last 2 Shows of Folk Festival!

The 1941 National Folk Festival comes to a close today. Final performances at 2 P. M. and 8:15 P. M. in Constitution Hall. Get your tickets at Constitution Hall before the shows, or at The Post any time today.

Dealers Say They'll Help Curb Prices

Inflation of Costs And Wages Must Be Averted, Nelson Tells Conference

Price inflation of the kind experienced in the World War will be averted in the defense effort, the country was assured last night at a Government-sponsored Defense Conference on Consumer Goods.

Donald M. Nelson, director of the OPM purchasing division, told the dinner session of the conference that "we are conducting this defense program on the belief that we do not need an era of constantly rising prices in order to bring out our Nation's maximum production effort."

Promises of cooperation in the effort came at public and executive sessions attended by the Nation's principal dealers in food, clothing and household furnishings.

"If we get into that old familiar sequence of rising costs, rising wages, rising prices," Nelson said, "with each element in the sequence chasing the one just ahead of it, we shall get into the most serious kind of trouble imaginable. And no one would suffer by the whole process more than would the retailer."

While control of price movements was the dominant theme of the meetings, held at the Mayflower Hotel and the Commerce Department, Government speakers also pounded at the Nation's peril from overseas developments.

Don't Dare Hesitate

Nelson declared that Americans "do not dare to hesitate and debate and worry about expanding this or that productive facility because we do not know how it can be used profitably after the emergency is over."

"We are going to work longer and sweat harder than we ever have before," he continued, "and we are going to load ourselves up with some prodigious economic problems for solution later on. Let's get straight on that."

Then he emphasized that "what we have done so far in building a defense program is not nearly good enough" and that "every part of our national life has got to be readjusted to the emergency if we are to have a national life worth living when the emergency is over."

A Word of Caution

While warning that the United States' efforts must be vastly increased, Nelson urged caution lest a course paralleling that of Germany in the social and economic fields be followed.

The Reich, he said, in order to make her war effort "stripped her society of every single feature that did not contribute directly to military strength. Every right and every privilege was removed; the nation became a vast workshop in which only one will prevailed and only one voice was heard."

He declared that we Americans "must produce in an equal proportion without giving up the very things which make our fight worth waging."

Earlier in the day the group, which packed the Commerce Department auditorium to capacity, heard Leon Henderson, Federal price chief, warn that his Office of

Iraq Appeals for German Aid In Fierce Battle With British; Tobruk's Inner Defenses Hold

Counterattacking British Check Foes, Rout Them In One Sector

By Edward Kennedy.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, Egypt, May 2.—The British garrison at Tobruk counterattacked the Germans and Italians today, throwing them partly out of the fort's outer defenses, British military sources asserted.

The battle still is raging after two days, but Axis forces inside the outer perimeter of the Libyan fortress have been stopped there, the British said.

Strong British contingents rescued from Greece were reported hastening westward to counter the German threat to Egypt and to aid the Tobruk garrison, which is 80 miles inside Italian Libya.

This is the second time the Axis troops have penetrated Tobruk's outermost lines, the British said, but the present attack is more sustained than the other, which failed.

This second drive was launched against the southwest perimeter with a strong German tank thrust supported by dive-bombers and followed by infantry.

Attack Called a Failure

The Germans apparently were determined if possible to remove this constant menace to their communication lines into Egypt, but the British classed the attack as a failure since it failed to reach the inner defenses.

The inner ring of fortifications, several miles long, covers the town and harbor and is much stronger than the broken outer ring.

Three dive-bombers were shot down, and the British-Australian-Indian garrison troops reported they smashed eleven of the German tanks.

Around Salum, the Egyptian border town to which the Axis drive has reached, the British said a small enemy force held the port area under continual harassment by British mechanized patrols. Reinforcements from Greece were expected to strengthen this action shortly.

Some of these reinforcements were armed with American-made weapons now arriving in Egypt (perhaps via the Red Sea, since President Roosevelt has declared that area open to American ships.)

Warships Shell Road

Without telling how far Axis forces had penetrated the outer arc of defenses at Tobruk, the British high command said the defenders had routed the Germans in one sector.

British warships ranged up and down the coast to act as major mobile artillery for the Tobruk defenders. They poured shells into Axis concentrations along the coastal road.

Over Tobruk itself the R. A. F. acted as a screen for the ground

RASCHID ALI AL GAILANI, premier of Iraq, was reported in London to have asked Berlin for military help after Iraq forces battled with the British garrison at Habbaniyah.

Arab Guns Shell Air Base West Of Bagdad; Women, Children Under Fire

By the Associated Press

London, May 2.—The wily premier of Iraq was reported reliably late tonight to have sent an urgent appeal to Berlin for military help after a day-long battle with the British garrison at Habbaniyah airdrome which raged into the night.

Official British pronouncements said the Iraq force, which had been massed about the air base, began to shell British cantonments at dawn on orders from Premier Raschid Ali al Gailani, who seized power April 4 in a coup d'etat. This coup was clearly Axis-inspired, the British said.

The attack began after the British had ignored an ultimatum demanding they cease troop movements and plane flights.

Immediately, in the words of an official British announcement, the British took "the necessary counteraction," and the resulting battle raged all through the day and was continuing tonight.

Sends More Urgent Call

Shortly before midnight a reliable British source said the Iraq premier had sent out a new and more urgent call to Berlin for assistance, following up one appeal already reported by the British and Turkish radios.

By what route and to what extent Germany would be able to help the Raschid was not clear.

Women, Children Under Fire

The meager reports indicated British women and children, removed from Bagdad under Iraq promises of safe conduct, were in the air base and therefore under fire.

Patently this situation was extremely grave in itself; it created an unexpected and very real threat to the vast oil fields of Iraq which feed the British fleet and Middle Eastern armies and it gave Germany the prospect of a new grip for the great military pincers she is trying to close from both east and west.

London had no hesitation in calling the Iraq attack German-inspired; in fact, the British Broadcasting Co. said flatly during the day that "it is known that soon after Raschid Ali had violently and illegally seized power and publicly announced he would honor the treaty between Iraq and Britain, he appealed to Germany for armed help to oppose the British."

To match this, all day today the German short wave radio was dinning out reports that the Iraqis had risen in arms against the British in what, it was implied, was the start of a Moslem Holy War.

Seemed to Acquiesce

All this came swiftly to a head yesterday when it became known that the Iraq government, which seemed to have acquiesced in the landing of British troops in Iraq in the middle of last month, had balked at additional landings and had massed troops in considerable strength about the Habbaniyah air base.

Disposition of the British forces landed at Basra was undisclosed, but presumably some of these troops already are in the vicinity of the Mosul oil fields and it was considered likely the R. A. F. was prepared to reinforce them if necessary.

A British source expressed confidence that Turkey would be inclined to view the Iraq situation as German-inspired and therefore a menace to Turkey's own security. The Turkish radio, this source said, broadcast that the Iraq premier had appealed to Germany for help.

Nazis Shower Heavy Bombs On Liverpool

Worst Air Raid In Months Causes Heavy Casualties

By the Associated Press

Liverpool (Saturday), May 3.—German raiders blasted at this shipping center and then fanned out and bombed other parts of the Merseyside last night and early today in the longest and severest raid of months on this section.

One plane was shot down and three of its crew of four were captured.

Thousands of large bombs showered down on the city shortly after dusk in the second successive night attack on the already-bombed city. In contrast to Thursday night's raid, which faded out apparently because of bad weather, last night's developed into a fierce one.

Factories, business houses and residences suffered heavy damage and first reports indicated many casualties as the Germans reversed their usual methods and poured high explosive bombs ahead of incendiaries.

U-Boat Base Bombed by Day

London, May 2.—Continuing their new but dangerous daylight raids, squadrons of British Blenheims yesterday bombed the German submarine base at Den Helder in the Netherlands to achieve what was described officially as "extremely effective" results.

Last night the R. A. F. continued its onslaught against Germany's naval power by attacking Brest, France, for the thirteenth time since the Nazis' sea-raiding battleships, the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst, were discovered berthed there.

One British bimotored bomber fought off five German Messerschmitts for 20 minutes, although the gunner was wounded. One Nazi plane chased the Briton toward England. By the time this Messerschmitt gave up the attack, oil was pouring from the Blenheim's port engine and suddenly the port propeller dropped off.

Nazis Insisting France Aid War on Britain

Free Movement Of Army to Spain Demanded of Vichy

By Daniel T. Brigham
Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, May 2.—The demand that France as a gesture of "solidarity" permit the free transit of German troops to Spain through unoccupied France was made to the Vichy government four days ago, according to information received here this evening.

The demand is understood to include the use of railroad facilities toward Cebere and the port of Marseille as a base of operations. So far French resistance continues adamant but further pressure is expected.

This effort is being made as the first step toward forcing France into a defacto belligerence against Britain in the likely event of a German attack on Gibraltar.

Another demand being brought up for reconsideration is for permission to establish a base of operations for the Germans in northern Tunisia to cut the Sicilian Straits. This is also doomed to failure as long as Marshal Petain's government continues its present policy of strict neutrality.

It is understood the German intention was to ship troops sent to Cebere by rail and road to Barcelona, whence in small craft they would proceed down the coast of Spain, remaining in territorial waters throughout the journey to Malaga. From that point part of the forces would be shipped overland to Cadiz, enabling the German forces to operate from both points against Gibraltar.

Washington area traffic took three lives yesterday when a 5-year-old colored girl was crushed to death by a loaded sand truck in the District, a 70-year-old Virginian died beneath the wheels of an automobile near Fort Belvoir, Va., and an unidentified elderly man was killed by a hit-and-run driver near Montgomery Hills, Md.

Three persons were seriously injured in other accidents, two when struck by an automobile as they stood in a street car loading zone here.

The child victim, Phyllis Crabbe, of 1416-A Carrollburg Street Southwest, was killed by the truck in front of 1409 South Capitol Street. Police said she ran into the street from behind a parked automobile.

James H. Banks, colored, 47, driver of the three-ton dump truck, said the child darted into the street and into the side of his vehicle. She fell under a dual rear wheel before he could stop, Banks said.

William H. Clore, 70, of Chancellorville, Va., was killed by an automobile on U. S. Highway No. 1 at Dogue Run, near Fort Belvoir, as he crossed the highway to get into his parked car.

With his son, Floyd M. Clore, he had stopped to view an unoccupied automobile, which was half submerged in the run and was returning to his own car.

The driver of the automobile which struck him, Sergt. Gordon F. Coleman, of Headquarters Co. Third Battalion, Engineer Replacement Center, Fort Belvoir, was released in custody of the fort's commanding officer after an inquest conducted by Fairfax Coroner T. B. McCord.

Fairfax police are seeking information concerning the accident that involved the submerged automobile.

Montgomery County, Md., police broadcast a lookout for an old model, damaged automobile, after a man who appeared to be in his fifties was found fatally injured beside Georgia Avenue, at Locust Drive. He was dead on arrival at the Washington Sanitarium, where he was taken by the Silver Spring Rescue Squad.

King Carol, Magda and Her Four Dogs Sailing to Cuba

By the Associated Press

Lisbon, Portugal (Saturday), May 3.—Bound for sanctuary in Cuba, former King Carol of Rumania, Mme. Magda Lupescu and their faithful former palace chamberlain, Ernest Urdareanu, sailed at midnight on the American Export Liner Excambion.

They planned to debark at Bermuda and obtain passage thence to Havana, ending the long flight which began September 6 when the Iron Guard revolution sent them hastening first to Switzerland, then to Spain and finally to Portugal.

Carol and the red-haired woman for whose love he once renounced his throne, slipped aboard the liner at 1:30 p. m. Friday, wearing dark sunglasses. Mme. Lupescu brought along her four dogs.

They locked themselves in the nearest thing to a luxury suite which the Excambion boasts—and remained there until the ship had sailed.

During their long wait, only one or two intimates, including the Cuban Charge d'Affaires, Francisco de Arce y Pilon, and Senora Pilon, were permitted inside.

Carol sent out by Urdareanu, however, an expression of gratitude to Portugal, the United States and Cuba.

"I cannot help but feel sad on leaving Europe," Urdareanu quoted his master, "although I do not feel downhearted. I have been exceedingly well treated while here, and I am sure I shall enjoy my stay

Over Our Shoulder

The Truth About France

Next to the mystery of Russia, the greatest mystery of Europe is that of France. How far do the French people support Petain in his policy to "collaborate" with Germany? Is Petain personally popular? What do the French think of De Gaulle? What are their hopes for the outcome of the war? What's the inside story of the ousting of Laval?

Alfred Max, former director of the Gallup Poll in France and an outstanding authority on French public opinion, has just arrived in this country. He has written an article, which will appear in the Sunday Post, which answers these questions fully. Max tells, too, how France feels about the United States—what Weygand's position is—gives the answer to the seeming contradictions in Petain's policies.

We predict you will find this the most interesting, most enlightening article that has come out of France since its fall.

U. S. at Crossroads

Interesting as the Max article is, The Post's Sunday editor insists that even more interesting is the Alsop & Kintner column. These two young men have an extraordinary knack of finding out what goes on at the very top of the Government. Tomorrow they say that the issue of peace or war now lies with one man—a man who has amazingly refused to face that issue so far. Read it! Read Sandburg's column, too, in which he explains the paradox of feeling better now that he's sure this war will last a long time.

Marry for Money

When Frank Demson died he left enough money for his widow and daughter to live a long time economically—or to make a big splurge for a few years. Molly Demson decided on the latter in the hope that 20-year-old Peggy would continue to meet the right people and eventually marry a rich man. Everything worked out just right—Peggy was engaged to wealthy Paul Marter. And then Molly found herself a murder suspect and Paul broke the engagement. The police sergeant called it "a murder salad," and you'll find both mystery and romance mixed up in it. The Sunday Post's complete novel—Marry for Money.

Who Causes Strikes?

Whom do you blame for strikes in defense industries? Government leaders? Businessmen? Labor? All receive some share of the blame in the Gallup Poll on this subject, but the majority of the public points the finger on another group. Read Sunday's Poll to learn what Americans think about the strike situation and what should be done about those blamed for causing it. Particularly interesting: the opinions of labor union members who have had personal experience with strikes.

OBERON

The show had been raided twice because the girls only wore two beads. But they offered Joan Blondell four beads, so she took the job. That's one of the zags on the Blondell zigzag path to the movies and fame, as described in the Hollywood article in Sunday's Post. Louella Parsons has some equally interesting material about Merle Oberon, including the story of her proposal via transatlantic telephone. And Hedda Hopper picks the May movies for you. . . . . .

MacDonald Cites 'Error' In War's Toll

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Staff Writer

Malcolm MacDonald, the United Kingdom's new high commissioner to Canada, sat on the south porch of the British Embassy yesterday and told of the "very remarkable" miscalculation made by his government in advance of the Nazi air raids.

He said that the Ministry of Health had prepared hospital beds for 250,000 persons, who were expected to be casualties once the air raids started. At no time, he said, have there been more than 7,000 casualties using those beds.

He said that accommodations had been made for thousands of "shell shock" cases. But the hospital wards set aside for such cases, he said, are practically empty, and the doctors and nurses who were to care for the victims of nervous disorders remain unemployed. The same thing was true, he said, about the expected epidemics.

MacDonald said that the extraordinary thing about the "miscalculation" was this: That while preparations for hospitalizing casualties had been overestimated, the preparations for taking care of those made homeless by the air raids had been underestimated.

Young MacDonald, who would look very much like his father, the late Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, if he wore a mustache, had luncheon with President Roosevelt at the White House yesterday.

During his press conference, he faced the spacious embassy garden through which King George VI and Queen Elizabeth strolled on a happier occasion back in 1939.

Talking about the British people as he left them three weeks ago, about their coolness and courage under fire, MacDonald said:

"I can only say that the government and the people know they are going to suffer horrible experiences and go through difficult times. But without question, they are ready to stand any onslaught until help from overseas, especially from the United States, can permit them to make a stronger attack on the enemy."

A reporter, thinking about Prime Minister Churchill's statement on February 9, "Give us the tools and we will finish the job," asked a question which High Commissioner MacDonald chose not to answer.

Cheered by Dominion Action

"Do the British people still think they can win without actual American entry into the war?" he asked.

"I wouldn't like to express an opinion on that," MacDonald said.

He said that the people in Britain had been greatly sustained by the voluntary entry into the war of Canada and the other dominions. This made them feel, he said, that they were not alone.

In praising Canada's war effort, MacDonald emphasized the importance of her Commonwealth air training program, which is to turn out "thousands upon thousands" of airmen to "settle the account with Hitler."

But what sustains the British even more, he said, is the news of the help coming from the United States, the knowledge that this country is an arsenal from which will flow an even greater stream of arms.

Text of President's Defense Letter

"Dear Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Hillman:

"My recent discussions with you have emphasized in my mind the urgent necessity of expanding and speeding up the manufacture and use of critical machine tools. I have watched the steady and substantial growth of the machine tool industry during the past months. At the same time I have seen the critical machines in our defense plants used in an ever-growing number of hours each week. I know that this increase has been caused by the hard work of yourselves, of your associates and of the men who manage and work in the plants throughout the nation.

"But it is not enough. The ever-increasing demands for munitions, planes and ships, caused by the critical situation which confronts our nation, requires that they be produced in even larger quantities and ahead of the schedules assigned to them. It is essential that industry continue to increase the number of vital machines manufactured and that every single critical machine in the United States be used the maximum number of hours each week.

"Every effort should be made to utilize to the very limit those critical machines; if they be in defense plants by increased hours of operation on the work at hand; if in other plants by finding defense items or parts for them to make or, as a last resort, by moving the tools to defense plants where they may be urgently needed.

"Our problem is to see to it that there is no idle critical machine in the United States. The goal should be to work these machines 24 hours a day and 7 days a week, relieving the machines only for such time as is required for overhauling and repair.

"The country should be further combed for men who have had experience on these machines. We should ask them to transfer their efforts to this operation which is so essential to our defense. No effort or justifiable expense should be spared in speeding this program, in order to obtain the objective which our national interests require.

"Workers and managers will, I believe, join with you with spirit and determination in pursuing and achieving the goal at the earliest possible moment.

"Very truly yours,

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Battle Rages Over British Base in Iraq

WAR HITS OIL FIELDS—London reported a battle of tremendous portent over the British air base at Habbaniyah on Iraq's Euphrates River, 60 miles west of Bagdad (1), near the oil fields, important as a source of supply for the British Mediterranean fleet. the announcer commenting, "Germany will have to figure some way to get help there."

Syria, where French authorities recently have had trouble with nationalists, remained a question mark. The position of the Haifa, Palestine, branch of the British oil pipline, dangerously near the Syrian border, led to the belief that the British would waste no time in insuring its protection if there were any evidence of German penetration.

Before the war, the British had in Iraq two bomber squadrons, one bomber transport squadron, several armored car companies and a supply depot and hospital. Disposition of these forces now is a secret, but originally most of them were at the Habbaniyah air base.

This base, established by treaty, contains R. A. F. armored cars as well as planes and a garrison. Similar arrangements, effected a year ago under the Anglo-Iraq treaty of alliance, permit the British to open lines of communication through Iraq for military forces.

An official British statement recalled tonight that when the Raschid Ali, supported by high army leaders, seized power in Iraq a month ago, "he publicly declared his intention to honor the Anglo-Iraq Treaty of Alliance;" that he also agreed to the first troop landings.

The statement detailed his subsequent about-face—a B. B. C. broadcast said he was "relying on his hectic call for help to Berlin, and threatened that he would oppose by force the landing of further troops."

Britain insisted on her treaty rights, the fresh troops were landed and, tonight's official statement went on, this was followed by "a menacing concentration of Iraq troops around Habbaniyah, and the local Iraq commander conveyed to the British officer commanding at Habbaniyah a provocative message that no flights or troop movements at Habbaniyah would be permitted, under threat of bombardment."

The British Ambassador, Sir Kinahan Cornwallis, demanded that Raschid Ali withdraw the troops; he ignored the demand.

The British said they felt that much of the Iraq population wanted a restoration of good British-Iraq conditions.

By air wave the British therefore urged the Iraqis to overthrow their new leader, "who, for the sake of his own gain, has sought a quarrel with Great Britain and betrayed the interests of his country."

It said neither Egypt nor Turkey had recognized the coup regime and that the King of Saudi Arabia had advised Ali al Gailani to honor his pledges to Britain.

Yet, the official broadcast concluded, "Raschid Ali has overthrown the Iraq constitution, driven the lawful regent from the country and is ready to extend the war to Iraq at the bidding of the Axis. . . .

"Overthrow these mercenary intriguers and let law and order reign once more!"

Five Troop Transports on Way

Vichy, France, May 2 (AP).—Five transports of British troops, with antiaircraft and munitions, which landed at Haifa in the Holy Land between Monday and Wednesday, were suddenly ordered to reembark and sail for Basra in Iraq, a dispatch from Beirut, Lebanon, said tonight.

The troops were said to have sailed yesterday.

Diplomatic sources said the fighting between British and Iraqis might be the opportunity Germany is looking for to reach into the Middle East.

The Gallup Poll

Large Majority Thinks British Will Ask For U. S. Army Before War Is Concluded

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., May 2.—Like the cautious man who prepares for the worst while hoping for the best, the American public has never been overly optimistic about this country's chances of staying out of the European war—even though it strongly desires to stay out of a shooting war if possible.

That contrast, which has been underlined in frequent studies of U. S. public opinion since the war began, is demonstrated again in a survey in which the American Institute of Public Opinion asked voters in all parts of the country:

"Do you think Britain will call for help from the American Army before the war is over?"

The results show that Americans think they will. Indeed, a significant number say they think the British are asking for our manpower already, in everything but words.

Interviewing in the survey was completed by April 20, before the windup of Anglo-Greek resistance in the Balkans, but not before the main outcome of the campaign had become fairly clear to Americans.

Opinion on the question divided as follows:

Think British Will Call For Help of U. S. Army	57%
Think Britain Already Doing So	14
Don't Think Britain Will Call	20
Undecided	9

This means that 80 per cent of those interviewed either thought Britain would call for armed help, that Britain was now calling for it, or were undecided on the question.

Only one person in five (20 per cent) thought Britain would not.

Interestingly enough, in a survey conducted at approximately the same time and reported a week ago, 82 per cent said they thought the United States would enter the war "sometime before it's over."

While a majority thought America would be able to stay out when the war was in its early phases—from September, 1939, to April, 1940—the Institute's studies have shown a generally mounting conviction that the United States will not stay out.

This is in contrast with deep American wishes in the matter.

In a survey reported Sunday in The Washington Post only 19 per cent said they would vote for a declaration of war, although a majority said they would change their minds "if it appeared certain there was no other way to defeat Germany and Italy."

At no time since the war began has the Institute found more than one person in five favoring immediate entrance by the United States.

OPM Chiefs Rush Plans to Meet President's Request for 24-Hour-Day Arms Production

In his letter Mr. Roosevelt praised the increase in production and use of machine tools, but bluntly stated "it is not enough" in view of "the critical situation which confronts our Nation." He recommended that the use of the machines be increased in defense plants by added hours of operation, or, as a last resort, by moving tools not in plants with defense contracts to locations "where they may be urgently needed."

The President also asked that the country be "further combed" for experienced machine tool operators and that "no effort or justifiable expense should be spared in speeding this program."

Obstacles Admitted

Knudsen's campaign to carry out the program, it was indicated, may necessitate severe "cracking down" on industrial firms which are still not working their available machines to capacity. He may accomplish this either by making them accept more defense orders, use idle tools on subcontracting work, or relinquish parts of their equipment to other defense manufacturers.

It was freely admitted that in many cases Knudsen must overcome indifference by industry or even deep resistance to the fundamental change in production and operations which the President's request entails. In addition, it was said that in order to install the maximum number of shifts unions may be urged to forgo contract provisions providing time and one half for Saturday and double-time pay for Sunday work.

Informed OPM officials said Knudsen would insist that older and less efficient machines be hauled out of retirement and put to work.

Possibilities of enormously increased use of machine tools by the methods recommended by President Roosevelt had been implied in data released Thursday by the National Association of Manufacturers. Its "Production for Defense Survey" showed that some 157,000 partly idle tools in only 14,000 small to medium-sized firms covered by the canvass had a theoretical daily additional operating use of 2,000,000 man-hours.

Even more startling possibilities, however, toward smashing the defense program's Number One bottleneck were indicated yesterday by A. Ford Hinrichs, acting head of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. As of the end of last December, he said, the bureau's figures showed that of all workers in the machine tool trades, 75 per cent were in one-shift plants, 20 per cent worked on the second shift and about 5 per cent in the third shift.

Slight Change Shown

Preliminary figures for the first quarter of 1941, Hinrichs said, show only a slight change toward a larger percentage in the second and third shifts.

The inference drawn from the figures is that three-quarters of the available machine tools are being operated only on one shift.

Hinrichs said that in half of the plants working more than one shift, the second shift is being used only to "break bottlenecks" for the first shift, rather than as an integrated production shift in which all the tools are being used to double capacity.

The President's request, he said, is first, to drive for larger employment in the second and third shifts and to build them into genuine production shifts, and second, to move either orders or equipment around so that full capacity can be obtained.

Speaking of the second objective, Hinrichs pointed out that in some plants there are banks of identical tools used only on one shift. In many cases, one-third of these could be used three shifts, releasing the others for other contracts, either in the same plant or elsewhere.

Round Out New Balance

Such release of different tools "could round out a new balance" to overcome critical bottlenecks in other plants where production is not at capacity owing to the lack of a certain variety of machines, he explained.

Asked about labor supply, Hinrichs said that the mere fact that machine tool operation was a precision craft did not preclude the use of "green labor," which, he declared, has been employed successfully in many plants throughout the country.

"Precision, as such, is not a bottleneck," he added. Instead, he said, the multiple skills required of machine tool operators is a more serious problem. He recommended breaking down the operations as far as possible to "unit skills," quickly mastered by new employes.

Comments Are Hopeful

President Roosevelt's comments on the labor supply, made at his press conference yesterday at the same time as he made public his letter to Knudsen and Hillman, were hopeful in tone.

He said he believed the enlarged machine tool program could be accomplished without requiring employes to work longer hours than at present. He expalined that there were many skilled workers capable of running the machines who were not employed in their optimum functions.

Alluding to the skilled workers not yet married to the machines, Mr. Roosevelt specifically mentioned that a recheck of the draft rolls was being made by the War Department to make sure that such trained operatives were not turned into artillerymen or infantrymen.

A great many men, subject to the draft or already called, he added, are capable of running the machine tools. He indicated that some of these might be discharged by the Army.

It was learned yesterday that as part of its campaign, the OPM will reinforce the President's suggestion on this score by submitting within the next few days a memorandum to the Selective Service headquarters listing key industries and crafts which local draft boards will be requested to "watch" with a view toward granting deferments.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had also asked that a recheck of draft rolls and policy be made of certain other skills, to make sure that young men trained as doctors and engineers are not drafted out of what are essential defense professions.

With a chuckle, he added that lawyers, like himself, or newspapermen, like those gathered before him, would not be classed as in essential or defense professions.

Australian Leader Asks U. S. Aid

London, May 2 (AP).—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia appealed to the United States today for war help "on a great scale" and said "we cannot approach this war in an amateur manner."

Menzies told a press conference that "American help, if it is to shorten the war effectively, must be on a great scale."

"We are looking hopefully and confidently to the material help we need from the United States," he added, 'not help to be given a weak people but help to be given to a strong people who need extra strength if the war is not to last too long."

Corcoran Oil Venture Faces Airing in House

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

The House Appropriations Committee, it was admitted yesterday by Chairman Edward F. Taylor (Democrat), of Colorado, has "suppressed" from all except Congressional eyes the testimony of Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, involving the efforts of Thomas Corcoran to obtain Government financing of an oil prospecting venture in Alaska.

According to members of the committee who have seen the testimony taken on the Interior Department appropriation bill but not included in the published hearing, the record will be made an issue in the House before the bill is passed next week.

The story which Chairman Taylor said yesterday appeared to be an effort to "smear" a member of the Cabinet and "had nothing to do with appropriations for the Interior Department" is being told by informed members as follows:

Questioned By Rep. Jones

Secretary Ickes appeared before the subcommittee on the Interior bill at his own request to straighten out some "misunderstanding" about his part in the designation of a new Governor for the Virgin Islands. He was about to leave the stand when Representative Jones (Republican), of Ohio, asked about the efforts of R. E. Havenstrite, head of the Iniskin Drilling Co., to obtain Government funds to subsidize additional drillings for oil in Alaska.

Corcoran is the attorney for Havenstrite, and the plan worked out according to questions put before the committee was to get the approval of the Navy Department for the purchase and storage of oil from the well of the Iniskin Co. if oil was "struck." The concern already has taken one of these drillings to a depth of 8,700 feet at a cost of nearly $1,000,000.

Once the Navy agreed, Havenstrite and Corcoran were to go to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, of which Corcoran was a former employe, and obtain a loan to continue the drilling operations.

The drillings are on public lands in Alaska under the jurisdiction of the Interior Department and were being carried out under the usual low royalties rate for Federal land prospecting.

Talked It Over With Knox

Shortly before Secretary Ickes left with President Roosevelt on his recent cruise in the Caribbean he conferred with Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, on the Havenstrite-Corcoran proposal.

The questioning before the committee indicated that Secretary Knox got the impression that Secretary Ickes favored the plan, but Knox expressed reluctance to the Navy's entering into any such agreement pointing out that it would, in effect, put the Government in the position of subsidizing a wildcat oil operation.

Immediately afterward Secretary Ickes wrote a letter to Secretary Knox on "Mr. R. E. Havenstrite's proposal for a Government loan to finance the drilling of test well in the Iniskin Peninsula area in Alaska held by him and his associates under oil and gas leases issued by the department," acknowledging that it would be "inappropriate" for the Secretary of the Interior" to express an opinion on the granting a loan."

Nevertheless Ickes suggested that should the Navy agree and it be decided to "advance Federal funds to finance the operations of these lessees," such loan should be "conditioned" on an upward revision of the royalty rates fixed in the leases."

Dealers Pledge Aid In Curbing Prices

Price Administration and Civilian Supply would not hesitate to put ceiling prices on consumers' goods should circumstances warrant.

Pointing out that up to the present, OPACS has established schedules only for wholesale prices, Henderson asserted he was not afraid of the more difficult task of fixing price maximums in the retail field.

To fix prices for the thousands of items bought by the average housewife and civilian consumer "would entail difficult problems of administration," Henderson admitted, "but it can be done any time it is more important to regulate retail prices than to suffer the consequences."

Henderson said that his "fundamental line of attack on the problem" of preventing inflation and rising prices would be to stimulate increases of production capacity. He implied that he was particularly concerned with increasing the supply of basic raw materials for both defense and civilian needs.

"Nazi Stooges" Busy

Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones, who welcomed the gathering, told the retailers that he did not know "how long England can take the punishment it is taking now."

Asserting that he had no fear of an invasion of the United States, Jones declared, nevertheless, that Axis powers "can give us a lot of trouble" and that "Nazi stooges are infiltrating Latin America not by the thousands but by the hundreds of thousands."

Pointing out that "we cannot compete with slave labor," Jones said that if the Axis wins, "our trade will be restricted. We'll be told on what basis we can trade, and that will inevitably cause war."

Quality Spiral Downward

Miss Harriet Elliott, assistant OPACS administrator, declared she had daily evidence of manufacturers who were holding to their price levels, but only by decreasing the quality of the goods sold. Such a "downward spiral of quality" will bring consequences some of which might be as serious as those of an upward spiral of prices, Miss Elliott said.

Other speakers at the morning session of the conference included Fred Lazarus, jr., chairman of the Retailers Advisory Committee; W. M. D'Miller, chairman of the National Food and Grocers' Conference Committee, and Robert E. Amory, president of the Nashua Manufacturing Co.

The afternoon sessions, which were closed, were round-table meetings on various items of food, piece goods and clothes.

Russo-Nazi Strain Laid To Blockade

By C. L. Sulzberger

Copyright by New York Times

Istanbul, May 2.—Increasing evidences of strain between Soviet Russia and the Reich are reported by diplomatic circles in Turkey which have received reports that Germans in Rumania are now openly encouraging Rumanians to hope for the recovery of Bessarabia and in Sweden are deliberately inciting anti-Russian feelings.

Refugee diplomats from Balkan capitals all speak of a growing German need of supplies and it has been a long-time prediction in southeastern Europe that on the day the Reich runs short of materials as a result of the British blockade, she will attack Soviet Russia to gain control of Bessarabia, the Ukraine and the Caucasus.

According to these diplomats Germany is now beginning to run short of oil and certain foods and while the shortage may not develop to any critical degree before next year, the Reich realizes she must face the problem. In order to do so she must acquire full access to granaries and petroleum wells.

If Hitler's Mediterranean objectives do not succeed, the Germans could always make a quick invasion of Russia. Wehrmacht officers have frequently told your reporter that they could go through the Soviet troops like a knife through cheese and carve off the coveted western and southern territories, stage internal troubles, and force rapid peace.

The Turks are worried about either eventuality—a Russo-German conflict or a Russo-German middle eastern partition scheme. It would probably force Turkey either to fight or to become a weak member of the Nazi orbit, which it is said would be intolerable.

There are new indications today that the country's policy is remaining firm so far. Well informed sources state that no German negotiations are taking place and that if such talks should ever start the Nazis must realize that the Turks would never discuss four major points:

Territorial sacrifices.

Demands infringing on Turkish independence such as requests of partial demobilization or the passage through of foreign troops.

Adherence to the tripartite pact.

Repudiation of the British alliance.

It is believed the Germans would never mention the first three points but might ask the Turks merely to allow the British pact to die a lingering death and gradually to expel the English missions here.

St. Lawrence Seaway Project May Be Put Aside

By the Associated Press

Belief grew in informed Congressional quarters yesterday that the Administration may abandon for this session its proposed $266,170,000 development of the St. Lawrence waterway and power project.

Mr. Roosevelt recommended the project March 21 after an agreement for its development had been signed by the United States and Canada. He announced then that legislation would be sent to Congress to carry out the plan, but thus far none has been introduced.

One friend of the project said today there were several good reasons why it would not be pressed at this session. Among these, he said, has been the Administration's desire to cut down on expenditures not directly connected with national defense.

This informant said that there undoubtedly would be a strong effort to develop the Florida Ship Canal and other waterway projects costing almost $1,000,000,000 if the Administration insisted upon action on the St. Lawrence proposal.

In other quarters, it was argued that the project should be delayed until after the war, when it could help take up the employment slack resulting from curtailment of defense production.

Shippers Agree On Transfer Of 50 Tankers

By Turner Catledge

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Representatives of virtually all American oil tanker tonnage afloat reached a complete agreement among themselves yesterday on details for the immediate transfer of 25 of their vessels to the service of the British, and proceeded then with plans to make another 25 available in the next few weeks.

Full details of the tanker transfer are expected to be made public Monday. These will disclose the fleets and routes from which the vessels are to be taken, the terms of charter, the method of operation, etc. All of this had been worked out last night but the shipping company representatives were holding them in secret, pending approval by the Maritime Commission.

The plan is known to call, in substance, for the operation of the tankers in a sort of "shuttle service" for the British between ports on the north coast of South America to points on the North Atlantic seaboard of the United States. They are to sail under British charter but with American crews, carrying oil from the South American points for transfer to British tankers at various ports in North America. Under this arrangement the American vessels will not enter combat zones.

A high degree of mystery continued yesterday to surround this Government's actions and intentions in the matter of protecting ships carrying vital aid from the United States to Britain. The President maintained silence on the subject at his White House conference, making no comment on the demand Thursday of one of his faithful followers, Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, for immediate use of American naval units for convoy work, at least to mid-Atlantic.

There was a short flurry in the House, however. Representative Rich, of Pennsylvania, severely condemned Senator Guffey's speech, and demanded to know if the Senator was speaking for the Administration which he had served so unwaveringly in the past.

Representative Faddis, Pennsylvania Democrat, replied that Guffey might not be speaking for the Administration, but that "he expressed the sentiment of the people of his State."

Roosevelt Bars Ships and Planes From Cuban Base

President Roosevelt yesterday barred all unauthorized ships and planes from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, site of a United States naval base, setting aside the region as a naval defensive sea area.

The ban takes effect in 90 days.

By the terms of the executive order, no vessel except United States Government craft and vessels engaged in the Cuban trade, may enter the defense area without authorization from the Secretary of the Navy. None but United States military planes may fly over the military zone without similar permission.

The ban is similar to steps taken in other vital defense areas in the continental United States and its island strongholds.

British Sink Nazi Blockade Runner

Rio de Janeiro, May 2 (INS).—The 3,290-ton German freighter Lech, which ran the British blockade a month ago, tonight was reported to have been caught and sunk by a British auxiliary cruiser off Bahia, northern Brazil, after a brief struggle in which her crew was overpowered.

Time for U. S. To Fight Near, Conant Says

Unlimited aid to the democracies against the Axis powers to forestall "misery for all mankind," was called for yesterday by President James B. Conant, of Harvard University, at the twenty-fourth annual meeting here of the American Council on Education.

"For many months," he said, "I have been an advocate of this country's taking all steps necessary to insure the defeat of the Axis powers, not excluding from among the steps that might be necessary, active belligerency, when the strategists so advised. I hardly need to say to you I have in no way altered my opinion. It would seem to me that the time for final action is close at hand."

Dr. Conant declared, "The longer we delay in sending full aid against the Axis powers, the longer will be the war, and the greater will be the ultimate misery for all mankind." He addressed 400 persons at the Mayflower Hotel.

The speaker said this country would not "sit idly by" with Hitler controlling the Atlantic and "undermining" freedom of the Western Hemisphere.

The Harvard president, only recently returned from an inspection tour of beleaguered Britain, continued: "Since my return, I have been amazed to hear it argued by intelligent citizens of the United States that a negotiated peace between Great Britain and the Axis powers is a possibility. Of one thing now I am more sure than ever before: The English people will not make peace with Hitler."

A "compromise peace" with Germany would mean "slavery for every man, woman and child" in England, Conant declared. He said such enslavement could only come through invasion of the British Isles by "overwhelming forces" or weakening by prolonged blockade.

In either case "the fight would go on in other parts of the globe," he stated.

Earlier Dr. Floyd W. Reeves, director of the American Youth Commission, of the education council, predicted a "youth problem" more severe than that of the depression years if special works projects were not resorted to after peace.

Demobilization of military forces and of special defense industries after the war will create a problem for a "considerable period, until the former soldiers are assimilated into peacetime pursuits," he said.

British Repulse Axis at Tobruk

troops, fighting off hordes of German and Italian dive bombers.

Strafe Axis Troops

Striking to the west the R. A. F. bombed and machine gunned Axis troops and trucks at Acroma in the Tobruk battle area and also at Derna, Bengasi and Benina.

The latter is an airdrome near Bengasi which has been serving as a relay point for air transported German troops.

Only intermittent fighting between patrols was reported from the Salum area in Egypt, high-water mark of the latest Axis drive.

(The German high command said Axis "combat units repeatedly and effectively bombed enemy fortifications near Tobruk," and scored direct hits to silence batteries. Heavy explosions also were observed in the British-held fort of Pilastrino and in munition dumps, and five Hurricane planes were destroyed, the communique said.)

Resistance Feeble in Ethiopia

Italian resistance in isolated pockets in northern and southern Ethiopia now is so feeble that British troops are being pulled out of East Africa for action in the Mediterranean area, it was understood here.

British forces reported the occupation of Bahrdar on the south shore of Lake Tana, ousting a small Italian garrison there while other British were converging on Amba Alagi, another of the fast-dwindling Italian outposts.

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, the British commander in chief, not only has to keep an eye on the western approaches to the Suez Canal and Nile Valley but also in the direction of Iraq, Turkey and Syria to the east.

Military circles said they were confident the Tobruk garrison could hold out until he musters enough strength to resist the Axis thrust there.

Some quarters suggested the real German push from the west would not be along the Mediterranean coast at all, but would be a swift panzer thrust at the Nile from farther south—to escape the devastating effects of British naval artillery.

Hull Explains Future Policy On Oil Exports

By Bertram D. Hulen

Copyright by New York Times

Secretary of State Cordell Hull declared yesterday that if foreign funds are frozen in this country or further restrictions placed on the export of gasoline and oil, it will be done under a general policy and not be taken with reference to individual countries.

He made this comment at a press conference in response to questions concerning British and other suggestions that the United States cooperate more fully in the economic blockade of the Axis and that gasoline and oil exports be barred to Japan.

Incidentally, Hull delivered what could be considered as a mild rebuke to Dr. Hugh Dalton, British Minister of Economic Warfare, who suggested among other things in London yesterday that the United States freeze German and Italian credits, and cooperate in the British blacklisting of concerns trading with the Axis by boycotting their trade in every way.

He assumed, Secretary Hull said, that if and when the British government desires to take up with this Government any such matters for the consideration of this Government it will communicate an official statement of facts and questions it desires considered. This it has not done thus far, he declared.

Asked about the suggestion made in an address in New York Thursday night by Dr. Quo Tai-chi, the newly appointed Chinese foreign minister, that the United States, Great Britain and China should pool their economic and national resources in a democratic front, Hull replied that he had not discussed any such project with anyone, nor had he heard it discussed. Dr. Quo conferred with him early this week.

There was nothing new at this time concerning oil and gasoline export restrictions against Japan, Hull added in response to further questions.

Where any general questions of policy, he continued, suggest a careful observation of developments and their appraisal with a view to ascertaining what should or should not be done, whether it relates to oil and gasoline or the general freezing of funds, which is considered as a general proposition and never in connection with just one country, except where captured or overrun, the question is checked with technical officials.

He then indicated no decision had been reached along this line by stating that, if and when action was deemed feasible and desirable, an announcement would be made.

in Cuba.

"The reason I decided on Cuba among several Latin American countries which kindly granted us visas is not only that it is neutral but it has a first-class climate. I still need a rest, and it goes without saying that there will be no political activity on my part while away from my own country."

Carol had obtained visas from at least eight Latin American countries before making his choice.

The Cuban charge said he understood the British government would supply either a warship or a plane to take Carol and his little party from Bermuda to Cuba.

The bulk of the party's luggage—about two railway freight carloads plus a mountain of hand baggage and trunks—was boldly labeled: His Majesty King Carol. Cuba via New York." Carol himself does not plan to go to New York.

It was not as "His Majesty" that Carol appeared on the passenger list, however. There he was 'Count Vrancea," and Mme. Lupescu was listed as "Mme. Helene Lorenz."

Urdareanu was listed in that name.

Although she was assigned to the modest stateroom S-7 on the promenade deck, Mme. Lupescu was still with Carol in the more luxurious A-35, holding a sort of impromptu court up to sailing time.

Jean Pangal, former minister from Rumania to Lisbon, was one of the last to come ashore.

In booking his passage for the New World, Carol exercised much the same combination of secrecy and sudden action which he employed in escaping "house arrest" in Seville, Sain, to flee to Portugal by automobile March 5.

He and Mme. Lupescu had tickets for Friday night to the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra concert here, and it was learned that he only asked for steamer reservations at 10 p. m. Thursday.

Gas Masks For 1,400,000 Now on Hand

By John G. Norris

Post Staff Writer

The War Department announced yesterday that deliveries of gas masks had reached the point where there are more than enough masks on hand to equip the 1,400,000-man Army expected to be in service by summer.

Thousands more are being turned out each day in factories scattered for strategic reasons throughout the Nation, the department stated. This was the first official declaration since the emergency started on the gas mask situation, a phase of the arms program once considered critical.

About half of the masks produced in the past six months are for service use in combat. The remainder are less durable and less-expensive training masks, issued to selectees.

Special gas masks containing diaphragms have been designed for officers who must give commands and for operators of field telephones. Another special type has been built for use by range finders and other soldiers who must make accurate observations through optical instruments.

At the same time, the War Department announced that because of the huge Air Corps expansion program, under which 100,000 mechanics and other technicians will be trained annually, the education standards for enlistment in the air service have been lowered.

Heretofore a high school education was required, while men who have completed the eighth grade and can pass an intelligence test now will be accepted.

Warrant officers and enlisted men of all branches of the Army were notified in another announcement that they might make immediate application for entrance to officer candidates' schools to open July 1. Men under the age of 37 with at least six months' service are eligible, it was stated.

Quotas fixed by the War Department allow 89 men to be selected from posts within the Third Corps Area, composed of the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Million Get Wage Increases; Jobs Nearing U. S. Record

The American Federation of Labor reported yesterday that nearly 1,000,000 wage earners in American manufacturing and building industries received wage increases in the first four months of this year, with most increases being 5 to 10 cents an hour.

In its monthly survey, the A. F. of L. said 46,875,000 persons were at work in the United States in March, "within 700,000 of the all-time peak." It said that though 3,000,000 had gone to work since March, 1940, there were now 7,552,000 unemployed.

At the same time the parade of new workers into private industry, under impetus of national defense, was shown by figures of the Federal Security Agency to have attained a pace which, if maintained, would put over 5,000,000 unemployed to work within a year.

376,000 Given Jobs

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, reported that State employment services during March placed 376,000 men and women, 55 per cent more than in the same month last year.

In addition, 53,000 placements were made in March by the employment offices bringing together worker and employer but not carrying through the actual employment process.

Social Security Board figures made no estimate of the number of persons finding work without aid of the State employment services, but the A. F. L. estimated 578,000 more workers were employed on March 31 than on February 28.

If the new job pace holds for 12 months, a Social Security spokesman pointed out, the rolls of registered able unemployed virtually would be cleared.

On April 1 the active rolls of employment offices showed 5,166,391 persons seeking work. Of this total more than 1,600,000 registered during March in response to McNutt's call for a Nation-wide listing of persons available for work in defense industries.

Benefit Payments Drop

Attending the reemployment surge, McNutt said, was a marked drop in unemployment-benefit payments.

The payments for March decreased 29 per cent from the same month of last year, to $33,600,000, and the average number of workers receiving benefits dropped by 330,000, from 1,092,000 in March, 1940, to 762,000 in March, 1941.

All but 11 States reported more job placements in March than in February, and 8 States—Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, North Carolina, Virginia, Missouri and Utah—showed placement gains of over 100 per cent for March over the same month last year.

D. C. Lithuanians Sponsor Benefit For War Refugees

A benefit program to relieve the distress of Lithuanian refugees now stranded in belligerent countries will be presented in Catholic University's Music Hall at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Dr. John Keating Cartwright, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, will speak, and a program of dancing and singing will be presented. American Lithuanian Society of Washington is sponsoring the event.

The program will feature Vytautas Finadar Beliajus, foremost Lithuanian dancer, and his company of Lithuanian Youth Society dancers from Chicago. A group of Lithuanian songs will be sung by a choral group of the Washington Society under the direction of Miss Anne Gavelis.

The Minister from Lithuania and Mme. Povilas Zadeikis, it was announced, will be among the guests.

Conferees Get Short Course In Folk Dance

Miss Grace Ryan, of State Teachers' College, Mount Pleasant, Mich., wrote a book on "Our Pioneer Dances" two or three years ago which has become not only a document for historical reference but a textbook for teaching square dances.

To show how easy such dancing is Miss Ryan gave a demonstration yesterday at the morning conference of the eighth annual National Folk Festival, and had three sets, including some distinguished scholars and folk archivists, stepping through the figures in the lounge of the Burlington Hotel.

Dr. Donald Doughtery, of the American Council of Learned Societies; Bascom Lamar Lunsford, North Carolina folk music authority; Herbert C. Wilson, president of the Washington Folk Council, and others were swinging partners and "alamin-ing" rights and lefts to the entertainment of their academic conferees. Will Ayers, fiddle authority, of Fitchfield, Mass., volunteered to furnish the music.

Among the conferees were June Donahue, of the University of Arkansas; Joseph W. Yoder, authority on Pennsylvania Dutch pietists' music; William Pickens, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; the Rev. Hugh G. Gaffney, S. S. of the Virgin Islands, and Harry K. Parker, of Greensboro, N. C.

The conferees were agreed that a rich field of early folk culture exists in America, and that it has been inadequately explored, and that it has values as an agency for zest in the lives of thousands as well as importance as historical record.

"The unrecorded history of the origins of many peoples resides in their folk cultures," Father Gaffney asserted.

Ben A. Botkin will preside at the conference this morning and speakers will include Dorothea Lawrence, of Plainfield, N. J.; Estella T. Weeks, of Yonkers, N. Y.; Mme. Lina Mathol-Fussman, of Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and Jennie Cossitt, of New York.

House Restrains Member Attacking Wheeler by Name

An old parliamentary rule against mention of a Senator by name yesterday interrupted charges on the House floor that the policy urged by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and other isolationists would convert America into "a whip-lashing Nazi state."

Representative Wasielewski (Democrat), of Wisconsin, in his first term, was attacking the views outlined by Wheeler in a recent speech at Milwaukee when Representative Keefe (Republican), of Wisconsin, raised the point of order.

Keefe's point of order was sustained by Representative Cravens (Democrat), of Arkansas, acting presiding officer. The Senate, in House parlance, "is the other body," and particular Senators must be identified indirectly.

nature of the jig. Circle games and dances kept alive by descendants of Rumanians, Lithuanians, Norwegians, Swedes and Scots, followed in blithe and colorful figures. More serious in mood were songs of the Pennsylvania Dutch and the early hymns of Amish pietists sung by Joseph W. Yoder, of Huntingdon, Pa., author and folklorist.

An entire section was devoted to the fiddle tunes and ballads of early America, music that added zest to the lives of people far removed from the distractions of city life. A new feature was found in dances and songs from the pine barrens of New Jersey.

"This folk music and these folkways have given a fundamental substance to American life," Sarah Gertrude Knott, national director of the festival, told her audiences. "These traditions are as worthy of preservation and conservation as are many greater efforts in behalf of our native resources."

A feature of the afternoon was the parade of the Highlanders' band of Fayetteville, N. C., 68 youngsters who stepped to their own music from the Capitol to Constitution Hall. The wood winds of the band played later for Scotch dancers and James Garrioch, skirled the bagpipes. The Scotch tradition of Fayetteville stems from the pre-Revolutionary colonies in the Cape Fear region and has been kept alive with annual festivals.

There was dramatic contrast in the concluding numbers on both programs—the angular, trance-inducing dances of the Haitians moving to the throb of drums and gourd rattles, and the exemplification of the genteel lancers and mazurkas by the Lloyd Shaw group in tail coats and crinolin. Later the Colorado Springs dancers presented a series of cowboy dances. Dr. Shaw predicted the demise of swing and the return of the old ballroom dances.

The Festival is sponsored by the Washington Post Folk Festival Association, and will conclude today with afternoon and evening performances at 2 ad 8:15 o'clock.

Taft Criticizes 2 Appointments

Springfield, Ohio, May 2 (AP).—Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, criticized tonight appointments of Harry Hopkins and Leon Henderson to key posts in the defense program and charged President Roosevelt's recent moves were a "substantial step toward that government by executive order which now exists in Germany and Italy."

In an address prepared for a meeting of the Ohio Federation of Republican Women, Taft also said "confusion" existed among various defense bureaus, and contended the Administration was attempting "to use the defense crisis as a basis for usurping powers Congress has never been willing to give by law, to regulate everything and everybody."

Ad Men Hear McNutt Speak On Home Front

Hot Springs, Va., May 2 (AP).—Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, said tonight "America's greatest strength lies in the minds and hearts of her people."

Addressing the annual dinner of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, he reviewed the operations of the social security program he heads, stressed the importance of advertising and publicity to education in many fields, and turned to the world situation, saying:

"Britain has never thought of throwing her social program overboard. Britain has extended and increased her payments for old age, for widows and orphans, for the disabled and the sick. Britain knows that the main front is the home front. Given the essentials of life, Britain's tradition will win out."

Taking up briefly the United States commerce with South America, he said:

"We know that the development of Pan American markets is not merely a question of dollars and cents, as between an American company and a German company. We know that in totalitarian economics a trade outpost is a military outpost. When we adjust our selling techniques to displacing the Nazi Pan American markets, we are not merely making jobs for the American working men. We are forestalling a threat."

McNutt said he did not think "there is in the mind of any responsible official in Washington the blanket suspicion of business some business journals have purported to see," and added: "But there was certainly a necessity to so organize the American economy that every investor, every competitor and every consumer could be sure that the things that had happened in some businesses could never again happen in any business."

Earlier Mrs. Harriet R. Howe, of the American Home Economics Association, told a consumers' forum of the A. A. A. A. that advertising was a great social force in the community and must bear the responsibility of such.

John Benson, association president, presided over the forum, which was conducted by Dr. Kenneth Dameron, director of the committee on consumer relations in advertising.

Speaking on "How Much and What Kind of Information Does Consumer Need From Advertising?" Mrs. Howe expressed a conclusion that the force of advertising should be redirected to better serve buyers as well as sellers.

"Advertisers hold," she said, "that advertising is not designed to delight or dismay the eye and ear. It aims to sell goods quickly in order to keep wheels of industry turning as rapidly as possible. Its task is to influence consumers to buy and keep on buying. Consumers hold that advertising should serve them as purveyor of news about new products, new styles, services, values of established products and new uses for them."

Atherton W. Hobler, president of Benton & Bowles, Inc., New York, in an address before the convention expressed the belief that advertising would serve to deter undue price increases during the period of the defense program.

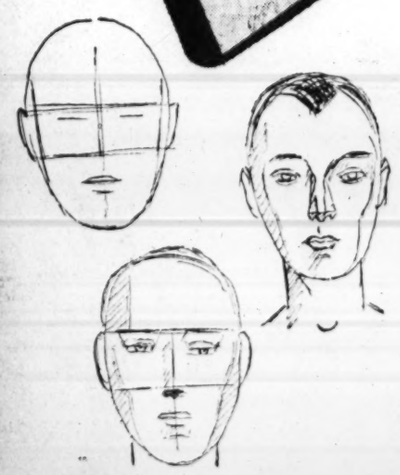
Anyone Can Draw—



by ARTHUR ZAIDENBURG
Instructor in Drawing, New York University
Foreword by GEORGE GOMBARTS, Principal
School of Industrial Design, Board of Education, New York City

This book removes the mysticism that has surrounded art instruction for years. By reducing the elements of drawing to its essentials, it teaches the beginner—without natural talent. No previous training is necessary and with a little practice the student will soon be able to draw credible and correctly proportioned figures.

A fascinating, practical hobby for everyone. Easy as taking a snapshot and just as much fun. 360 pages crammed full of pictures and information that in a short time should enable you to surprise your friends with your newly discovered talent. A complete course by a famous artist whose own work hangs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. A partial list of the contents includes: Male Figures, Female Figures, Back and Side Studies, Animal Studies, Composition, Design. Plus a Gallery of Drawings by the World's Great Masters.

You need this book. You will find it immensely helpful if you have ever felt the need of knowing how to draw—at your work, in the home, at parties, at school. And especially, if you want to be an artist, a cartoonist or an illustrator.

Your Breath Is the Smoke Of Life's Fires

In each and every exhaled breath of a human being there are 200,000,000 particles—give or take a few—whose nature and origin are unknown.

Discovery of this phenomenon by Dr. O. R. Wait, physicist of the department of terrestrial magnetism, was announced yesterday by the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

A plausible theory, said Dr. Wait, is that the particles are the "smoke" of the fires of life—the incessant burning of carbohydrates by which body temperature is maintained.

Nearly 100 times as large as air-molecules, the breath particles may play a role in transmission of disease, Dr. Wait found. They explain, he said, why the breath is visible on a frosty morning.

On another local science front yesterday, Dr. F. E. Matthes, chairman of the glacier research committee, reported to the American Geophysical Union that glaciers in the United States and Canada are melting and retreating at such a fast rate most of them may disappear before the end of this century.

One of the practical implications of this development in nature is its threat to Glacier National Park and similar resorts in Western Canada as tourist attractions.

Dr. Matthes said that perhaps the fastest retreat is that under observation in Mount Rainier National Park, where the rate is from 5,000 to 7,000 feet a year. Simultaneously, most of the Alaskan glaciers are melting, although a few are advancing.

Assembling to consider such abstruse problems as "orbit decompositions" and "polynomials whose roots lie in a sector," the American Mathematical Society opened its annual meeting at George Washington University yesterday. It will continue today.

D. C. Leaders Back Selectee Welfare Plan

Washington's support in a national campaign to provide recreation facilities for men in uniform was pledged yesterday by Sidney F. Taliaferro, newly appointed chairman of the District section of the United Service Organizations. The section met in the board room of the Riggs National Bank.

Washington's share in the $10,765,000 national campaign is $145,000, plus $100,000 for local defense morale needs, it was announced. The local fund drive is to start June 3.

Taliaferro pointed out that the United Service Organizations is a nonprofit corporation formed by the Salvation Army, Young Mens Christian Association, National Catholic Community Service, Young Women's Christian Association, Jewish Welfare Board and National Travelers Aid Association. Gen. Pershing is honorary chairman and Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney, executive chairman.

Attending yesterday's meeting were local representatives of the six national organizations and also of the Army, Navy, Federal Security Agency and District Defense Council.

29th Division Will Move Clock Ahead

By the Associated Press

Fort George G. Meade, Md., May 2. The Twenty-ninth Division will go on daylight saving time beginning at midnight Sunday, division headquarters announced today.

This will mean that the clock will be set up one hour and the division will hear first call Monday morning at 5:45 o'clock, daylight saving time, or 4:45, standard time, it was said.

The subject of daylight saving time was brought up recently by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, division commander, at a meeting of athletic officers and noncommission officers having charge of company athletics. At the time it was suggested daylight time would provide an additional evening hour for recreation and athletics.

Headquarters of the 115th Infantry announced that 136 men in its three heavy weapons companies have qualified with the .30-caliber water-cooled machine gun on the Fort Meade range.

Bomber Acts Like One-Horse Shay, But It Gets There

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, May 2.—How a British Blenheim bomber outlasted five Messerschmitt fighters was told today following a daylight raid on the continent. The bomber fought off the enemy planes for 20 minutes, although the gunner was wounded, and finally escaped. Oil was pouring from the port engine and suddenly the port propeller dropped off.

The pilot successfully brought the plane back across the North Sea, but as he made the British coast his second propeller fell off. He made a safe landing in a field, having no motor power whatever.

FBI Takes Man Off Japanese Liner

San Francisco, May 2 (AP).—Sailing of the Japanese liner Yawata Maru was delayed 20 minutes today while FBI agents took off one man, R. Mennekes, of Denver, Colo., manager of the Hansa Corporation, who became an American citizen in 1934, and is registered for the draft.

Passage was canceled for four Germans, Kurt Keinecke, Henrich Bruder, Max Collmann and Gerhard Kampfer, after the British refused to guarantee safe passage.

France Improves Lot of Foreigners In Internment

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, May 2.—Since the visit of American newspapermen to internment camps for foreigners in France, in March, much progress has been made in the improvement of conditions, according to Donald Lowrie of the American Y. M. C. A.

He said France has authorized internes who have resources of their own to leave the camps and settle in designated places where local authorities are ready to permit their sojourn. Emigration offices have been opened in several of the camps, to assist those who have the possibility of obtaining entry to some other country, to make arrangements for their departures.

Swiss aid has been authorized to establish milk distribution centers and general relief organizations have been given permission to set up centers in any camp they desire.

Many U. S. Pilots to Train With British

By Charles Hurd.

Copyright by New York Times

A substantial number of the best trained young American military pilots soon will fly with British squadrons as observers in every type of air service, it became known here yesterday.

Orders were issued yesterday by the War Department authorizing the dispatch of "junior air corps officers" for service as observers in the small pursuit ships, as well as on bombers and larger craft.

It was announced also that "some officers are crossing the Atlantic on British airplanes being flown to England."

All the observers are ordered not to engage in combat service, but the new type of duties assigned to these men raised the immediate question as to what situations they might face by reason of routine circumstances.

As a matter of fact, the War Department appeared to anticipate its pilots would gather pretty general experience, because it emphasized the value of their experience to the training of this country's combat squadrons.

The War Department's announcement of its expanded "observer" program, came only two days after Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, said at a press conference that "quite a batch" of young Naval fliers had been and were being sent to Britain, some of them for service with the British fleet.

It is an obvious fact that in some of the new duties assigned to the Army observers, they cannot necessarily occupy a passive role. This passive observance is possible in a bomber or large airplane flying a routine patrol over a quiet section of the ocean or land, where there is little likelihood of action and where such planes can crowd in a passenger.

Pursuit planes, however, are single-place ships, in which the pilot operates as tactical unit with his machine and his arms. An American pursuit ship observer, trained to the special requirements of operating one of the small, speedy fighters, has value as an observer only if he operates such a ship as part of a British fighter formation.

His status, therefore, obviously depends largely on the chance whether the formation to which he is assigned is attacked by enemy planes. It also is obvious that the larger the number of American observers in British pursuit ships—or the American-built ones which they are to study—the larger the chance that they may be forced into action in order to save themselves.

Senators Fix Farm Loans at 85% of Parity

By the Associated Press

Despite indications that the Administration favors a lower figure, the Senate Agriculture Committee voted unanimously yesterday for Government loans at 85 per cent of parity prices on cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco.

With present benefit payments, members said, this would assure farmers complying with control programs a return of about 16 cents a pound for cotton, $1.15 a bushel for wheat and 87 cents a bushel for corn. Tobacco would vary according to grade.

Under the existing program, farmers have been getting returns of about 12 cents for cotton, 83 cents for wheat and 75 cents for corn. These represent average market prices plus benefit payments.

The "parity" price of a farm product is a price computed to give it the same purchasing power it had in some previous period, usually the prewar years of 1909-13.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, said both Democrats and Republicans on the Senate Agriculture Committee had agreed to "back the 85 per cent loan level." He said this would require loans of 13.49 cents for cotton, 96.6 cents for wheat and 69.9 cents for corn.

Other Congressional leaders of farm legislation said Agriculture Department officials had indicated support for the bill pased by the House this week calling for loans of 11.9 cents on cotton, 85 cents on wheat and 61.6 cents on corn.

Coupled with the loan legislation would be authority for the Agriculture Department to reduce present acreage allotments of all these major crops in order to avoid further accumulation of surpluses.

The loan legislation is expected to figure in Senate-House "horse trading" over the annual farm appropriation. The Senate voted $1,340,000,000, or some $450,000,000 more than voted by the House.

If farm income can be increased by price-pegging loans, Senators said they might agree to a reduction in benefit payment funds. The House voted $212,000,000 for parity payments — the Administration's budget figure—while the Senate increased this to $450,000,000.

"We may not need so much for parity payments if we get a high enough loan," Bankhead said.

Terhune Better After Illness

Albert Payson Terhune, the prolific writer on dogs, was convalescing yesterday, after several days of serious illness in Emergency Hospital.

Dr. J. Ernest Mitchell said Terhune was first suspected of having food poisoning, and that in turn his heart and kidneys were affected so that he was "critically ill for four or five days."

Terhune, 68, is best known for scores of books and articles about dogs and has written more than 30 motion picture plays. His home is at Pompton Lakes, N. J., and Dr. Mitchell said he probably could return there today.

Matsuoka Seen Mum on U. S. Trip

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, May 2.—Although the possibility of Foreign Minister Matsuoka visiting the United States remains a topic of discussion, it is unlikely that he will make a statement regtarding the visit, Koh Ishii, government spokesman, said today.

The newspaper Kokumin chides those "fickle and indiscreet" Japanese who express the view that after the Soviet-Japanese Neutrality Pact there will be a non-agression pact between Japan and the United States, pointing out that talk of non-agression by one nation might lead the other to suspect a weakness.

VINCENT LOPEZ' Savory Ham Recipe

1 thick slice smoked ham
1 2½ size can tomatoes
2 teaspoons Lea & Perrins Sauce
1 tablespoon flour

Brown ham in frying pan. Add tomato and seasonings. Let simmer gently 40 to 45 minutes. Thicken with flour stirred smooth with a little cold water. Turn ham out on platter, pour sauce over it, and serve with fluffy mashed potatoes.

You may never dine at Buckingham Palace, but it's your happy privilege to serve the same original Worcestershire Sauce that's used there... used, for that matter, in food-wise kitchens the world around.

You'll understand Lea & Perrins' perennial popularity when you taste this tempting new ham dish, with its intriguing flavor tuned up to concert pitch with Lea & Perrins Sauce. Try it tonight—see how excitingly it helps make every meal a masterpiece.

Mediators Progressing In G.M. Strife

Day-long sessions yesterday of a five-man panel of the National Defense Mediation Board to settle the strike-threatening dispute of the General Motors Corporation ended on a note of progress when union and company officials agreed to meet by themselves in joint session last night.

Adhering to their policy of "no publicity," panel members, management officials and leaders of the C. I. O. United Auto Workers Union declined to discuss any elements of yesterday's discussion. It was believed, however, that the day was consumed in argument over the union's principal demand for a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase. The union has threatned a strike of 61 G. M. plants, employing 160,000 workers.

As distinct from Thursday's session, yesterday's meeting was able to come to grips with the issue, it was said, because of the presence of top-flight G. M. executives, unable to attend the day before.

The conferences will be continued with the panel today, it was announced.

Observers commented that in essence, the board panel was seeking to obtain a "shotgun marriage" of the conflicting wage positions of union and company. The latter has offered a general wage increase of 2 cents an hour, plus additional increases for certain categories of employes.

OPM sources speculated that a settlement might be obtained on a compromise basis, with a wage boost of from 5 to 7 cents, a company statement partially meeting the union's second principal demand for a closed shop.

Justice Roberts 66 Yesterday

Justice Owen J. Roberts, the Supreme Court's leading dissenter, reached his sixty-sixth birthday anniversary yesterday.

The jurist, who gained national prominence as Government prosecutor in the celebrated Teapot Dome oil cases, was appointed to the court by President Hoover in 1930.

Justice Roberts has held the balance of power in a number of 5 to 4 decisions in recent years. He took the lead in dissents following the retirement last February 1 of Justice James C. McReynolds.

U.A.W. Voices Strike Threat At Bendix

By the Associated Press

A strike threat was made yesterday against the Bendix Aviation Corporation's plant at South Bend, Ind., which has $13,905,000 worth of defense contracts.

Officials of the C. I. O.-United Automobile Workers announced that a bargaining committee had been authorized to order a walkout if the company failed to grant a requested 10 per cent wage increase. The plans employs about 7,000.

Some 1,500 dock workers who handle iron ore in Superior and Ashland, Wis., and Duluth and Two Harbors, Minn., also voted a strike for higher pay. Affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Railway clerks, they asked 12½ cents increase to bring their wages to 75 cents an hour.

A union official said that while an "overwhelming majority" had voted to strike, no time for an actual walkout had been fixed. Such action wil await the outcome of a conference at Washington on Tuesday, it was explained.

Coal miners in Illinois and Alabama continued idle. The approximately 45,000 miners in these two States were not covered by agreements reached earlier this week which returned soft coal diggers to mines in the Appalachian area with $1 a day increase.

The United Mine Workers (C. I. O.) is carrying on separate negotiations with Alabama and Illinois mine operators. Main points of difference in Illinois were not disclosed. In Alabama, it was said that the operators had rejected a request for $1 a day increase for the miners whose base pay in that State has been $4.

During the day, Secretary of Labor Perkins advised President Roosevelt that only one-tenth of one per cent of workers were on strike. Of those engaged in defense production, she said, two-tenths of one per cent were striking.

Mrs. MacArthur Named To Sponsor Destroyer

Secretary Knox yesterday designated Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, daughter of the late Rear Admiral Bowman Hendry McCalla, as sponsor of a destroyer named for her father.

Move to Cut Nondefense Funds Grows

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

A Congressional move for drastic reduction of non-defense spending appeared to be gaining momentum yesterday as the House Ways and Means Committee, continuing its search for $3,600,000,000 in new revenue, heard sharply divergent recommendations from farm and labor spokesmen.

Speaker Rayburn told reporters that he will carry from Congressional leaders to President Roosevelt "at the first opportunity" an appeal for a $1,000,000,000 reduction in 1942 nondefense expenditures.

Leaders of the economy drive were understood to be influential Ways and Means Committee members who, Rayburn said, have told him that trimming of nondefense items would "make their task much easier."

"There was talk about economy in the NYA, soil conservation, relief and other things all over the lot," Rayburn said, "but nothing definiate was decided." Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau last week told the Ways and Means Committee it was "perfectly possible" to cut nondefense spending by at least $1,000,000,000.

Meanwhile, the Treasury's proposals for steep new income tax schedules were attacked by Philip Murray, head of the C. I. O., as "wage cuts in the guise of taxation."

Murray, in a statement read for him by Ralph Hetzel, director of the C. I. O. economic division, told the Ways and Means Committee that the four and five fold increases in levies on low and middle bracket salaries urged by the Treasury would drastically reduce the standard of living of a majority of the population.

He called for a return to the 1939 revenue law's exemptions of $1,000 for a single person and $2,500 for married couples, combined with increases in estate, corporation and upper bracket personal income taxes. He also demanded "plugging the loopholes" in the excess profits tax, which he called a "mockery" in its present form, and abolition of all tax-exempt securities.

Proposals Conflict

Murray's recommendations followed conflicting proposals by Edward A. O'Neal, resident of the Farm Bureau Federation, who urged reduction of personal income tax exemptions to half the present figure, or $400 for a single person and $1,000 for a married couple.

O'Neal opposed the increases in excise taxes recommended both by the Treasury and the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation and advocated "effective excess profits taxes" and "moderate increases in corporate income taxes."

The farm bureau spokesman said the proposed broadening of the tax base would increase the taxable amount of personal income from the present figure of $16,000,000,000 to an estimated $27,600,000,000.

By eliminating the present 10 per cent "earned income credit," O'Neal said, another $4,700,000,000 could be brought within reach of the personal income levy.

O'Neal recommended a flexible system of income taxes designed to counteract inflationary effects of defense spending, stating that the basic rate should be raised "whenever living costs rise by more than a normal amount, since this will be a signal that spending is outrunning output of consumer goods."

Murray's statement was similar to O'Neal's in its opposition to a general sales tax or any increase in present excise taxes.

The C. I. O. president said the increase in tax burdens on workers over the past ten years made "a shocking record." In 1930, he stated, 68 per cent of all Federal tax revenue came from personal and corporation income, inheritance and gift taxes, while 32 per cent was supplied by consumption taxes, excise or sales. In 1940 income and other "ability to pay" taxes were furnishing only 44 per cent of Federal tax revenue, while consumption taxes accounted for 56 per cent, he said.

New taxes levied on low-income brackets will not mean smaller savings or fewer luxuries, he continued, but "less food, clothing and shelter."

Murray said the United States is now entering on a period of even greater expenditures than 1917-18, when "the country blossomed with war millionaires," but has on the books "even less effective taxes to prevent abnormal profits."

He urged that taxes on profits in excess of 6 per cent of invested capital should run "at least high as 75 per cent."

Broader Tax Base Asked of Congress by Roosevelt

tial portions and significant elements of income."

Interpretation Lacking

Efforts to obtain interpretation of this and other paragraphs were unsuccessful. Whether the President had in mind small incomes not now taxed because of the personal exemptions, the income from tax-exempt securities, or other portions of larger incomes was not clear, Stephen T. Early, Presidential secretary, said: "I'm not going to make any interpretations."

The text of the President's letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Chairman:

"Secretary Morgenthau has recommended that three and one-half billions of additional taxes should be levied during the coming year to defray in part the extraordinary defense expenditures.

"This total represents the minimum of our revenue requirements. I hope that you and the other members of your committee will act favorably on this goal.

"You will recall that in my budget message this year, I suggested a financial policy aimed at collecting progressive taxes out of a higher level of national income. I urged that additional tax measures should be based on the principle of ability to pay. This still is my view.

"I am confident that your committee will recommend legislation specifically aimed at making the Federal revenue system evasion-proof and so devised that every individual and every corporation will bear its fair share of the tax burden.

"The income tax cannot fix the tax liability of individuals and corporations with equity as long as the tax basis is defined to exclude substantial and significant elements of income.

"I hope your committee, with the help of the Treasury, will formulate a tax bill which will convince the country that a national defense program intended to protect our democracy is not going to make the rich richer and the poor poorer.

"I am sure that you and I are agreed that defense is a national task to which every American must contribute in accordance with his talents and treasure and that the people of the United States are gladly willing to make whatever sacrifices may be necessary to strengthen the common defense."

The appeal for taxes was launched by the President just the day after he officially opened a Nation-wide campaign to sell national defense savings bonds and stamps. The securities campaign, unequaled in size since the Liberty Loan campaign of World War days, is expected to bring added billions in revenues.

The message was interpreted as an expression of Mr. Roosevelt's unqualified opposition to sales taxes or direct levies on food, types of taxes that affect the "average man" and types to which he has always expressed opposition.

The letter was made public at Kenwood, Gen. Watson's estate near here, shortly after the President arrived after a leisurely drive from Washington through rol[illegible] Virginia farm land.

The President was looking forward to a day of relaxation before driving on Sunday to Staunton to dedicate Woodrow Wilson's birthplace as a national shrine.

Accompanying the President were Harry L. Hopkins, Early and Miss Marguerite LeHand, of the White House secretarial staff.

A small guest house on the Watson estate had been prepared for the President's use.

The tax letter was handed to newsmen as they were enjoying a mint julep party tendered by Gen. Watson.

Tunney Loses Court Battle For Md. Estate

By the Associated Press

Easton, Md., May 2.—Judge J. Owen Knotts today set aside the sale of a country estate to Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, and ordered a resale of the property.

Tunney bought the Bruce Naylor estate near Bellevue at an assignee's sale last February for $23,000. His agent in the transaction, John McKinney, said Tunney might retire to it as a "gentleman farmer."

Naylor protested the sale, claiming the price was "grossly inadequate," and that the advertisement of the sale was misleading and inadequate. He claimed to have spent $120,000 on the property in the last 10 years.

Tunney, now in active service in the Federal Training Camp Recreational Program, appeared in court last month at hearings on exceptions to the sale.

Booksellers Plan Boat Ride Tomorrow

The American Booksellers Association will open its annual convention tomorrow with a boat ride for members down the Potomac, preliminary to three days of meetings which will be addressed by leading writers, publishers and persons prominent in public life.

One of the chief features of the convention will be Book and Author Night at the Willard Hotel Tuesday at 8:45, when four Pulitzer Prize winners will address a session open to the public.

Carl Sandburg, Douglas S. Freeman, Isabel de Palencia and Marquis James are the writers who will be introduced by Archibald MacLeish, the poet and Librarian of Congress. Tickets for the affair are available at $1 each at The Washington Post and District bookstores.

A library of 2,000 volumes for the White House will be presented to President Roosevelt by the booksellers Wednesday.

A special exhibition based on the theme, "A Century of American Booksellers," has been prepared by the Library of Congress and will open tomorrow incident to the convention, the librarian of Congress announced yesterday.

It will include, besides library possessions, items on the history of the American book trade, lent by Frederic G. Melcher, of New York.

Turkey Steps Up Defense; Istanbul Evacuation Begins

Copyright by New York Times

Istanbul, May 2.—Turkey today began to accelerate her defensive preparation. President Ismet Inonu arrived in Istanbul this morning, and the partial evacuation of this city's 800,000 inhabitants commenced, two steamers leaving with evacuees bound for Anatolia.

The British colony has again been advised to quit European Turkey. Standard Oil, Royal Dutch Shell and other important companies are preparing to depart.

Istanbul, May 2 (INS).—Turkey tonight called up nine additional classes of army reservists, adding considerably to the 1,000,000 Turkish soldiers already estimated under arms.

NazisThreaten U.S. On Shipping Aid

Berlin, May 2 (AP).—Semiofficial German sources asserted tonight that President Roosevelt's policy of aid on the seas for the British is "primarily a military problem for Germany."

Asserting that the appearance of the American flag in German-declared war zones would "directly disturb the interests of Greater Germany," Dienst Aus Deutschland, a commetnary service close to the Wilhelmstrasse, stated bluntly that it made no difference whether the flag was flown by warships or merchantmen.

Catholic Clerics Clash With Nazis in Holland

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, May 2.—Grave incidents have occurred in Holland between ecclesiastical authorities and the German forces of occupation, according to information reaching the Vatican today. The climax came over the refusal by religious authorities to permit Catholic priests to accompany Nazis killed in a conflict. Bishops in the Netherlands are forbidding Catholics to belong to the Nazi party, and that also is causing friction.

tempt to secure identification: white, 5 foot 11 inches tall; brown hair, high forehead, index finger and nail part of middle finger on left hand missing, brown coat, striped brown trousers, striped shirt, high black shoes newly half-soled. A pair of black rimmed glasses was found at the scene.

Mrs. Barbara Hills, 24, of 3017 Dumbarton Avenue Northwest, and Marshall Miller, 72, of 1230 Thirty-sixth Street Northwest, were standing in a "safety" zone on the southeast corner of Thirtieth and M Streets, when they were struck by an eastbound automobile.

Mrs. Hills, a waitress, was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where physicians said she suffered a compound fracture of the right leg. Miller was taken to Emergency Hospital. His hurts were diagnosed as possible fractures of the skull, leg and arm.

Doctors reported the man's condition last night as "very serious," and said X-ray photographs were being made to determine the exact extent of his injuries. He was semi-conscious last night.

Police arrested the driver of the automobile, John D. Cates, 35, of 1419 Chapin Street Northwest, a bus driver, charged him with reckless driving. He was released under $500 bail after telling investigators he was forced into the loading zone by a large trash truck.

Mrs. Hills was on her way to work and was waiting for a street car, it was said, while Miller, who has been in ill health for several months, apparently paused in the zone while crossing the heavily-traveled thoroughfare. He is a barrel maker.

Boy, 12, Severely Hurt

Twelve-year-old Leroy Hodge, 12, of R. F. D. 2, Anacostia, D. C., was brought to Casualty Hospital with a compound arm fracture, brain concussion, several scalp lacerations and shock from an accident at Allentown, Md.

He was struck, police reported, by an automobile driven by Harold C. Townsend, of Brandywine, Md., who brought him to the hospital.

In a Maryland hit-and-run accident, Herbert Boswell, 16, of Seat Pleasant, Md., was knocked into the air by an automobile as he walked along a street there. He was going to a school carnival with a friend, Buddy Gray, 12.

The boy was confined to his home with head lacerations and a back injury. His hurts were not considered serious.

Richard May, 21, and his 20-year-old wife, en route to their home at Asbury Park, N. J., from a ten-day wedding trip to Florida, were injured, not seriously, when their automobile collided with a truck at Madison and North Patrick Streets, Alexandria, Va.

May was released from Alexandria Hospital after first aid for bruises, but Mrs. May was admitted for treatment of shock bruises and lacerations. W. R. Devine, of 3434 Eads Street Northeast, Washington, listed as the truck's driver, sustained leg and body injuries.

Policeman William Tothill said the truck overturned twice after the collision.

Woman Struck by Truck

Virginia Payne, 30, of 2038 I Street Northwest, was admitted to Doctor's Hospital with head injuries after she was struck by a truck at Eighteenth and I Streets Northwest. The driver was listed by police as Carl W. Dennison, 35, of 31 Crittenden Street Northwest.

Three bicyclists were injured in other accidents in the District.

Robert Steinback, 8, of 2921 Seventh Street Northeast, was taken to Sibley Hospital with a fractured shoulder, possible jaw fracture and head injuries.

Taken to Providence Hospital were Cornelius Miles, 46, of 412 First Street Southwest, fractured hip and head injuries, and Robert Burch, 10, 1223 V Street Southeast, lacerations and abrasions.

Commercialized Television Broadcasts Approved by FCC

By the Associated Press

The Federal Communications Commission told the television industry yesterday that after July 1 it could follow the precedent of radio and sell its broadcasts to sponsors.

In granting the authorization for commercial broadcasts, the commission said the industry was "entirely in agreement that television is ready for standardization." That, it was explained, meant that a set built to the standards would receive any of the picturese broadcast by transmitters also built to national standards—instead of being "keyed" to only one station or group of stations.

The commission originally authorized limited commercial operation of television stations to commence on September 1, 1940. It set this date aside, however, and ordered new hearings.

To have approved commercialization then, the commission said yesterday, at a time when the "industry was sharply divided" on the question of standards, would have frozen the state of the art to the then unsatisfactory level of performance."

The National Association of Broadcasters estimated that 7,000 television receivers were in the hands of the American public, with the New York City metropolitan area having almost 5,000 of the total.

The stations already on the air have been operating on an experimental basis. Regular, scheduled broadcasts have been conducted in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles, with various other stations operating at irregular hours.

After a six-month test, the commission said, it will consider changes in standards, especially with reference to color television. Stations were urged to engage in experimental color work.

Episcopalians' 10-Year Plan Will Be Launched Tomorrow

Workers' corporate communion services tomorrow and roll call visitations during the coming week will launch the "Forward in Service" movement of the Episcopal Church. (See more detailed story in tomorrow's paper.)

The project follows the action taken at the Episcopal General Convention last fall, when the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop, challenged the church to go forward in service in a ten-year plan to "help meet the need of a spiritual revival in this chaotic world."

Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's, Lafayette Square, is diocesan committee chairman.

St. Margaret's. The monthly meeting of the Men's Club will be held at 8 p. m. on Wednesday in the parish hall.

St. Agnes. May devotions will be held on Wednesday evenings during the month, concluding with benediction each evening. The parish will observe the Nation-wide enrollment Sunday, with registration of members after the 7:30, 9:30 and 11 o'clock masses on Sunday.

Epiphany. The Girls Friendly Society will have its annual Corporate Communion tomorrow at 8 a. m.

On Tuesday, at 8 p. m., the bishop will give his preconvention address at the Church of the Epiphany.

Guest to Speak At National City Church

The National City Christian Church will have as guest preacher tomorrow Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, former Resident Bishop of Washington of the Methodist Church. He will take as his subject, "A Timely Question About a Timeless God." The chorus choir will sing "Jesus Calls Us," by Macfarlane, and Mrs. Emily R. Tooley, contralto, will sing "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," by Buck.

Bishop Hughes

Dr. and Mrs. Raphael H. Miller are attending the international convention of the Disciples of Christ in St. Louis.

Park View Christian Church. The Rev. W. M. La Roche will be the guest speaker of the day in the absence of the pastor who is attending a church convention in St. Louis.

Fifteenth Street. At the services at 11 o'clock the Rev. Leslie L. Bowers, who is beginning his tenth year of a second pastorate with this church, will bring a special message on, "Growing Power."

Ninth Street Church. "Youth Receives a Commission" will be the subject of the sermon of the Rev. Carroll C. Roberts at the opening service of Youth Month tomorrow at 11 o'clock with worship and communion.

Third. The Rev. C. N. Williams will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "What Am I Worth?"

Christian Science

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday School is at 11 a. m. The Golden Text is from Proverbs 28:13. "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy."

Guests at Services

Job's Daughters, Bethel Order No. 12, will be special guests at services tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Eastern Presbyterian Church, Sixth Street and Maryland Avenue Northeast. The Rev. William Nesbit Vincent will preach on "Life Is an Altar."

N. Washington Baptist to Mark Its First Year

Page McK. Etchison, religious work director of the Y. M. C. A. and president of the D. C. Organized Bible Class Association, will address the first anniversary services of North Washington Baptist Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. in Stansbury Hall, Brightwood. George Frazier, president of the D. C. Baptist Convention, also will participate in the services, which will include dedication of the new pulpit desk. It is a gift of the congregation.

Representative Cliff Davis, of Tennessee, will address the Bible school adult department at 9:45 a. m. The Rev. Henry J. Smith, who was called from Petworth Baptist Church to lead the congregation a year ago, will conduct the anniversary rites.

Calvary. Dr. W. S. Abernethy will preach tomorrow morning on the subject, "Mark's Portrait of Christ." Prof. Louis D. Bliss will bring the greetings of the church to Dr. and Mrs. Abernethy during the morning service which marks the twentieth anniversary of their arrival at Calvary.

Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
This Hymn was almost certainly written by St. Ambrose—as testified by later writers, and its similarity to other works of the same author. It has the very rare distinction of being included as the hymn for Lauds on Monday in both the primitive cycles of Hymns for the Week.

Loan Sharks

An encouraging note has been struck for the District with the reporting to the House District Committee by Representative McGehee of a small-loans bill. Thousands of Washingtonians have been swindled here in recent years by unregulated loan sharks. City officials have tried again and again to secure remedial legislation. Every effort heretofore has failed, presumably because Congress has not taken sufficient time to investigate the effect of keeping the present inoperative statute on the books.

Actually the problem is a very simple one. Men and women of small means frequently need loans for which they can offer no collateral. Such loans are seldom available in the District at reasonable rates, because the existing law restricting interest to 1 per cent a month does not permit legitimate companies to operate in this field at a profit. At the same time it is so loosely drawn as to make Washington a happy hunting ground for the loan sharks who specialize in extortion. Persons who must borrow money at any price to meet emergencies are easy victims of these swindlers.

The new measure, as it now stands, will put the loan companies under municipal control by authorizing the issuance of licenses and limiting their interest charges to 2 per cent a month on loans of $500 or less. This should provide an answer to the mushroom growth in recent years of loan companies in nearby Maryland and Virginia, where District residents were forced to go if they were unwilling to meet the exorbitant demands of Washington loan sharks. If Congress can be made to realize that inaction on its part will force borrowers in desperate circumstances to pay several times the proposed rates, it will doubtless pass the bill without hesitation.

Voice From The Past

It cannot be to our interest that all Europe shall be reduced to a single monarchy, even should military intervention be necessary to prevent it.—Thomas Jefferson, in a letter to Thomas Leiper, New Year's Day, 1814.

Serpent In Eden

The Nazis have had their eyes on, and their agents in, Irak for a long time. Irak is rich in oil. Without oil the German military machine would be forced to stop in its tracks, the German air force could not leave the ground. Irak, moreover, is on the road to Suez. It would be most helpful to Hitler at this time, while his troops are moving into Egypt from the west, to be in a position to push down toward Suez from the north. Even if that could not be done immediately, since Turkey and Syria bar the way, a state of turmoil in Irak which compelled the British to divide their forces by having to send additional troops to the Arab kingdom would play into Germany's hand.

In Rashid Ali Al Gailani, who seized power at Bagdad by a coup d'etat early in April, Hitler has a willing and pliant tool. Gailana has made a great to-do over the landing of British troops at Basra. It is even reported that at his instance Irak artillery has been shelling the British air base at Habbaniyah, 60 miles west of Bagdad. There is also talk that Irak will seek to align all Moslems in the Near East in a holy war against Great Britain. We need not take this threat seriously. But it is clear that Hitler, through his tools in the Middle East, will leave no stone unturned in making as much trouble for the British as he can. The Irak army and air force is a negligible quantity. It may receive some assistance from Germany by air. But the fact that the British took the initiative in landing troops in Irak, and that they have refused to be intimidated by the expostulations and threats of Irak's Quisling, is a hopeful augury.

If the worst comes to the worst, the British are now at least in a position to make it impossible for Germany, should she secure a real foothold in Irak, to draw on the oil resources to be found at Mosul. For it is most unlikely that the British will repeat in Irak the ghastly blunder they made in Rumania where they failed to destroy the oil wells before the Germans came in. Yet the situation in Irak does add a further complication to Britain's difficult task. It compels her to divert man power and machines badly needed in Egypt. It is grimly ironic, incidentally, to recall that there would have been no Irak without a British victory in World War I. And that, without Britain's readiness, after that war, to permit Irak to become independent, Gailani could not have staged his coup d'etat.

Wage Policy

It is becoming increasingly evident that the policy of price stability to which the Administration is committed is a policy on one leg. A price is nothing but a function of costs. And if there is no policy with regard to costs, the chief item of which is wages, the logic of the present one-leg policy which stabilizes prices and allows costs to mount without restraint would be one of two alternatives. Either prices would break through all restraints and produce inflation or businessmen would simply go out of business and remit the insoluble problem of recovering dynamic costs out of static prices to Government agencies. And that would mean the rise of economic authoritarianism on the ashes of free enterprise. Accordingly the price policy of the Administration should be wedded to a cost policy; that is to say, there should be an over-all price ceiling covering all items entering into prices as well as the final prices themselves. Nothing less deserves the name of an economic policy for a national emergency which threatens to tax all our resources to the limit.

Still there seems as yet no sign that the Administration is prepared to embark on such a logical and basic economic policy. Even in ultimate prices there is a large area which remains outside the jurisdiction of the stabilizers—the area of prices of such vital items as foodstuffs and other farm commodities. As to these, the farm bloc in Congress is the enemy of stability. It may be argued, as farm spokesmen do argue, that the farmers are as entitled to extra dividends as the workers. Two wrongs, however, never made a right. And the agitation of farm spokesmen might better be diverted to a campaign for a wage policy which would guarantee stability for them as well as all other sections of the community. Either inflation or economic authoritarianism would be disastrous to both farmers and workers.

The lack of a true price policy is illustrated in the case of the steel and coal strikes. A 12 per cent boost was granted in steel wages. Clearly such an addition to costs called for some adjustments in prices, at least for some units of the steel industry which are not as well heeled as others. But the wage increase was immediately followed by Administrator Henderson's order freezing (temporarily, at any rate) all steel prices. The added coal and coke bill following the settlement of the coal strike will now add further to the cost problems of the steel industry. Thus the price situation is constantly being bedeviled, and subjected to pressures from all manner of cost-boosting which is at best haphazard and piecemeal.

By this time the justice of labor's claim that it should share proportionately in any rising gains of industry is generally admitted. War profiteering goes against the social conscience, and at present there can be little of the kind that disfigured World War I. The price stabilizing policy is one deterrent; Secretary Morgenthau and his tax collectors make up another. Any residue of defense profits, in all fairness, should be shared with labor. What needs to be emphasized, however, is that any profits which remain from defense work are necessarily temporary. They are not, as Prof. Sumner H. Slichter, the well-known labor economist, says, in the current Atlantic Monthly, a satisfactory basis for permanent advances in wage rates. He says: "Labor's share in temporary profits should take the form of temporary bonuses." Prof. Slichter goes on to lay down the dictum that advances in permanent wage rates should be limited by the technological progress of industry. This is as it should be. It is clearly right that, where the per unit cost of labor is reduced by new processes and inventions, labor should profit. But, as Mr. Thurman Arnold can testify, labor is increasingly opposed to any such savings, and it got aid and comfort in such a Luddite effort to stem progress, and its own advancement, in a recent Supreme Court decision.

Such guiding principles in the approach to the cost problem in the national defense effort should be set forth in a national wage policy. It is not advocated that the wage policy should be imposed from above. Price stability has been so imposed, it is true, but a national wage policy—or, more comprehensively, an over-all and effective price ceiling—should be formulated by national representatives of industry and labor working together with the Government. Nobody would benefit more than the workers from such a policy of cost-price balancing. For inflation or authoritarianism would throw the social gains of labor in the discard. And even if either possibility could be avoided, the permanent boosting of wage rates on top of a wholly artificial emergency economy would call for painful readjustments later on. Many workers are not likely to forget the difficulties created by the collapse of prices in 1920 and 1921. This is why we think labor would respond to a lead from the Government in laying a real policy foundation for an economic stability which would ride through the emergency.

Saving For Taxes

The anticipated heavy increases in taxes levied on small and medium incomes will undoubtedly create serious budgeting problems for many individuals. Under the Treasury's new tax program, for instance, an unmarried man with an income of $1,500, who previously paid a tax of $22, would have to pay about 5 times that sum, $109, while a married man without children in the $5,000 class would have his income tax stepped up from $110 to $506. To encourage taxpayers to make systematic provision in advance for meeting payments of such size, therefore, the Treasury is considering plans for the sale of stamps at monthly or weekly intervals which would be turned in by the taxpayer in lieu of cash when taxes fall due. Collection of income taxes at the source—that is, from employers—at regular weekly or monthly intervals has also been recommended by witnesses before the House Ways and Means Committee. Old-age insurance levies are now collected from insured employes by this method of deduction at the source. But the administrative difficulties of extending this system to income tax payments would obviously be much greater than in case of pay-roll levies. Moreover, the plan would not take care of taxpayers outside the employed groups who might be quite as much in need of protective guidance.

Properly managed, the sale of saving stamps would probably be a useful and a preferable device. If employing concerns could arrange, for example, for the distribution of such stamps and bring a little pressure to bear upon employes to buy them, the scheme might prove a deterrent to heedless spending. But no purely voluntary system of saving, by stamp purchases or otherwise, can be relied upon to protect the improvident against themselves. Short of compulsion, they will just have to learn by hard experience that the tax collector is not moved by the plea of "no funds."

Labor And The Draft

The OPM is said to be planning some sort of protective action to prevent draft boards from depleting the ranks of skilled labor. It is about time. With great reserves of young men available for military service, it seems inexcusable bungling to refuse deferment or to permit induction into the Army of workers who are badly needed by defense industries. How badly they are needed is indicated again by President Roosevelt's letter to the OPM asking that the country "should be further combed for men who have had experience" in making machine tools. From every part of the country come complaints of growing shortages of skilled labor. Some employers are recruiting workers in distant States. Many concerns are taking on relatively inexperienced workers for lack of more competent men. And in an increasingly large number of instances employers are competing with employers for the services of skilled workers.

These evidences that the supply of many kinds of labor is not equal to the demand receive further confirmation from the special reports of public employment offices covering nearly 400 selected defense occupations. By the end of February, 87 of these occupations showed insufficient registrants on active files to meet current demands, and most of the 87 had had deficiencies for several months. The shortages in aircraft, machine shop, and shipbuilding occupations were especially acute, and of course were daily becoming more serious. There were, on the other hand, considerable surpluses of unemployed workers (actual and prospective) in some defense occupations. With the aid of such pertinent data, together with official job analyses and labor surveys to guide them, it should be possible for draft boards to recruit men for the armed forces with a minimum amount of disturbance to industries engaged on defense work.

The drafting of skilled defense workers is not only immediately demoralizing; it tends to discourage the training of draft-age apprentices by employers. In some respects this indirect result of injudicious selection by draft boards appears to be more alarming than limited direct losses of trained men. For it is absolutely essential to speed up training work. That is the only way in which existing and prospective shortages of skilled labor can be overcome. Without enough labor of the kind needed to produce equipment, the defense program will bog down, no matter how many men are inducted into service or how many billions are voted for defense.

PROLOGUE

A hundred silver flutes were suddenly heard,
As dawn-bird calling blithely to dawn-bird
Rolled up the curtain of the silent night,
Revealing sudden song and shadowy flight,
Movement in thickets, and the Dawn's pale hand
Laid gently on the misty, bird-strewn land;—
Laid like a blessing on the two who stood
To hear the flute-notes fill the dripping wood!

German Press

The German puppet press is now actively engaged in assuring the United States that Germany has no intention of attacking the United States and calls people who think so "150 per cent lunatics."

This proves definitely that the United States is now in danger from such attack some time in the future. It must be remembered that lots of other countries have had similar assurances from Germany, among them Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Greece, and—why go on?

The German propaganda ministry compares the recent statements of Hull and Knox to "gunmen in old wild West films," and claims that the dangers of which they speak are "largely imaginary."

It was imaginary when Hitler once said that the Sudetenland would be his last territorial demand in Europe; it was imaginary when he concluded a ten-year peace pact between Germany and Poland less than three years ago; it was imaginary when he said Germany would respect Belgium's and Holland's neutrality forever; of course it was imaginary when Chamberlain came back to London after Munich with that nonaggression pact in his hands.

But then these "authorized German quarters" should get together with German radio stations, which are reported simultaneously to have repeated the threat of Hitler to sink all aid coming from the United States to Britain. That sounds a little less imaginary.

U. S. And Japan

Fair-minded America was horrified at the unsportsmanlike "stab-in-the-back" perpetrated by Italy as Germany was breaking through France's shattered front. But now the United States is stabbing herself in the back. Incredible, these words, yet true. We are doing all in our power to aid China by giving her war supplies; we are giving her money with which to carry on her war successfully; but at the same time we are supplying Japan with the fuel to destroy the help that we are giving the Chinese.

Japanese ships are welcomed at American West Coast ports. They are loaded with millions of gallons of oil weekly—oil that propels Japanese airplanes laden with deadly, destructive bombs.

In addition, American money flowing into Japanese hands in payment of Japanese silk and varied imports, enables that country to purchase, in world markets, other vital war supplies.

We fully realize the imminence of open hostilities with Japan; yet we are helping to build the Japanese war machine just as Britain and France unwittingly helped to build the powerful Nazi juggernaut.

Praise For Post

Every spring when I accompany our senior class to Washington, I go on a "newspaper spree," buying and reading from four to six Washington and New York papers per day. Of all the Capital papers, I most enjoy The Post, especially the columnists, particularly the ones not writing in our local papers—like Barnet Nover. I enjoyed his review of "Blood, Sweat and Tears" more than I did the one appearing in the New York Times on the same day, Easter Sunday. I still have his article of Wednesday, April 16, on the bulletin board in my office. It helps me keep my equilibrium in these dark days of news from abroad.

History Repeating?

The most disgusting and deplorable situation that existed during 1917 is cropping up again today. Then, as now, most so-called Americans lost all sense of reasoning; they were so fed up on propaganda and cries of hate, their brains seemed to stop functioning altogether, and they simply swallowed all that was given them without so much as a question asked.

Today as then, all who opposed our entry into that unjust and futile carnage were persecuted and accused of every conceivable unpatriotic, subversive motive, even though they had, through years of unswerving patriotism and duty to their Government, proven themselves "loyal true Americans."

Today as in 1917, stanch and true Americans, men like Senators Nye, Wheeler, Taft, La Follette, Gen. Wood, Col. Charles Lindbergh and many other farseeing brave men who oppose this poisonous propaganda being fed to the American people, and who oppose the efforts of a foreign nation to precipitate our country into another abyss, are receiving the same smear. These men are blessed with clear vision, unclouded by the glitter of royal pomp, oily international intrigue, or political glory.

May God be more merciful in his dealings with those guilty of these atrocious acts, (committed knowingly or unknowingly) than they are to our patriots. O. J. W.

Blackout Bill

What is happening to our Government? A perfectly sensible bill is motioned by Representative Randolph (Democrat), and in return stupid and silly wisecracks are used to stop the bill. The proposed bill was for a trial blackout for the District and nearby Virginia and Maryland. This is one of the most sensible bills I have heard concerning national defense. When we think of how Belgrade and other cities were completely wiped out by the Hun war machine, could we not also think that England might possibly fall (which we hope will never happen), and who would be the next on the list but the U. S. A? Belgrade never thought it was coming, so took few precautions, and look at her now. Do we also want this to happen in our country?

State Of Emergency

I feel it is high time to declare a state of emergency. We have by majority vote committed ourselves to a definite course. Shall we be dishonored by a flop? Surely when we passed the lend-lease bill, no one was so naive as to think we wouldn't need to protect our supplies from the Nazis and get them to Britain. The isolationists have been heard and repudiated but what do they do? Sabotage our foreign policy and flout decisions of the majority, sow seeds of dissension and confusion, and call this the right of free speech and tolerance.

Senatorial Strife

As a West Virginian, I, and many fellow voters of that State are interested in the outcome of the contest now before the United States Senate concerning who will be chosen to take the seat of the now-elected Governor of our State. Hair-splitting technicalities involving legal claims should not be the main issue involved in the choice. As for difference in qualifications in the two candidates, this matter also may be waived in the presence of more important issues. The larger question involved is: What does democracy demand in a world crisis such as we are now facing? Unless there are insuperable barriers, should not technicalities (which in this case are about evenly divided in merit) be subordinated to harmony? Or if a more significant element is necessary to turn the scale in favor of harmony, should not the will of the people of West Virginia be considered in this unparalleled issue which has been thrust upon the Senate?

Our State was unfortunate enough to face two factions in the late election of a Governor. The factions were each represented by Democrats. The one whose leader was the present Governor of the State won out by a large majority. The Governor-elect is well known as a strong Administration man. He vacated his seat in the United States Senate under sense of duty that his State needed, at this time, his leadership. The State responded to that act of his by such a majority as left no doubt as to the State's wishes. Would it not thwart the will of the people of West Virginia to give the seat in the Nation's Senate to a man who was opposed to what the vote of the State declared it wanted?

Must the hurtful antagonisms which have characterized the West Virginia Senatorship in the last few years be continued by again placing men of opposing views where they will have a field in which they must almost certainly clash, when unity of action is so essential just now? It seems unthinkable to me that our Nation's highest legislative body should fail to take into account the Nation's best interest, as well as West Virginia's best interest, in deciding this question which the Senate committee has decided by a close vote. The common good demands a patriotism which eliminates personalities and even partisan politics.

Memo To Gayda

The following quotation from a much misunderstood political writer has its appropriateness at the present unhappy juncture of the war:

"It is almost always better to lose a thing by force than through the fear of force; for if you give up a thing through the fear of force you do it to avoid a war, and most times you do not so avoid it. For the man to whom you have granted this by an act of open cowardice will not stop at this one thing but will desire to take others from you also, and will be the bolder against you in that he respects you less; while on the other hand you will find the defender colder in helping you when it seems to them that you are weak or cowardly. But if immediately you discover designs of your opponent you prepare your forces, even if they are inferior to his yet he begins to respect you; the other princes round respect you more; and one or other of them may think of helping you when you are armed who would never help you at all were you to give in."

Gayda, henchman of Mussolini, might consider the implications of this passage. It was written by a countryman of his—one Machiavelli.

The Post Impressionist

Gentleman's Magazine

It was the writer's exceeding good fortune, not so long ago, to lay hands upon a bound volume of an American popular periodical for the year 1839. Burton's Gentleman's Magazine and Monthly American Review, as its first page informs me, was published by Mr. William Burton, of opposite the Exchange, Dock Street, Philadelphia. Framing this bit of information are a number of small cuts or drawings of early Victorian gentlemen engaged in the gentlemanly relaxations of the period. One, in tophat and tailcoat, stands beside an archery target stringing a bow, while nearby an early Victorian lady in flounces and ruffles and an enormous top-heavy hat is loosing a shaft at some invisible mark. Another and even more gentlemanly figure in skin-tight trousers and high, choker collar, is posed elegantly beside a bookcase. A third—likewise in skin-tight trousers but wearing a kind of frock coat—saunters through the woods with a rifle under his arm.

But although addressing itself, apparently, to those whom Mr. Veblen might identify as the leisured class, the periodical hints that it is prepared, even as its modern counterparts, to accept worthy persons not of the haut monde on its subscription lists. Indeed, upon its second page it comes out with a pretty broad wink in that direction by way of a quotation from De Vere: 'By a gentleman we do not mean to draw a line that would be invidious between high and low, rank and subordination, riches and poverty. No. Whoever is open, just and true whoever is honorable in himself and in his judgment of others, and requires no law but his word to make him fulfill an engagement—such a man is a gentleman; and such a man may be found among the tillers of the earth as well as in the drawing rooms of the high born and the rich." Anyone who feels that he answers this description, one gathers, may subscribe to Burton's.

In spite of the yellow and brittle pages, the leading article in the January number seems, in its subject matter at least, decidedly up to date. Today it surprises nobody to find such a space in a popular review devoted to the praises of some well-known actor or actress, but in 1839 that metamorphosis of the profession (of which Hollywood is, one might say, the imaginal phase) had not even begun. Socially the mummer was still tabu. But the author of the article—a somewhat uncritical review of the life and successes of Mr. J. W. Wallack, an English actor then gracing the Philadelphia stage—defends his choice of subject vigorously. "The ignorant fanatic and the tender-bred fopling," says he with fine contempt, "may repudiate the standing of a profession which requires of its followers abilities beyond their powers to move—the malevolent may prate of the debasing nature of the stage and the vitiated lives of the professors; the enlightenment of the age laughs them to scorn." It had not been so very long, we remember, since "the enlightenment of the age"—the Revolutionary Assembly—had divided furiously over the iconoclastic suggestion that actors should be given the suffrage.

But if the leading article is of a type—if not of a tone—that has since become regrettably familiar, we find ourselves examining some of the other features with mounting incredulity. Verses, for instance, on "A Mother's Love" or "The Broken Bracelet" or "The Enthusiast"—the last an ode in 32 stanzas covering eight pages. Or reviews of books like "Althea Vernon, or the Embroidered Handkerchief," or "The Heir of Seawood," by the authoress of "Mothers and Daughters." Or short stories like "The Unwedded Bride." Or—perhaps the most amazing production of all—a serial story entitled "Henry Pulteney, or the Adventures of a Wanderer."

It is possible that this last would recommend itself to followers of Dick Tracy or Capt. Easy. The story opens in a dungeon cell within the castle of the villainous Prince Menitzen on the Island of Cyprus, where Henry's wanderings have been, for the moment, forcibly restrained. Outside an army of avenging peasants is attempting, unsuccessfully, to take the place by storm. As may well be imagined, Henry's mood is not a pleasant one, but it is resentment at "the daring insolence of the bold arrest" and mortification at the way he has been duped rather than any baser emotion which moves him. "I had heard from Helena," he tells us, "how unworthy was the person to whom the passions and necessities of her brother had consigned her hand; and the mere feeling which she had toward him should have convinced me of his vileness, for, in the bosom of a pure virtuous woman aversion and affection are, alike, their own justification." Lost in such debilitating thoughts he looks up to see the cell door open to admit Princte Menitzen's private executioner. 'Is it the will of your master, sirrah, that I should die by your hand?" demands the intrepid Pulteney. On being informed that this is indeed the case, he stations himself, unmoved, beside the guillotine placed conveniently in a corner of the cell. "I never," he assures us, "felt calmer or more composed in my life." Fortunately, however, just at this moment the father of one of Menitzen's victims breaks into the castle with a band of rescuers, and Henry is preserved to wander through six more installments.

All artistic traditions, says Mr. Aldous Huxley, end in due course in being reduced to the absurd. By 1839, as we can see, the Romantic tradition had already progressed a considerable way in that direction; no doubt there were scores of Pulteneys and Menitzens stalking the pages of scores of Gentleman's Magazines. To the modern mind, "The Adventures of a Wanderer," with its Byronesque hero and setting, its plot so strongly reminiscent of "Ivanhoe," seems almost like a caricature upon the Romantic school.

One wonders, however, whether perhaps tomorrow's critics may not smile quite as derisively at the imitators of Joyce and Proust. For the meat of one literary generation is the poison of the next. One of the principal functions of fashionable literature, as of fashionable clothes, is to inspire disrespectful amusement in the next generation.

Today And Tomorrow

The A. B. C. of War Finance

LIPPMANN

WHILE EVERYONE realizes that paying taxes and putting savings into bonds are connected with preventing "inflation," the Administration has not yet made it clear to the country just what is the connection. Until it does, the discussion of new taxes will seem haphazard. And indeed it will be haphazard if Congress and the people do not have a clear general understanding of war finance as a whole—not only of taxes but of borrowing and of many related measures as well.

THE CORRECT approach to a useful general statement is to be found, I think, in some phrases from an address made this week to the Chamber of Commerce by Mr. Marriner S. Eccles. "We should aim," he said, "to finance defense entirely out of taxation and savings . . . thus reducing the funds available to the public for private expenditure." This is the crux of the whole matter. For, as Mr. Eccles explained, the problem is not how to raise "money" for the Government. The Government could raise all the "money" it wants by running the printing presses or letting the banks manufacture "money" for it. But if the Government did this, the money when it got into the pockets of defense manufacturers and workers would cause them to bid up the price of everything. This would be inflation. So the Government's real problem is how to keep private citizens from spending more money than there are goods, at approximately present prices, which are available for sale to private citizens.

THERE IS NOTHING in the least complicated about this. In fact the main idea is so simple that it is often overlooked, and as a result policy becomes confused and may be, or may seem to the public, unintelligible and arbitrary.

In order to make the matter clear to ourselves let us use round and, for the present, imaginary figures. Let us suppose that in the next twelve months there are sold in the United States goods and services which cost the buyers 100 billion dollars. That means that those who produced the goods and services received an income of 100 billion dollars. So they have 100 billion dollars to spend. But now suppose that, because of the Government's huge purchases of warships and planes which are not to be sold, there are only 75 billion dollars worth of goods and services for sale at present prices to private citizens who have 100 billions to spend.

What will happen if 100 billion dollars are bid for 75 billion dollars worth of product? Obviously the price of the product will rise to at least 100 billions: what cost 75 cents will tend to cost at least a dollar.

This is what is meant by inflation, and the vice of inflation is that while the prices which everyone has to pay go up, not all incomes go up in proportion. So while a few may get richer because their incomes go up faster than prices, most get poorer because prices go up faster than incomes. This is unjust. It is oppressive. It is obviously evil and dangerous.

WHAT IS THE cause of this problem? It is that though the people are paid 100 billion dollars to produce goods, 25 billions of their product belongs to the Navy, Army, and air force. Therefore, the people, though they produced 100 billions of product, must get along with only 75 billions of goods for themselves.

But, nevertheless, they have an extra 25 billions in their pockets. If something is not done about these 25 billions, the public will try to spend them—thus causing a 100 billion dollar demand for a 75 billion dollar supply. So there exists in the Nation an excess income of 25 billion dollars. War finance, in the last analysis, consists of measures to prevent the public from spending that extra 25 billion dollars.

HOW IS THAT to be done? The first, the most obvious and the most important measure is to levy taxes. What a man has to pay in taxes he cannot spend. The second measure is to induce him to save, not to spend, and to hand over his savings to the Government. This puts part of his surplus income in cold storage. The third measure, not in use here but well worth considering, is compulsory saving. This differs from ordinary saving in that it is compulsory, like the payment of taxes; it differs from taxation in that the citizen does not give up his money but only the temporary use of it.

Thus in practice the citizen will give up part of his excess income by taxes for which he gets only a tax receipt; he will give up part of his excess income by buying bonds; he will give up the rest of his excess income and get in return, not a tax receipt which is worth nothing, but a special kind of bond which he can cash but not until the emergency is over.

All these measures are necessary and desirable—all achieve the same result which is to reduce the amount of income spent privately during the period of the emergency. A wise policy will tax to the limit—the limit being not to deprive workers and businessmen of the incentive to produce all out. Beyond that limit it will use voluntary saving to the limit of its practicability and beyond that limit it will use compulsory saving.

THIS IS WAR finance looked at from the point of view of the individual citizen and its object, as we have seen, is to protect him against a rise in the cost of living by compelling and inducing him not to spend his whole income. The amount that individuals collectively must not spend is the amount that the Government must spend. Looked at from the point of view of the Government the object of war finance is twofold: to protect the people against inflation and to make sure that the national defense has a first call upon factories, materials, transportation, managerial skill, and labor. Reducing the amount of private expenditure is an obvious necessity here so that private individuals should not be bidding against the Government. But that is not the whole of it.

The Government must insure its priorities by other measures as well. It has done this in the Selective Service Act. It has the power to ration industry. It may yet have to ration the private consumption of certain scarcer civilian goods.

Whatever it does, as to taxes, bonds, priorities, conscription, rationing, the central principle is the same and is very simple. In order to arm the Nation it is necessary to work harder and consume less. For it is impossible to consume 100 billions of goods when 25 billions are for arms. It is possible then to consume only 75 billions. And the task of government finance is to see that the sacrifice or postponement of this 25 billions of private expenditures is made in a just and orderly and efficient way.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Arizona

Tucson, Ariz., May 2.

AS I WAS saying, Arizona is a fascinating State, and it is literally true that the desert has been blooming with daisies, poppies, wild hollyhocks and wild delphinium in vast patches and strokes of color—many varieties of which would sell at dignified prices by the sprig on Park Avenue, New York, in winter—and with a startling display of cactus flowers, including the hedgehog, which looks like a porcupine, but puts out a blossom the size and shape of a tulip and the color of an orchid.

All this is very beautiful, but the beauty is no more amazing than the candor of the residents, relatively few of whom are natives, who give frank warning that the desert may not bloom like this again for a dozen or 20 years, because rain makes flowers and the rains of this winter were uncommonly heavy.

Even men with land for sale as home sites have said, in heretical violation of the canons of the real estate business, that next winter may produce no such loveliness. And, unlike the Florida breed of acreage huckster, they speak very matter-of-factly about the rattlers which abound in spring, summer and fall and command the earnest respect of one and all. The gila monster, now, though common and hideous and venomous, is despised rather than feared, and people don't even bother to kill him, whereas the rattler is done to death on sight if a rock to throw is handy or a spade or pick or gun.

Mr. Will Johnson, the local editor, says he found a coral snake under his bedroom rug. In Florida an editor would be ridden out of town for saying that.

BUT BEAUTY is emphasized, and the glories of the desert now are not superior to those of the New York and New England countryside in summer or in the fall, when the paint is on the trees. The people who most appreciate the desert flowers have come abruptly from snow, sleet and fog, and so they gasp and babble and torment themselves with mental pictures of an existence away from it all where food, land and housing are cheap and the war is only a momentary fret, morning and evening, when the papers come out with faint echoes of a distant storm.

There are several varieties of away-from-it-alls, the two most pathetic being the wretched invalids who close in from all directions knowing, most of them, that even if they check the ravages of disease, they must stay here, and the social and economic neurotics who come out away from it all and yet bring it all with them, including servants and the responsibilities, vain snobberies and tax fears of the Eastern suburbs and resorts.

The sick include some who have no money, no earning power, no relatives to whom they can turn but manage somehow to exist and, of course, others who revive and shove off again into the stream of life in local employment or business.

The war is far away, to be sure, but every day Army planes rise from the flat beyond Tucson and whip over the mountains on training missions which are meaningless to the civilians who turn to look. And down at Fort Huachuca, an old Cavalry post, commanding the approaches to the Mexican border, two regiments of Negro Infantry are training in a wild and desolate region where the last Apache scouts in the American Army are serving in the status of enlisted men as guides in the mountains.

THERE ARE EIGHT of them living in a little 'dobe settlement of their own on the post under command of an Indian sergeant named Riley, who turns them out in war bonnets, paint and circus regalia for occasional ceremonies. Corpl. Major is second in command, and another of the braves has no name but a number.

Having completed an appearance for the newsreels or other special dress occasions, Sergt. Riley casually removes his headdress and, with it a horsetail wig held together by a hair net, tucks it under his arm and returns to his 'dobe to resume his Army uniform. The feathers seem to be strictly scenery of each man's devising, for Sergt. Riley says the Apaches never did wear bonnets or other frippery.

The garrison regiment, so to speak, is the Twenty-fifth Infantry, organized of colored freedmen in New Orleans in 1866, which fought at San Juan Hill and in the Philippines. And Col. Lee Davis, the post commander, is forming another, the 368th, and filling the Twenty-fifth with recruits to replace experienced men lost in raids on his regular strength to serve as sergeants and corporals in other new regiments in other parts of the land.

His morale problem seems unusually hard, for Tombstone is to hell and gone and nothing when you get there, and Bisbee and Nogales, which straddle the border, are a long way, too, and offer no entertainment that is good for any soldier.

Firms Cited By British Deny Axis Ties

Copyright by New York Times

New York, May 2.—Axis connections were vigorously denied today by American concerns cited by the British ministry of economic warfare in its proposal for the United States to cooperate on its blacklist of firms trading with the enemy.

The Chase National Bank pointed out that Dr. Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare, was in error when he said that a subsidiary of the Chase National Bank—the American Express Co.—was functioning in Axis-occupied territory. The bank's statement explained that the express comany had not been affiliated in any manner with the Chase National Bank for seven years.

At the same time, the American Express Co. said that its activities in various European countries were being carried on with full knowledge and cooperation of the State Department and that those activities included extension of aid to numerous stranded Americans.

The Pioneer Import Corporation, headed by Werner Von Clemm, declared that its activities were carried on with the knowledge of the State and Treasury Departments, also the British ministry of economic warfare.

The Hugo Stinnes Corporation, citing its 3,500 American stockholders and eight Americans on its directorate of 11, explained that it was organized to refinance the estate of the late Hugo Stinnes, German industrialist, and that far from sending money to the Reich it had been busy bringing money from Germany to the United States.

Roosevelt Rewards Chileans' Patience

Patience has its reward, Orlando Bonta and Orlando Oyarzun learned yesterday.

Nearly three weeks after their arrival in Washington to obtain President Roosevelt's autograph in the "Book of the Americas," they had the cherished inscription, and the memory of a sightseeing trip through the White House.

"It was wonderful," they said, in unison.

Bonta and Oyarzun are Chilean newspapermen who, as a goodwill gesture, are taking the "Book of the Americas" to each of the 21 Pan American republics to have it signed by chiefs of state and national leaders.

Nazi Pipeline

By Mark J. Gayn And Maj. J. R. Kaim (Ret.)

(Mr. Gayn is author of the forthcoming book, "The Fight for the Pacific," to be published by Morrow on May 28. Maj. Kaim is a retired major of the Imperial German Army, who fled from the Reich on Hitler's assumption of power. He now edits the Far Eastern Information Service in Shanghai.)

German Supplies Stream To The Orient

WITH THE ATLANTIC under an airtight British blockade, Nazi trade agents today are busily—and successfully—laying an economic pipeline to the Orient. Streaming eastward down the line are German machine tools, precision instruments, dyestuffs. Flowing to the Reich from all parts of the Pacific are the badly needed foodstuffs, fats, mineral oils, cotton and metals.

Early in March, trade experts in Shanghai estimated the volume of the traffic to Germany at 28,000 tons a month. The value of goods originating in or passing through China alone was placed at $2,000,000 monthly. Trade statistics, moreover, indicated a steady and rapid expansion of both exports to and imports from the Reich.

As many other Nazi ventures, the Oriental "lifeline" represents a strange wedding of Prussian thoroughness with economic buccaneering. The men responsible for the smooth functioning of the "pipeline" include reputable German businessmen, high Nazi officials, Japanese "puppets" in China, unscrupulus "go between" agents, Chinese and Korean smugglers, Japanese army officers, Soviet officials and a little army of sea captains of all nationalities, creeds and colors.

WHILE THE existence of the German lifeline is no secret to Washington and London, neither their intelligence service nor the British navy have been able to check the Nazi trade activities.

The situation broke into the headlines in the last week of March, when President Manuel Quezon instructed Resident Commissioner J. M. Elizalde in Washington to seek a Government inquiry into the suspiciously heavy shipments of copra and coconut oil to Shanghai and Manchuria. Quezon also informed Washington he would be ready to bar shipments of strategically important raw materials which might reach Germany, if the export licensing system were extended to the Philippines.

Quezon's action was impelled by alarming trade statistics. While during the entire 1940 the exports of copra and coconut oil—both of which are used in the manufacture of explosives—to Shanghai, Japan and Russia were valued at a few thousand dollars, the figure for January and February of this year reached $700,000.

A private investigation in other regions in the South Seas—in the Dutch East Indies, Indo-China and even British Malaya—indicated a similar increase in shipments of rubber, quinine, tungsten and oil products to Shanghai, Manchuria and Japan.

While Tokyo and Moscow insist that this increase is due mainly to the increased demands of their industries, informed quarters in the Far East know that these claims are only partly true. The bulk of the imports crosses Manchuria and Russia in sealed cars, directly to the arsenals and powder plants of Nazi Germany.

THE DIRECTION of the "lifeline to the East" lies in the hands of two Nazi commissioners—for export and import and for transportation routes in the East. While these two officials have their agent in all the major trade centers in the Orient, their functions are mainly of police character. The actual work of buying, selling and transporting is done by three semiofficial monopolistic organiztions, whose territory and functions are strictly delimited. These are:

1. The "Frako" (abbreviation for Fracht-Kontor), managed jointly by the North German Lloyd and the Hamburg American Line. Frako's tentacles are spread over China, and its agents—usually in disguise—operate in the South Seas.

2. The organization Hamacher, whose activities are confined to Manchuria and Korea.

3. Brasch & Rothenstein, once a prosperous Jewish transportation firm, now "Aryanized" and directed by Nazi officials, whose main task is to ensure the smooth transit of the cargoes across Poland and Russia. Its most important agents are stationed in Vladivostok, Manchouli (on the Soviet-Manchurian border), Moscow and the Russian-occupied Poland.

The way this elaborate machinery operates can best be described by tracing the shipment of an imaginary shipload of Dutch rubber.

The cargo is purchased in Batavia by a dummy concern—Chinese, Japanese, American or Spanish. It is consigned to another neutral dummy concern in Shanghai and placed aboard a neutral—occasionally even a British—tramp ship. Since the transaction involves two neutrals and the cargo is carried by a neutral vessel, the British blockade lets it through.

IN SHANGHAI, Frako takes possession of the cargo and either sends it north by rail, through Japanese-occupied Nanking, Tientsin and Shanhaiguan, or ships it to Dairen on a Japanese freighter.

In Dairen, the Frako agent passes the cargo on to the Organization Hamacher, which sees it on its way to Manchouli. There, an agent of Brasch & Rothenstein takes the shipment over.

Usually, this agent stays on with the cargo until it leaves Russia. In the earlier days of the "lifeline," much of the cargo either disappeared in transit across Siberia or was interminably delayed. By a generous expenditure of "palm oil" the Brasch & Rothenstein agents have since been able to expedite the shipments.

An alternate route is often used by Soviet and Japanese freighters, which ply directly between the port of shipment and Vladivostok. This route is used by the Soviet ships carrying cargoes bought on German behalf in Mexico and the United States.

The extent of this trade is not generally realized. In 1940, Soviet vessels were rare visitors in the Pacific Coast ports. In the first six weeks of this year, there were 14. Some of these come directly from Vladivostok, to pick up cargoes of machine oils, cotton, wheat, copper and machine tools—whenever export licenses for these had been granted. Other ships come by way of the South Seas, where they pick up copra for refining in California plants.

Soviet freighters—old, dirty and poorly manned—have also been frequent visitors in recent months in Mexico, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, the Straits Settlements, Indo-China and Hongkong.

GERMANY'S EXPORTS to the Far East consist mainly of machine tools for Japan, small motors, precision instruments, cameras, lenses, dyestuffs, cutlery and patent medicines. Much of this reaches the Orient either disassembled—as in the case of cameras, microscopes and motors—or in bulk—as in the case of patent medicines.

In Shanghai, German experts, employing Chinese help, assemble the parts and place the medicaments in smaller containers, before shipping them to all corners of the Pacific—often without labels indicating the country of origin.

This method of distribution gives the German industry the two-fold advantage of great—as much as 50 per cent—economy in transportation space and economy in labor costs, for cheap Chinese hands are employed for the assembly.

This type of assembly, packing and shipping is rapidly converting Shanghai into the center of German economic activity in the Pacific. The existing German concerns are rapidly expanding. New firms are mushrooming. German capital is making inroads into Shanghai's native industries and real estate. Large German investments are known to have been made in coastal shipping, some observers asserting that from a third to a half of the non-Japanese coastal vessels today belong to German concerns.

The best reflection of the growing German influence in Shanghai has been the election of a German member to the governing council of the International Settlement—at the expense of the British representation.

THE SUCCESS of the German venture rests upon the admirable thoroughness of the organization. Britain's hesitation to tighten the blockade in the Pacific, and—most important of all—cooperation of Japan and Soviet Russia. These two powers not only supply the ships for the transportation of the goods to Vladivostok and Dairen, but also assign part of their already badly burdened rolling stock to German cargoes.

The motives for this cooperation are political in Russia's case, both political and economic in Japan's, for the latter now procures some of the desperately needed machine tools for her munitions industry from Germany.

For this reason, it was believed that the Russo-Japanese nonaggression pact of April 13 would pave the way to a further expansion of the German "lifeline." Moscow's decree a fortnight later, barring the transit of armaments, explosives and machine tools for the munitions industry across the Soviet Union, could not be taken very seriously, for on the same day scores of Soviet freighters were on the Pacific, loaded to capacity with cargoes destined for the Reich.

The effective way of plugging the Nazi "pipeline" seemed to be through a stricter examination of foreign purchases in the South Sea regions, and a more rigid British blockade. And, as President Quezon indicated, unless that were done, Germany would get in the Pacific the bulk of the supplies she cannot get elsewhere because of the British blockade.

'We Will Go On To The End'

By Harold J. Laski

A Briton Answers Col. Lindbergh

London.

IT IS OBVIOUS that the next few months in this country will be as difficult as any we have gone through since the fall of France. It is obvious also that they are going to make it clear once again what a Greek historian emphasized, over 2,000 years ago, that despots invariably underestimate the defensive powers of democracy. We have had a serious setback in Africa; we have suffered a heavy if inevitable defeat in the Balkans; the Battle of the Atlantic still hangs in the balance. Yet I think I report the general and profound feeling of my countrymen when I say that none of this heavy news for one moment has disturbed the inner, ultimate conviction that in the end victory, complete, final and decisive, will be ours.

LASKI

We find it, therefore, difficult not to be angry with those Americans who, like Col. Lindbergh, emphasize the need for accommodation with Hitler. They seem to us as blind and deaf as we were before last May to the imputations of appeasement. There is no accommodation possible with Hitler on any terms which make possible enduring peace. There is no accommodation possible which does not mean an unstable world with explosive possibilities lying around for every group and every power which is prepared to exploit the gamble of aggressive action. Accommodation means abandonment of the democratic experiment. It means new chances for states like Japan. It means the sacrifice of all social progress to militarism on an ever-increasing scale. It means that in every country barbaric, ruthless, men will live on their power to exploit the fears and insecurities of their fellows. It means gearing the social economy of the world to the realization that, after a brief halt in the immediate conflict, someone will put a match to the gun powder all over again; and new hostilities will break out afresh with new agonies that scientific discovery will meanwhile have added to their horror.

THE VERY RANGE and intensity of the Nazi effort makes most of us feel not that this is the time to search for a chance of a brief respite but that it is the time to redouble our exertions. No doubt we could have some kind of peace at once on the kind of terms that were imposed on France and the Low Countries, Scandinavia and the Balkans. Does Col. Lindbergh really think that after we have endured so much the prospect seems inviting to us? Does he, either, think that is a prospect that strengthens the security of America? Are he and his like incapable of understanding that the risks we have run, the dangers we have encountered, have strengthened and not weakened both our faith in our power to endure and our sense that our strength to resist mounts, not diminishes, in intensity? Having held so long the fortress of freedom, does he really think we will now surrender it to narrow, brutal fanatics to whom no single principle of civilized living is sacred?

I do not think that Col. Lindbergh and those who think with him have begun to measure the assets upon which we depend. There are, first, the spiritual assets; an Englishman may be pardoned if he doubts whether these are intelligible to men like Col. Lindbergh. But we think our people have the power to go on, however dark the immediate shadows, so long as they have confidence in the certainty of dawn. Nothing could break that confidence but overwhelming defeat here or the resolution on America's part that it is neither safe nor morally worth while to help us. We think we are being greatly led, above all by Mr. Churchill; we see that he makes mistakes and has blind spots and we are quite uncertain that he has the qualities which leadership in an era of peace will require. But he has the will to win as we have it; he has counted, as we have counted, the cost of victory. He symbolizes that courage and determination which only death can destroy. Our faith in his will to win is not less in the darker hours than in those more bright. Col. Lindbergh ought sometimes to reflect on what would have happened in American history if the tenacity of Washington or Lincoln had been broken. We have faith that Mr. Churchill's tenacity is of that order. We do not doubt it will be no less irresistible.

WE KNOW the material odds against us are heavy; we know also that they are declining. We hold command of the seas. The ruthless air attack does diminish, but it does not destroy, the ever-increasing scale of our war effort. Rapidly we are cutting off from the body economic that surplus tissue which interferes with its maximization. The resources of our dominions grow in their scale of relevance to the issue. With, as we think, the growing good will of the American people and Government, the immense industrial resources of the United States are geared to the task of battle. We are, in fact, catching up on a five years' start in organization and equipment which the blindness of European democracy had given to the Nazi leaders. We detect signs that the spirit of resistance to them is accumulating; even the neutrality of the Soviet Union has become an attitude of fear rather than conviction. Could there be folly more supine than to turn back at the point on the road where we can hope to face the odds with strength and equipment proportionate to our needs?

Col. Lindbergh and his like belong to that company of faint hearts who are stricken into impotence by the scale of the effort they are called upon to make. That is a temper with which we were done nearly a year ago. We have stared defeat in the face and we have seen the proportions of its outcome. We reject it in any shape it may assume because the passion to be free men has seized us the more intensely we have watched the price of slavery. When we were weak we were able almost by a miracle to hold. Now that we begin to feel our strength, it would be nothing less than betrayal not to risk what we can to make the future hold.

I DO NOT think that the future is likely to be of the pattern Col. Lindbergh seems to imagine. I think those who will shape it are pretty likely to be those masses of ordinary men and women for whose character and capacity he has rarely been able to conceal his half-conscious contempt. I think they are certain to insist on far-reaching experiments in the field of economic principles and political institutions. Having trusted so long to the forces of privilege to shape the contours of this world, I think they are growingly determined to take charge of their own destiny.

I wish I could make the Lindberghs of America understand that new winds are blowing through Europe and Asia. They are cleansing winds. They are shattering a social order which made the many the instruments, for so long, of the few. Those who seek to obstruct their sweep will prove as helpless before their force as the men who sought to obstruct the Reformation or the French Revolution. They are going now, as they did in those epochs, to make the relation of production more adequately proportionate to its forces. Historically, that has always been the secret of freedom. Historically also, they only can guard that secret who have the courage to fight in its behalf. The world cannot continue half slave and half free. There is no room in a civilization where democracy has had it baptism of fire for the more primeval forms of social constitution. So that we for whom the preservation of democracy is also the maintenance of our self-respect can have no doubt where our obligation lies. We will go on to the end, for we know that we are winning the battle of the future.

Grade Separation Proposed for 15th and H Streets

SIX-WAY INTERSECTION at Fifteenth and H Streets Northeast is shown in photodiagram. Plans for an elaborate grade separation structure there are tentative, but at present call for an underpass linking Maryland Avenue with Bladensburg Road

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

(This is the third article in a series illustrating improvements in the District highway system as suggested in the report of the Highway Planning Survey.)

Included in a $6,750,000 program for separating the grades at seven dangerous and congested points under the Highway Planning Survey, is a project awaited eagerly by motorists traveling to and from the far northeast, and into Maryland along the Defense Highway.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, proposed in his report to the Commissioners to erect a grade separation structure at the six-way intersection of Fifteenth and H Streets, Benning and Bladensburg Roads and Florida and Maryland Avenues Northeast.

Now one of the most hazardous and confusing street crossings in the city, this broad intersection is admitted by traffic authorities to be a menace to both motor and pedestrian travel.

From curb to curb at its widest point is approximately 125 feet—a distance impossible for a pedestrian to cover on a single change of signal lights.

Signals now control through, left and right traffic movements, but there are no provisions—with the exception of two "safety" islands—for the protection of walkers.

Under tentative plans by Capt. Whitehurst, a "V"-shaped grade separation is proposed, underpassing Maryland Avenue into Bladensburg Road—the line of heaviest travel.

The surface portion of the intersection would be redesigned to provide greater pedestrian safety and smoother passage for autos and street cars. Details of the surface design have yet to be worked out, Capt. Whitehurst said.

Also a part of the "immediate" plan for grade separations is the long-awaited and much-discussed tunnel beneath Dupont Circle. Blueprints of this proposed project have existed for several years, while merchants and citizens from the mid-Connecticut Avenue region have protested the idea.

City planners, however, are convinced that the underpass is vital and believe these objections can be overcome. The Dupont tunnel is in line with plans to underpass Scott (now underway), Washington and Logan Circles, for the eventual free movement of traffic on main arteries.

In addition to these two major projects, the survey contemplates grade separations at Fourteenth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest; Mount Vernon Square, Florida Avenue, Eckington Place and New York Avenue Northeast; New York and West Virginia Avenues Northwest, and Thirteenth Street, New York Avenue and H Street Northwest.

An inset waistband holds above-the-waist fullness in the jacket. The dress fastens with translucent plastic buttons. It is especially practical on warm Washington days.

Pompadour Should Be Styled To Fit Shape of the Face

By Ida Jean Kain

WHEN I get a close-up of some of the movie girls, I can't help thinking: "There, but for the power of publicity and the magic of make-up, goes another Susie Brown!"

You'd be surrised how much of this magic hangs by the hair-do. But, as pointed out by Eddie Senz, make-up artist for major motion picture studios in the East, the hair is the frame for the face—and the wrong frame can spoil the picture.

This season's hair styles start off with bangs and pompadours, about which all of us are apt to have our doubts, so Senz is passing along some of his high-priced advice as to who can wear them.

Pompadour Must Be Revived

"The pompadour," we're told, "must have been revived expressly for the girls with the short and square, the round, and the pear-shaped faces. In each case, the pompadour serves to widen the span across the temple and thus reduce the fullness across the cheek. The illusion of length can be given the round and the short square faces by raising the hair from the center forehead.

"The pear-shaped face—this refers to the face which is narrow through the temples and widens at cheek and jawline—is usually long and seldom needs additional height across the top of the head. For this type, the roll should be kept low."

There are pompadours and pompadours. The broken pompadour is recommended for the short square and round faces, and the unbroken pompadour for the pear-shaped face.

Generally speaking, the principles of design are applied to hair contouring to give the face lovlier proportion. Where the face is wide, the hair is kept close to the head. At the narrow portion of the face, the hair may be full. So long as the contour conforms to these principles, the details within the outline may differ for the individual.

Now About Bangs

Short, square and round faces are usually accompanied by short necks and the hair should be kept away from the sides of the neck and the full cheeks. (With a long neck, the hair is more becoming when worn long and loose.)

Now about bangs. They may be worn by the girl with the pear-shaped face when the bangs are soft and full between the two side flares and brought down to the suggestion of a point at the center forehead. With this type face, the hair is swept up from the temple and away from the full cheeks.

Bangs are flattering to the heart-shaped face with the high and broad forehead. Here the upper hair-do is kept close to the head and the long, loose bob gives width to the lower part of the face.

The girl with the angular face looks well with bangs, provided her hair is heavy enough to allow for a full roll of bangs across forehead and temples. The long but not too full bob takes away from the angularity.

And there's the best advice the movie studios can buy—free. Of course, no expert would bother contouring the hair of a girl whose silhouette resembled a sack of flour!

Mary Haworth's Mail

Should Man Marry Woman Whom He Deeply Loves, When Worried by Suspicion That She Is Secretly Encouraging Other Men's Attentions?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would like your advice on the following matter: I am deeply in love with a woman to whom I am engaged to be married. We were planning to be married in June, but I have learned recently that several other men have been trying to date her. While I have no conclusive evidence that she has made or kept any dates with them, I have a feeling that she is seeing them on the side. Hence, I am in a quandary. I don't know whether to go through with the marriage.

If and when I marry, it will certainly be with the intention of permanency, and I don't want to make a bad bargain. I know that my fiance has lived rather unconventionally, but it was my distinct understanding that she had given up that sort of thing, after meeting me. I felt that her past was her own business, and she had promised faithfully to be a true wife to me. But now I am worried, because of this uncertainty as to whether she can be trusted. Your opinions will be greatly appreciated. J. H. S.

DEAR J. H. S.: Your amiably incurious, essentially large-minded attitude toward your fiancee's unconventional conduct prior to your acquaintance with her, suggests that you are not the type of man who would give way to brooding over jealous phantasies. Therefore, it seems logical to think your mounting doubts concerning her trustworthiness may have some foundation in fact. However, if one knew the source from whence comes your information that "several other men have been trying to date her,"—one would be better able to evaluate its significance.

Suppose, for instance, this information comes from the girl herself. In that event, I think you could afford to take it with a grain of salt—as a sample of rather witless braggadocio, intended to keep your interest at a high pitch by making you jealous. Of one thing you may be sure—the flirt who plays a fast-and-loose game with men never lets her right hand know what her left hand is doing. Whereas the girl who makes a point of implying, to one man, that she has great appeal for other men usually is but giving utterance to wishful thinking. If, however your uneasiness is inspired by a blend of rumor and circumstantial evidence—in the face of which your fiancee protests her absolute fidelity—there is some likelihood that you are being deceived.

All things considered, it seems to me you are heading toward a bad marriage here. Your growing, vague distrust of the girl's veracity and dependability, when coupled with her unorthodox past history, make a nasty combination. In order to make a good marriage, the contracting parties must start from the premise of complete and justifiable mutual trust—since this affords soil in which hardy perennial love can grow. Love without trust cannot long endure, and breeds great ugliness in an intimate relationship. So my advice to you is to take the stitch in time that saves nine, by abandoning the idea of marrying this woman. M. H.

Doctor Cites 'Medico-Legal Aspects of Mental Disease'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Your reply, of April 30, to the girl who wonders if her father could be divorced from her mother (who has long been confined in a mental hospital), errs on the side of incompleteness. It is true, as you say, that mental illness which develops subsequent to marriage does not constitute grounds for divorce in the District of Columbia. But I would like to point out that such is not the case in 21 States in the Union.

An article entitled, "The Medico-Legal Aspects of Mental Disease," prepared by Dr. Manfred S. Guttmacher, chief medical officer of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore, appears in the March, 1941, issue of "Medical Clinics of North America." This article sets forth: "There are now 21 States that grant divorce when one of the parties develops insanity subsequent to marriage. In all but one State, insanity must have existed for a period of from two to ten years. There are eight States in which insanity must have existed for a period of at least five years. About half the statutes specify that the existence of insanity is not sufficient, but that the patient must have been confined in a mental hospital during this period."

Dr. Guttmacher has informed me that this information was obtained from Chester G. Vernier's "American Family Laws," Volume 2, section 72, Stanford University Press, 1938. When Congress passed the new divorce law for the District of Columbia, one of the grounds for divorce introduced by Mr. Dirksen, of Illinois, was, "incurable insanity for a period of five years." This particular provision was singled out for attack by Mr. Thomas L. Blanton, formerly of Texa , and it failed to pass. (See Congressional Record for July 22, 1935.)

I surely believe that mental disease, developing subsequent to marriage and necessitating treatment in a mental hospital over a period of years, should constitute ground for divorce in this jurisdiction and should receive attention—if Congress ever gets around to passing a new divorce law for this city. Yours very truly,
R. S. COHEN, M. D.

Neckwear Magic Known Even to Primitive Woman

If you want to look prettier than you are, be careful what you put around your neck.

"Neckwear" is a prosaic word, but a magic item or dress. Primitive tribes knew the witchery of frills under the chin. Lacking ruffles, they wore flowery leis and tiger tooth necklaces.

In the same cause you can choose a number of more civilized neckline flatterers.

Blouses of pique with starched pleated ruffs jutting up at the neckline are featured in the new collections of "first fashions of America," derived from costumes worn by the Virginia cavaliers, the patroons of New Amsterdam, and the pilgrims of New England.

One such blouse is adapted from a dandy's snug-fitting waistcoat with lingerie frills at the neck.

You can go to the yardgoods department and find bolts of enchanting double-ruffles, all ready for you to attach to a foundation blouse. Or, at smallest cost, you could make your own ruffs, pleated or gathered, with the aid of modern sewing machine attachments which you can learn to use at your local sewing center.

Jewel Accents Used by Actress

Hollywood, Calif.

Every jewel that Merle Oberon wears in "Affectionately Yours" is from her own inimitable collection. Set with small, perfect stones in graceful and unique shapes, the jewels are perfect examples of the designers' art rather than a display of large, pompous gems.

Pinned to both sides of the jacket of a black wool suit are the two diamond plumes she treasures.

Slenderize Hips to Wear Youthful Styles

ON THE lookout for the first tiny wrinkle, but giving little thought to the large hips that already make her look middle-aged.

How foolish any woman is to go through life wide-hipped, wearing matronly dresses. With simple exercises you can quickly reduce hips and thighs, slip into trim youthful styles.

The truth is that housework and the ordinary amount of exercise we get these days don't give the muscles at the hip joints enough of a work-out. They get slack; fatty pads develop.

The solution is exercises like this one. Magically your bulges melt away.

Standing with feet about 12 inches apart, arms out to side, knees bent slightly: 1—Push hips and abdomen downward and backward as if about to sit on a chair. Straighten the curve in the lower back. 2—Push hips and abdomen forward, then upward, downward, forward and upward. You should make a complete circle. Repeat 4 times, rest, and do 8 to 16 times altogether.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, BEAUTY AND HEALTH THROUGH SIMPLE EXERCISES, to the New York Office of The Washington oPst, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Many Here Will Go to New Orleans For Hammonds-Flowerree Wedding

A sizable section of Washington society will move in on New Orleans later this month for the wedding there of Miss Ellen Hewes Flowerree and Oliver Wendell Hammonds. The bride-to-be, who spent two winters here with her uncle, Clarence Hewes, has selected Thursday, May 22, as the date of her marriage. The Bishop of Louisiana will perform the ceremony, which will take place in Christ Church Cathedral.

A reception at the home of Miss Flowerree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Flowerree, of 30 Farnham Place, will follow. Mr. Hewes will go to New Orleans for the ceremony and the bridegroom's father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, of Oklahoma City, also will be present.

Among her attendants, Miss Flowerree has selected the Misses Marjorie and Isabelle Meuser, nieces of Arthur Bradley Campbell. The latter, who is a close friend of Mr. Hewes, presented the Misses Meuser to Washington society the spring after Miss Flowerree had made her debut. The two sisters spent a few weeks in Washington this winter but since then have been in California. Mr. Campbell is in New York, but will come to Washington tomorrow to attend several parties.

Marilynn Himes To Be Attendant

Miss Marilynn Himes, of Frederick, Md., who came out the same season as the bride-to-be, and Mrs. H. A. Nielsen, the former Miss Josephine Boyle, are others from the Washington contingent who will be at the wedding.

Mr. Hammonds has selected as his best man, his brother, J. Scott Hammonds, of Marshall, Tex. William FitzGerald, with whom the prospective bridegroom shares a house in Washington, will be one of the ushers. The others include Morrison Tucker, of Washington; Jack Osgood Cheirs, of Tulsa, Okla.; John B. Dudley jr., of Oklahoma City; William L. Cary, of Washington; James Higgins, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Harry Stimpson, of Boston. The couple will spend their honeymoon in Mexico City. Later they will make their home in Washington, where Mr. Hammonds is associated with the Department of Justice.

Miss Flowerree was among the most popular of the debutantes during the winter she came out here. Her uncle, Mr. Hewes, gave a large tea for her at his home and later a ball at the Sulgrave Club. She is a graduate of Sophie Newcomb College.

Cocktail Parties Accent Calendar

Two cocktail parties drew a representative number of Washingtonians yesterday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock. Miss Natalie Aszkenazy received in her apartment at 2633 Sixteenth Street. At the same time Mr. and Mrs. Walter Louchheim entertained in the attractive garden of their home in Georgetown.

By 6 o'clock the spacious living room of Miss Aszkenazy's apartment was filled with a company that included diplomats and official and residential Washingtonians. The hostess wore a print frock in a beige block design on a blue background. Among those present were the Cuban Counselor and Senhora de Valdez Rodriguez. The Polish Attache Stefan Porazewski; Mrs. Herbert Feis and Representative and Mrs. John Lesinski of Michigan.

Among the others there were Senhorita Patria Mencia, Miss Craig McGeachey, who was on her way to dinner; Jan de Rosen, the well-known Polish artist, and Emil Lie, who recently came to Washington and is connected with the Norwegian Legation.

Meanwhile, at the Louchheim party, guests were enjoying the excellent punch from a bowl set on a glass-topped table on the terrace of the garden. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ganson Purcell, Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Gesell, Mr. and Mrs. James Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Osgood Nichols, Miss Polly Ehrlich, Miss Celeste Page, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Palms, Miss Barbara Donald, Neil Connor, Edward Rhetts and many more.

Notables to See Wilson Place Dedication

A distinguished group will be in Staunton, Va., tomorrow morning to see President Roosevelt dedicate the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson.

The White House party is expected to leave some time today and the President may stop over night with Gen. and Mrs. Edwin Watson at their home in Charlottesville. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who left yesterday with Judge and Mrs. D. Lawrence Groner, will act as hostess this afternoon, when the restored house is opened to the public for the first time. There will be a luncheon today at The Manse—which it sometimes is called.

Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull will motor to Staunton today to attend the ceremonies. Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones plan to leave early tomorrow morning and also on hand from the Cabinet will be Secretary of Labor Perkins. After the dedication there will be a luncheon at the Ingleside Country Club, just outside Staunton.

The gardens of the Wilson home have been restored through the efforts of the Virginia Garden Association and the house has been restored by money raised for that purpose.

Elmina Tilden Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mosher Tilden, of Winter Haven, Fla., and Sorrento, Me., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elmina Rebecca Tilden, of New York City, to Charles Hendrick Edmonston, of Baltimore and New York. Mr. Edmonston, who is the son of Mrs. Edgar Davis Edmonston, of Baltimore, is now on active duty in the War Department here. He is the nephew of Mrs. Royal McKenna, of this city.

The bride-elect was graduated from Chatham Hall School in Virginia and the Katherine Gibbs School in New York. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George H. Tilden, of Pittsfield, Mass., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Tabb Ambrose, of Orange, N. J. She is the great-grand niece of Samuel J. Tilden, former Governor of New York and Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from the Gilman School, in Baltimore; Princeton University and Harvard School of Business Administration. He is a brother of William E. Edmonston 2d, of New York, and Mrs. Thomas Leslie Crystal, jr., of this city.

Miss Shaw to Entertain 'Happy Journey' Cast

Miss Padget Shaw will entertain tonight at a dinner dance in honor of members of the cast of "The Happy Journey." Thornton Wilder's amusing one-act play was presented yesterday afternoon at the Congressional Club.

Miss Shaw, who directed the performance and played the leading role, will give her party tonight at the club.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

TO MARRY ONE of Washington's handsomest and most popular bachelors, considered by the Capital's hostesses as their own prize extra man, and to make herself equally popular with some of these very same hostesses, is the tour de force accomplished by Madame Procope, wife of the Minister of Finland. Besides being young and pretty, she has a naturalness and enthusiasm which are irresistible and an imperturbable amiability. The other night, when Madame Procope and the Minister invited friends to dine at the Legation on Woodland Drive, several of the guests were late, some of them having been lost in the maze of detours around the Massachusetts Avenue bridge, and one having gone to the chancery, in town, by mistake. Their tardiness did not upset our hostess in the least and the late-comers were told that "everyone gets lost trying to find the legation."

Ranking guests at the Procope's dinner were Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, who were accompanied by one of their sons, Prof. Marshall Stone of Harvard University. In spite of the fact that he has taught mathematics at Harvard since he was 19, or perhaps because of it, Professor Stone has a nice sense of humor and showed a lively and unmathematical interest in goings-on in the Capital.

Also accompanied by her son, Coleman, was lovely Mrs. Hennen Jennings. Belonging to one of Washington's oldest and most distinguished families, they both devote the greater part of their time to philanthropies and civic betterment, and that with an air of cheerful enjoyment. Others dining at the Procopes' that night were Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. Thomas Richard Cowell, Mrs. Drew Pearson, Charles Michaelson and several more.

ALWAYS HAPPY to show their authentic Colonial house on Kalorama Circle to those who share their interest in antiques, Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris organized a small cocktail party the other afternoon for Capt. Victor Cazalet, who is a visitor at the British Embassy. Capt. Cazalet is a Member of Parliament—his sister is an M. P. too, by the way—and is at present acting as liaison officer between the British government and the Polish government in exile. He came to the United States with Gen. Sikorski.

Capt. Cazalet is a man of many interests. He is a musician, a connoisseur of art, and a former British squash champion, but his chief interest for years has been in organizing boys' clubs in the slums of London. Capt. Cazalet was accompanied to the Morris' by Lady Halifax, who took time out from a round of engagements for a tour of the fascinating house with its period furnishings.

Other guests dropping by the Lindens for a cocktail that afternoon were Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McNutt, the Attorney General and Mrs. Robert Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling and Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot. Also present were Mme. de Kauffmann, wife of the Danish Minister; Mme. Procope, wife of the Minister of Finland; Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Lacey, who are old friends of Capt. Cazalet; Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, Mrs. Charles Dewey and Mr. and Mrs. William Lacey. Two out-of-town visitors were Mrs. Harper Sibley, of Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. Stuart Hotchkiss. The latter is staying with her mother, Mrs. Joseph Washington.

AFTER THE COCKTAIL party the Lindens quickly transformed itself into the scene of a stag dinner at which Mr. Morris was host, in honor of Dr. Ernest Martin Hopkins. Dr. Hopkins is president of Dartmouth College and is in Washington as a member of the Priorities Board.

Parties Honor Dr. Quo Tai-chi

The Foreign Minister of China, Dr. Quo Tai-chi, was whisked from party to party in his honor yesterday. Secretary of State Cordell Hull gave a luncheon at the Carlton for him; the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu-shih, was host at dinner, and Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, of the State Department, gave a men's cocktail party in between.

At the dinner, which took place at the Chinese Embassy, Dr. Taichi had the opportunity of meeting another group of high-ranking American officials. Present were Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, the Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. George Marshall, the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Harold Stark, W. D. Whittemore, of the Export-Import Bank, and Mrs. Whittemore, and several members of the embassy staff.

The Ambassador attended Secretary Hull's luncheon, accompanied by the Counselor of the Embassy, Liu Chieh; the Military Attache, Col. Teh-chuan Kuo, and the president of the Bank of China, Dr. T. V. Soong.

Others in the company were Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, Senator Walter F. George, Senator Warren R. Austin, Representative Sol Bloom, Representative Charles A. Eaton, Admiral Stark, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Sumner Welles, Daniel W. Bell, Dean Acheson, Lauchlin Currie, George T. Summerlin, Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Maxwell Hamilton, Raymond C. Mackay, Walter Adams, Willys R. Peck, Arthur Young, Eugene Meyer, Walter Lippmann and Barnet Nover.

Several of these officials met again at the cocktail party given by Dr. Hornbeck. The decorations used at the function were, appropriately enough, bachelor buttons.

Gold Cup Race And Derby Lure Capital Society

Two races—in two places—will draw many from Capital society out of town this weekend. Competing with the Kentucky Derby in local interest is the Warrenton Gold Cup. Both take place today and will attract many notables.

Thomas Leiter is entertaining a large house party for the Virginia Gold Cup, among his guests being his brother-in-law and sister, the newly married Thomas Clagetts. Mr. Leiter will give a small dance tonight in Warrenton after the race. Every home in the hunt country is filled to overflowing and there are dinners and luncheons galore.

Senator Joseph Guffey, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McInnerney are among those taking friends down to Kentucky for the famous Derby. The Senator's group will include important members of Congress and they will make the trip in two special cars. Senator Guffey has made this trip his pleasant custom for the last five years.

The McInnerneys (she's the former Katherine Connor) boarded a private car in Philadelphia yesterday. With them are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Stetson, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Frank, of Philadelphia. The party will have lunch at the Derby track and after the sporting classic will board their car again for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. McInnerney have been in Washington this week for the Chamber of Commerce convention. Since their marriage several months ago, they have been living in New York. The end of the month will see the McInnerneys in Greenwich, Conn., where they will move for the summer season.

Mrs. McInnerney is a native Kentuckian and in years past always took a group of friends to the Derby. She is a former Democratic national committeewoman from Kentucky and still maintains her charming old residence in Bardstown.

Senator Guffey's guests today will include Senators Alben Barkley, Scott Lucas, Mon C. Walgren, James M. Tunnell, Richard B. Russell, George Radcliffe and James E. Murray, Representatives Pat Boland, James M. Barnes, Warren G. Magnuson and former Senator Sherman Minton.

Edith Carlisle's Engagement Is Announced

Mrs. Joseph Fauntleroy Barnes announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Edith Carlisle, to John Churchill Newcomb, of Greenwood, Va., formerly of New York.

Miss Carlisle is a daughter of the late James Mandeville Carlisle, of Washington, and a sister of Mrs. Leonide Ourusoff, of this city, and of James Mandeville Carlisle, of Hartford, Conn. She is the granddaughter of the late Gen. and Mrs. Joseph Prentice Sanger and of Mrs. Calderon Carlisle. She was graduated from St. Timothy's School and was presented to Washington society by her aunt, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe.

Mr. Newcomb is a son of Col. and Mrs. Herbert Danforth Newcomb, of Greenwood, Va., and Louisville, Ky., and a grandson of the late H. Victor Newcomb and of Samuel Churchill, both of Louisville, Ky.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated in 1923 from Harvard, where he was a member of the Phoenix, D. K. E., Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1770, Stylus and Lampoon.

The wedding will take place this month.

Miss Price in New York

Miss Mary Stuart Montague Price, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Allan Ingraham Price, is in New York City. She is staying with her cousin, Dr. and Mrs. Virgil Green Damon, who will give a dinner for her this evening.

Two Envoys Among Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Hallett Johnson entertained at a dinner last night at which the ranking guests were the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Espil and the Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom.

Others in the company were Orme Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, Countess Szechenyi, Countess de Limur, Mrs. Frederick Sherman Grant Smith and Clarence Hawes.

Nancy Kittelle To Be Wed May 10

Miss Nancy Kittelle, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. S. E. W. Kittelle, has chosen Saturday, May 10, as the date of her marriage to Lieut. Frederick G. Bennett, United States Navy.

The wedding will take place at the Church of the Holy City, Sixteenth and Corcoran Streets, at 4 p. m. Because of illness in the family there will be no reception.

THE Unison-Bloomfield Horse Show will take place on Monday at 9:30 a. m. Miss Charlotte H. Noland is in charge, assisted by Harry Kenn. With 18 classes, this first spring show of the season promises to be a good sporting event. Luncheon will be served during recess by the ladies of the neighborhood.

Pilot Clubs Open Convention Today

The Washington Pilot Club will entertain delegates from Harrisburg, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Bristol, Roanoke and Richmond here for the District convention today and tomorrow. The Hamilton Hotel will be headquarters.

The highlight of the program will be the "good neighbor" banquet in the Gold Room of the Hamilton tonight. Flags of the Pan-American countries will form the background of the decoration, while clipper ships, radio towers, telephones and boats, symbolizing means of communication for building and keeping up friendly relations, will carry out the theme. After the banquet, the toys used in decoration will be given by the club to Children's Hospital. Russell W. Schneider, of the Washington Board of Trade, will extend the welcome of the City of Washington and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, national chairman of the National Women's Party, will be the speaker.

This afternoon Helen Hoffman, club president, and Mary Malone Moore, vice president, will entertain with a reception at the hotel.

Tomorrow morning the visitors will be entertained at a cherry blossom breakfast there. Following this the business meeting will be held. Mrs. Etha Hall, District governor will represent Pilot International at the meeting.

Women Vote to Aid St. Paul's

American Group Will Raise Funds For Restoration Of London Edifice

Exemplifying the spirit of fellowship and unity growing in the Christian world as a result of the war, the women's committees of the National Cathedral Association voted at their annual meeting yesterday to devote the coming year to the special project of raising funds for St. Paul's in London.

The resolution to aid the restoration of St. Paul's which suffered severe war damage, was presented by Mrs. William N. Bullard, of Lennox, Mass., following the dedication of the tympanum of the Women's Porch of National Cathedral, for which the women's committees have just raised $91,250.

The resolution was unanimously adopted by the 40 delegates, representing a membership of 10,550 women in 29 States.

It sets forth as the first duty of the committees: "To continue our annual support of Washington Cathedral and enlarge the list of annual subscribers," and adds, "Having completed last year's objective and secured the necessary funds for the Women's Porch, while never forgetting the building of Washington Cathedral, we desire now to undertake the raising of a special fund through the women's committees to be a voluntary gift from Washington Cathedral to the Cathedral of St. Paul's, London.

The tympanum of the Women's Porch, a 2-ton block of Indiana limestone some 6 feet high and 8 feet wide, was dedicated at Washington Cathedral yesterday morning in honor of Mrs. William Adams Brown, of New York City. The carving by Sculptor Italo Fanfani, depicts the adoration of the Magi with the three Wise Men and Shepherds on either side of a figure of the Virgin and Child. One of the most intricately carved stone canopies in the entire cathedral surmounts the head of the central figure.

Members of the National Cathedral Association here to attend the annual meetings witnessed the dedication by the Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman. The service was held in the cathedral, with the congregation adjourning to the Women's Porch on the North Transept of the structure to inspect the tympanum at the conclusion of the religious ceremonies.

The tympanum has been presented to Washington Cathedral by a group of distinguished women members of the national committee to honor the 10 years of service of Mrs. Brown as national chairman of the committee. Formal presentation was made by Mrs. William H. Schofield, of Peterborough, N. H., honorary regent for her State in the association.

The annual meeting of the National Cathedral Association yesterday afternoon was followed by a tea in the bishop's garden, with Bishop and Mrs. Freeman as hosts.

Regional Venture Clubs Will Convene Tomorrow

Madame Chairman

by Suzanne

MABEL STRIDER, former local president and regional chairman for the Zonta Club, remarked the other night at Zonta's annual dinner that this was the season when the trees, Christmas jewelry and new committee chairmen were all green—and isn't it too true!

NEW OFFICERS—The Capital Division of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will be headed for the coming year by Mrs. Arthur T. Esgate, of this city, who has been elected to Jay Winston Johns of Charlottesville. Vice presidents include Mrs. R. Winston Holt, for the District; Mrs. Wells A. Sherman, of McLean, Va., for Virginia; Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, of Bethesda, for Maryland, and Mrs. Ellis A. Nest, of Fairview, W. Va., for her State.

Mrs. Escate and Mrs. R. A. Pearson will be the division's delegates to the annual national meeting, to be held this month in Pittsburgh.

MUSICALE SUNDAY—To introduce music week at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, Mrs. Otto Torney Simon will address the club members following the Sunday night supper tomorrow on Jenny Lind, artist and singer, whose influence on vocal art has come through the years as a tradition.

Three selections will be given which helped to establish Jenny Lind's fame: From Handel's "Messiah, "Come Unto Him," "How Beautiful Are the Feet of Them Which Preach the Gospel of Peace," sung by Justine Jones and Lynette Wells, coloratura soprano, the aria "Una Voce Poco Fa (Rossini), one of Lind's favorite selections.

Jesse Nussear, lyric tenor, will complete the musical program with songs and arias of Luli, Purcell, Handel, Beethoven, Schubert, Balfe and Donizetti.

Mrs. A. Remington Kellogg, chairman of the arts committee, will preside.

MARIETTA PARK CLUB—The regular meeting of the Marietta Park Women's Club will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter A. E. Jaeger, 616 Whittier Street Northwest, at 8 p. m. Tuesday. The nominating committee has reported the following slate: Mrs. Ivan H. Sims, president; Mrs. Walter H. E. Jaeger, first vice president; Mrs. I. L. Stormont, second vice president; Mrs. Charles J. Sterner, recording secretary; Mrs. Allen Harrison, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Margueritet Foy Golden, treasurer; Mrs. J. L. Wineobrinier, custodian.

MISS WOODWARD HOSTESS—Miss N. Faye Woodward will entertain at tea tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 at her new home at Fifteenth and North Greenbrier Street, Arlington, Va. The occasion is in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sturm, of 741 Annadale Road, Annadale, Staten Island, New York. Members of Phi Delta Delta Legal Fraternity, who are friends of Miss Woodward and the honored guests, have been invited.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Enochs, of the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, will be the principal speaker at the second and last rush party of the current season to be held tonight at the Sulgrave Club by Beta Chapter, Phi Delta Delta, of Washington College. Mrs. Enochs, who is a member of Zeta Chapter, recently returned from an extended trip to South America. She will speak on her experiences in the Republics to the South.

Peace Group Favors World Union Proposal

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, on the second day of its annual session at the Washington Hotel, yesterday voted to indorse the Tenerowicz resolution calling for an appropriation of $50,000,000 and proposing steps toward a world union carried out by nonbelligerent nations.

The league resolution urges the House Committee on Foreign Affairs to hold public hearings and report favorably on the measure.

Other resolutions included one addressed to the President and the Secretary of the Interior, approving Dr. Rupert Emerson's appointment as chief of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions and urging that more effort be made to solve the economic conditions on the Island of Puerto Rico through adequately financed long-range planning. It also protested the increasing militarization of Puerto Rico and demanded the immediate and unconditional pardon of Julio Hector Velasquez, now in prison in this country. He was convicted on a political charge and at the age of 19, sentenced to eight years in prison.

Other resolutions urged the peaceful settlement of boundary disputes between Ecuador and Peru and Honduras and Nicaragua; fair treatment by the United States of local residents in the new West Indian bases it has taken over; commended the Secretary of State on the program of cultural interchange with the countries of South America and urged its further development.

The report of Mrs. Joseph Leopold, of the league's labor committee, included an account of work being done by the branches in California in investigation of the conditions of migrant and child workers, and of clothing and other help given to organized migrant workers. In Minnesota meetings have been held and investigations made on the problems of labor under the defense program, she said.

The Rev. A. J. Muste, of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, luncheon speaker yesterday, predicted that, after the war, the peoples of the world would look to those who had stood for peace and against war for leadership.

Pi Beta Phi's 74th Anniversary Noted by Alumnae

Local alumnae of Pi Beta Phi Sorority last night celebrated the organization's seventy-fourth anniversary with their annual founders' day banquet, held at Hotel 2400. About 125 attended and honor guests included four prominent members of the sorority: Mrs. Nelson T. Johnson, wife of the newly appointed United States Minister to Australia; Mrs. Emory D. Stanley, who has recently returned from Peru, where her husband was United States Naval Attache; Mrs. Samuel Spruce, Gamma Province president, and Mrs. James N. Greear, jr., Gamma Province vice president.

The program was opened by Mrs. James C. Wilson, banquet chairman, who presented Mrs. Victor Knoop as toastmistress. Mrs. Spruce called the roll of the 81 chapters throughout the United States and Canada and those affiliated with each responded. Pi Phi seniors at George Washington University were introduced by Mrs. Harry C. Ames and Miss Mary Katherine Lutz paid tribute to the sorority's founders. Other features of the program were Pi Phi traditions, such as the Arrow Cake ceremony.

Mrs. Farman and Daughter Return From South America

Mrs. Carl H. Farman, who with her daughter, Elsa, has spent the past eight months with her family in Chile, has returned to her home here following her arrival in New York on the S. S. Imperial. While in South America Mrs. Farman not only visited many cities in Chile, but spent several weeks in Argentina, and had a little time in Peru and Ecuador. During January she atended the summer session of the University of Chile.

On behalf of the Peoples Mandate Committee, of which she is an active member, she spoke on Pan Americanism at a number of meetings arranged by representatives of the Mandate. At Vina del Mar a reception was given her by the Chilean chairman, Miss Maria Rivera. In Concepcion she spoke before schools and civic organizations. On her arrival in that city, Mrs. Farman said she was welcomed at the station by a procession of 100 school children who escorted her to the meeting at the university.

In Santiago she spoke before the Consejo Nacional de Mujeres, one of the largest and most important women's organizations, at a tea in her honor. At Mendoza, Argentina, she was welcomed to the University of Cuyo at a luncheon given for her by professor Luis Cabut.

Dislikes Draft; Joins Marines

Howard Redwing Windlowe, 27, a full-blooded Indian, frowned when Montgomery County Board No. 3 called him for service. His four uncles served in the World War, and a great-uncle fought in the Civil War. "They'd all laugh at me, if I were drafted," he told Mrs. Elizabeth C. Stratton, chief clerk. So he went to Quantico and joined the Marines.

Defense Item—New Bloomers

Miami, Fla., May 2 (AP).—Charter boatmen brought this story of an obstacle to national defense preparations: Engineers used bed-sheet size muslin to mark survey posts over the site of new defense outpost on Mayaguana Island in the Bahamas. Each night the sheets disappeared. Surveyors investigated—and learned that many native girls were sporting new muslin bloomers.

Treatment For Draft Rejects Urged

U. S. Public Health Service Can Make Many Fit for Duty, Physicians Declare

Doctors and health officers representing every State and Territory of America last night recommended that Congress authorize the United States Public Health Service to treat medically draft registrants rejected for remediable physical defects.

Meeting for the fourth day and concluding session of the thirty-ninth annual conference of State and territorial health officers, physicians declared that "nothing has been done on a national scale toward rehabilitating men found unfit for military service."

When it was reparted to the meeting that 42 per cent of all registrants are being rejected for defects, recently completed figures of National Selective Service were introduced showing that 6 per cent could be rehabilitated for "full" military service.

At present, it was said, the 6 per cent are classified for only "limited" service.

Also proposed was that the Federal disease control program be revised so States can halt monetary aid to county and local health departments where police fail to repress prostitution.

A committee report declared:

"In some areas where armed forces or defense workers are concentrated, recent studies have indicated the presence of prostitutes equal to 1 per cent of the population. Under such conditions there is grave danger that venereal disease rates will increase greatly."

Additional recommendations made were:

Reciprocity between States requiring premarital blood tests, tests in one State being accepted by others.

Army acceptance of trainees found infected with uncomplicated gonorrheal urethritis and prompt treatment, which effects a high rate of cures.

Adoption of a plan to prevent the spread of venereal diseases among civilian population by men returning to civilian life after becoming infected during service.

Washington Selective Service headquarters yesterday announced a break-down by local boards of the new District draft quota of 5,642 for the fiscal year ending June 30. It was increased several days ago from 3,982.

A communication sent to each of the 25 selection units also warned the boards to be ready to supply enough candidates for the heavy June call of 1956 with the notation:

"The boards will be prepared to have a sufficient pool of Class 1-A men to meet their respective quotas, given above, if and when called upon to do so." There is a possibility all men called for in the new quota will not be inducted immediately.

Approximately 3,500 registrants are to be examined in the first part of May to provide enough physically fit men for the forthcoming requisitions.

Quotas each local board will be required to have furnished the Army by June 30 follow:

Board.		Board.

Meanwhile, it was announced at National Selective Service Headquarters that Dr. Robert A. Bier, administrative officer of the medical division, and secretary to the medical advisory board, of the Selective Service System, has been promoted from captain to major in the Army Medical Corps.

Seminary Girls in Dance Demonstration

Civic Societies Approve Plan Of Cooperation

The Federation of Citizens Associations' plan for closer cooperation with the Federation of Civic Associations was unanimously approved last night by the latter organization's executive committee.

The proposal, for appointment of liaison committees by the two federations to act on all civic matters of citywide importance, now goes before the regular monthly meeting of the civic federation May 30 for concurrence.

Harry Wender, first vice president of the Citizens Federation, explained the plan at the executive committee meeting, held at Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, Tenth and U Streets Northwest.

The committee also instructed its recreation committee chairman, Ernest F. Harper, to give active opposition to any legislation which would permit appointment of District recreation board members by the Commissioners.

Unidentified Man's Body Is Found In Tidal Basin

Records of missing persons were being checked by police last night in an effort to identify a white man of about 50, whose body was found in the Tidal Basin yesterday.

Park Policeman E. S. Mast discovered the body floating near the foot of Seventeenth Street Northwest.

No marks of violence were noticeable nor were there any identifying articles in his clothing. He had been in the water at least 24 hours, it was said.

Description of the man was broadcast. He was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 160. He was wearing a blue sweater, gray pants, tan shoes and shirt and a white belt.

Howard U. Group Presents Kerr in Benefit Piano Recital

Howard University faculty wives present Thomas H. Kerr in a piano recital Friday night in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel for the benefit of the scholarship fund. Program of compositions by Corelli, Kammel, Bach, Chopin, Gebhard, Whithorne, Griffes, Kerr and Chasins.

Appearing as an artist on the campus where he had once been a student, Thomas H. Kerr gave a piano recital last evening in Andrew Rankin Chapel, of Howard University, the occasion being a benefit for the scholarship fund, sponsored by the wives of faculty members. This was his second visit to Washington this season from Knoxville College, where he is a professor of piano and organ, and it afforded a better opportunity to appraise his ability in a program entirely his own.

BROWN

That program deserves commendation for the balanced manner of its arrangement, the materials being a group of olden contemporaries: Bach, Corelli and Kammel; a Chopin group and two groups of pieces by American composers, including himself. Moreover, he paid more attention to native music than any other pianist has done here for a long time, and there should be some kind of medal for such a service.

Mr. Kerr is a capable executive, equipped with technical facility in both fleetness and dynamics, and is well on his way as an expressive interpreter. On the poetic side he is as yet restrained by too much uniformity of style, and he needs to concentrate on two methods of subtlety; variation in touch and tone-coloring with the pedals. He already has the faculty of holding one's interest, and he can increase this application to the delicacies of his art.

He began with Godovski's arrangement of a pastorale by Corelli, which was followed by a gigue by Kammel. Mary Howe's transcription of Bach's chorale-prelude, "Sheep May Safely Graze," and Liszt's transcription of the G minor fantasia and fugue. The last was given a performance both sturdy and brilliant.

His Chopin group was well selected, containing the B major nocturne from Opus 32, the harmonically haunting A minor mazurek from Opus 17, the F minor prelude, the A minor waltz, the G flat impromptu, the C minor étude from Opus 10 and the F minor ballade.

American composers represented were Heinrich Gebhard ("Voices in the Valley"), Emerson Whithorne ("Pell Street"), Charles Griffes ("The White Peacock" and the scherzo from "Fantasy Pieces"), and Abram Chasins (a fantasia on the polka from Weinberger's "Svanda Dudak"). On his own behalf, Mr. Kerr played a burlesque, "Adventure With an Emancipated Puppet;" an improvisation, "Berceuse a la mode Saccharine," and "Retreat of the Lame Tin Soldier." In these he showed imagination and wit, as well as familiarity with certain modern idioms.

Students Compete In Oratory Today

Winners of three scholarships to Georgetown College, offered in competition among local high school seniors, will be determined at a contest today.

Contestants will be judged on the oral delivery and content of original essays giving their views on a liberal arts education. They will meet in the public speaking room on the Georgetown campus.

Judges will be John C. Slover, instructor of speech, American University; Dr. Powie V. Doctor, professor of English, Galaudet College, and Albert A. Austen, instructor of speech, Georgetown University.

Fatal Stabbing Brings 3-to-9-Year Sentence

1,000 More Girls Wanted To Dance With Soldiers

A hurry call for at least another 1,000 Government girls to volunteer as dancing partners for service men at various nearby military posts was issued last night by the District Defense Council.

Following a meeting at the District Building, the council announced that although 1,000 girls already have registered as "dancees" that requests from Army posts are coming in so fast, it was reported, that the council is having difficulty in providing the necessary girls.

Tonight the council will play host to a contingent of colored soldiers at the G. P. O.

75 Boys Will Dive For 10 Goldfish

Members of the Boys' Club of Washington, Eastern Branch, will go fishing barehanded this afternoon. At 4 p. m. sharp 75 boys are scheduled to dive into the club swimming pool, into which 10 goldfish have already been released. Prizes are promised the best fishermen.

Sabath Hits Landlords' 'Avarice'

They'll Rue It, He Says, Suggesting Federal Agencies Move Out of Town

A declaration by Representative Adolf J. Sabath (Democrat), of Illinois, that "someday" the "avarice" of Washington landlords "will come back to plague them" last night highlighted proposals from the White House and the Capitol for relief from growing congestion caused by expanding defense agencies in Washington.

"These property owners here are taking unfair advantage of a situation and someday their avarice will "come back to plague them," Sabath declared.

Earlier the chairman of the House Rules Committee and dean of Congress took the House floor to propose transfer of some Government departments to other cities and to suggest that in his home city of Chicago "we have plenty of room and plenty of housing and plenty of buildings."

At the White House President Roosevelt told his semiweekly press conference that Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody is looking around for self-contained Federal agencies which might be moved bodily from the Capital to some nearby location. Though no mention was made of any specific proposal, the President gave the impression that he is opposed to shifting Federal agencies to points as far away as Chicago.

Sabath stated that rents in Washington are such that Federal workers in the lower salary brackets have to pay "one-half" their wages "just to get a place to live in—if they can find one." He added:

"They pay from $10 to $15 a week for places to live in and what do they get? Nothing but holes, that's all they get. It's an outrage. No wonder they fall into the clutches of loan sharks."

In a one-minute speech in the House, Sabath called attention to "the deplorable situation . . . where members of Congress cannot find proper quarters in which to reside, to say nothing about the thousands of employes and visitors who are obliged to sleep in their automobiles or find rooms away out in the country."

He named the Labor, Agriculture and Interior Departments, and the Social Security Board and Veterans' Administration as agencies which might be moved "to localities where they can be taken care of."

Recently Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, proposed decentralization of Federal offices as a means of alleviating Washington's housing and traffic problems.

Prizes Awarded To Junior Girls In Bible Contest

The annual city-wide Bible story contest, sponsored by the religious work department of the Central Y. M. C. A., was climaxed last night with the awarding of prizes in the junior girls' class.

Page McK. Etchison, religious work director of the Y, presented first prize of a week's attendance at Kamp Kahlert to Vera Compton, of the Washington City Church of the Brethren, and second prize of a Bible to Virginia Prescott, Emory Methodist Church.

Earlier in the week the following received awards:

Senior girls—Miss Shirley Huddleston, Eastern Presbyterian Church, first prize, and Miss Evelern Hantzmon, Emory Methodist Church, second, and Gertrude Redd, Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, honorable mention.

Senior boys—Robert Patch, Chevy Chase Baptist, first prize, one week at Camp Letts, Y camp for boys, and Charles Campbell, Eastern Presbyterian Church, second, attendance at young people's conference at Western Maryland in June.

Junior boys—Lee Krider, Emory Methodist, first prize, one week at Camp Letts, and Arthur Williams, Calvary Baptist, second, a Bible.

'The Neighbors . . .'

GRANDMA (Edith Velasquez) has a heart-to-heart talk with Inez (Martha Owaroff), who is troubled because her boy friend is too bashful to propose. The Community Center and Playgrounds Department sponsored the program.

New Trial Is Sought In A.M.A. Case

The antitrust law conviction of the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society while 18 codefendants, individual physicians, were acquitted was called a "completely impossible legal situation" in the District Court yesterday.

Lawyers for the medical societies urged Justice James M. Proctor to straighten this out either by ordering the societies acquitted or by giving them a new trial. The first trial took two months.

The societies and physicians were indicted by a special grand jury in 1938 on charges of conspiring to restrain the trade of Group Health Association, Inc., a cooperative enterprise of Government workers.

Seth W. Richardson, A. M. A. general counsel, pointed out that the acts against G. H. A. for which the societies were convicted, were committed by their officers, including the individual defendants, who were found not guilty. If the acts were not criminal on the part of the officers, Richardson argued then they could not be criminal on the part of the societies for whom they were done.

Special Assistant Attorney General John Henry Lewin replied that the jurors may have been led by sympathy to free the physicians, but that this did not call "piling error upon error" by acquitting the societies also.

Justice Proctor allowed both sides a week to file briefs. He probably will announce his ruling in about a month.

Polish Relief Fund Dance Tonight

The Polish Club of Washington and the Polish Alliance will sponsor a supper and dance for the Polish Relief Fund tonight at Stansbury Lodge, 5832 Georgia Avenue Northwest. Supper will begin at 5 and dancing at 9.

The program is part of national observance of the founding of the Polish Republic.

Mayflower Chicks Just Go 'Peep! Peep!'

Guests walking through certain corridors of the Mayflower Hotel the past week weren't just "hearing things" when those sounds of "Peep! Peep!" reached their ears.

For almost a week Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster has been keeping baby chicks in her swanky Mayflower apartment. Yesterday, she had them with her when she left by motor for her Maine home. En route, they spent the night with her at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Senator Brewster said he was prepared to build a special chicken house complete with escalator, "because they've had such excellent care thus far."

Mrs. Brewster got the baby chicks a week ago when she and the Senator accompanied Senator and Mrs. William H. Smathers to Atlantic City for the weekend. On the way back, the party stopped to see Representative Elmer H. Wene's baby chick hatchery at Vineland, N. J., and the owner presented Mrs. Brewster and Mrs. Smathers with a dozen baby chicks each. Vice President Henry A. Wallace, who was also in the party, promised to give both ladies expert advice on chicken raising. And did.

Civil Service Grievance Setup Told

Federal Employers May Elect Their Own Representatives To Review Boards

Federal employes will be permitted to elect their own representatives on boards of review that will hear employe grievances on efficiency ratings.

This is included in regulations approved yesterday by the President and the three civil service commissioners.

Boards of review in each department and independent agency to settle efficiency rating complaints were ordered established by the Ramspeck Act. The President's order set forth the regulations that will govern the boards.

Each board will be composed of three members. The Civil Service Commission will name the chairman. On each board will be employe and department representatives, for each of whom an alternate will be named.

Board members will be appointed or designated for a year each. They must be Federal officials or employes and the employe and department members must be chosen from the agencies where they are employed.

Appeals to the board must be made within 90-days after ratings are announced and appeals must be in writing to the chairman. Hearings will be on an informal basis. No stenographic reports will be required. Decisions will be made by majority vote.

The Civil Service Commission has appointed John A. Overholt, classification expert, head of a new division to assist the board of review.

War Dept. Gets Armory Space

Permission for the War Department to utilize approximately 25,000 square feet of space in the new drill hall of the National Guard Armory for storage purposes was granted by the commissioners yesterday.

Print paper and various kinds of heavy supplies will be stored in the dril lhall basement, the War Department announced.

The Quartermaster General's Office already has been allotted half of the new Municipal Center Building on Indiana Avenue Northwest for at least six months. Some 1,500 War Department workers are expected to move in before June 1.

Bruce to Direct Red Cross Abroad

David K. E. Bruce, American Red Cross delegate to England, has been named acting vice chairman in charge of foreign operations, Norman H. Davis, Red Cross chairman, announced yesterday.

He will replace Vice Chairman Ernest J. Swift, Davis said. Swift recently underwent an operation.

Samuel Goldwyn Resumes A Distinguished Career

Will Make Four Films, 'Little Foxes' First; Washington Civic Theater to Entertain Stars; This, That and the Other About the Theater

IT IS AS IMPORTANT to the public as it is to the motion picture industry that Samuel Goldwyn, after more than a year of inactivity, has flashed the green light on the first of four productions he will release during 1941.

BELL

Mr. Goldwyn, born Samuel Goldfish and at one time a salesman who was to the glove industry what "Diamond Jim" Brady was to railroad equipment, is one of the most astute of the veteran film makers. Despite the library of lingual lapses, mental quirks and querulous quips attributed to him, Sam Goldwyn is one of the keenest heads in the business, as the saying goes, and has only to point to his long list of productional achievements to prove it. I knew him first back in the old silent days, when he was an independent producer with a film exchange on Eleventh Street, opposite the Palais Royal, and his chief worry was what to do about Will Rogers.

The late cowboy philosopher was a "wow" on the stage and a "dud" in pictures. None of us perceived it at the time, but the only trouble with Will was that he couldn't be heard. As soon as talking pictures came in, he soared to the top and stayed there. He had to be heard to be appreciated. There was nothing about his more or less unkempt personal appearance that exerted a "glamour boy" appeal to the feminine trade.

But that is getting a bit afield from Mr. Goldwyn and his four pictures. The first will be the film version of Tallulah Bankhead's stage hit, "The Little Foxes," by Lillian Hellman, with Bette Davis starred and William Wyler directing. The second item on the list is an untitled comedy, by Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder, in which Gary Cooper will be the star. Immediately following and perhaps overlapping the Cooper starrer will come an aviation musical, with a South American background and the national "good neighbor policy" as its motive. Bob Hope, borrowed from Paramount, will be the star of this one. For the fourth of his newly activated projects, Goldwyn will team with Walt Disney—who did the same thing with Leopold Stokowski and Deems Taylor in making the imminent "Fantasia"—to picturize "The Life and Stories of Hans Christian Anderson." As at present plotted, this will combine for the first time dramatic action portrayed by living characters and animated cartoon figures. Welcome home, Sam. We are glad you have rescinded your earlier pronouncement of "Include me out!"

"Fantasia" Announces Benefit Tariffs

Speaking of "Fantasia," prices for the benefit premiere, at the National on Monday night, May 12, being sponsored by Young America Wants to Help, a division of the British War Relief Society, were announced yesterday by Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, jr., chairman of the local Young America committee. The entire orchestra will be priced at $5 per seat. The first four rows of the balcony will be scaled at $3.50, with the remainder of the balcony at $2.50. During the engagement of "Fantasia" the second balcony will not be utilized—a practice that has been followed everywhere this unique combination of visual and auricular beauty has been presented, probably due to fear of sound and pictorial distortions that might mar its effect.

The Washington Civic Theater is innovating. Following the last regular Saturday night performance of "Men in White," at Wardman Park, a special midnight show will be presented in compliment to the members of the Theater Guild's "Somewhere in France" company, at the National; Joe Cook and his associates, currently occupying the Earle stage, and the members of the Capitol's stage revue, headed by Washington's brilliant premiere danseuse, Patricia Bowman. An invitation to attend also is extended to members of all resident non-professional acting groups, identification being the only requisite to admission. The midnight performance—the first of its kind ever given by a local semiprofessional group—will begin at 11:30.

"Citizen Kane" at Keith's in Fortnight

Flashing telegrams all over the place—all heavily sprinkled with the word "flash"—Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's, makes known that Orson Welles in "Citizen Kane" will open at his Fifteenth Street opera house on Friday, May 16. A long-distance phone call from Jack Pegler, the New York advertising tycoon and brother of Westbrook, yesterday afternoon was just a shade hysterical in its enthusiasm over the New York reception of this widely debated subject. It is, one gathers, a "smash" on Broadway, getting nothing but rave notices.

And that reminds me. Patricia Bowman also called up yesterday afternoon and was as gracious and charming as this foremost of Washington's dancers always has been. And on Thursday afternoon our day was wrecked by not being in the office when Kathryn Givney, of "Somewhere in France," at the National, dropped by to say "hello"—or something. But, I suppose, that's the way life is.

Shooting-at-the-Moon Note

Remember, if you have the winner of the Derby, I'm your partner!

FRED MacMURRAY AND MADELEINE CARROLL
costarred in Paramount's production of "One Night in Lisbon," which will be coming along in due course to a local screen. They already have appeared opposite each other in a succession of hits, beginning, or thereabouts, with "Honeymoon in Bali" and including "Virginia." A cast of genuinely stellar caliber appears in their support in this one. And a night, or even an afternoon, in Lisbon doesn't look so bad, does it?

Metropolitan

Although by no means her finest film, Bette Davis' latest release is getting the treatment usually accorded efforts of that much-admired lady. "The Great Lie" is its title and yesterday morning found it at the Metropolitan after a holdover engagement at the Earle.

For variation "The Great Lie" presents Miss Davis as definitely more sinned against than sinning. She's a wholesome Maryland miss, very much in love with a chap who drunkenly gets himself married to a world-famous pianist. After a few days, it develops that fashionable lady's divorce decree was not final and, of course, her marriage isn't either. He goes back to Maryland, leaves the lady flat. The manipulations which ensue over the child of this tenuous alliance form the "The Great Lie."

Such a resume sounds fantastic, but it's a reasonable criticism, you'll allow. The fact that the unsettled father barges off conveniently during most of the struggle doesn't make things any more convincing.

Miss Davis does what she can with the rather thinly conceived role of the sinned-against. Mary Astor is striking and effective as the predatory pianist and George Brent plays the male animal. Hattie McDaniel, Lucile Watson, Grant Mitchell and Jerome Cowan have other roles, though they're fairly unimportant. Edmund Goulding directed.

RKO-Keith's

So "The Devil and Miss Jones" remains for a fourth week at Keith's and what is there left to say about this altogether ingratiating comedy?

In tune with our times, "The Devil and Miss Jones" is largely concerned with the capital-labor struggle, the white-collar workers coming out on top. That admirable actor, Charles Coburn, plays a wealthy tycoon who discovers he owns a department store that's having union trouble. To find out who's causing all the fuss, he hires himself out as his own employe.

Aside from its novel labor viewpoint (that it exists makes it novel), "The Devil and Miss Jones" stands apart from most other comedies through the ability of its cast. Wise Charles Coburn employs his shrewd eyes to high advantage, the individual Miss Arthur is more captivating than ever and Cummings, Edmund Gwenn, S. Z. Sakall, William Demarest, Walter Kingsford and Richard Carle are suavely self-assured.

Also continuing on the Fifteenth Street screen are the "March of Time's" FBI release and Walt Disney's Pluto in adventure with a seal.

FINANCE DEPT.: Tuesday afternoon, in the park facing the White House, Bernard Baruch sat on a park bench with Leon Henderson, the price-stabilizer. In the noonday sun, Baruch read to Henderson, from a sheaf of documents . . . Judge John J. Byrnes, the former general counsel to the SEC, walked by and spied them . . . "I guess there must be another depression—worse than the last," Byrnes told his companion, "because look—even Baruch is sitting on a park bench."

LEONARD LYONS

ILLUSTRATED SECTION: At the R. A. F. Benefit show at LaGuardia Field Tuesday night, Jerome, Zerbe asked Joseph J. O'Donohue, 4th to pose for a picture . . . "Why do you want my picture?" O'Donohue asked . . . "For Harper's Bazaar," Zerbe answered, as he prepared his camera . . . "And why should Harper's want to publish my picture?" asked Joseph J. O'Donohue, 4th, as he posed . . . Zerbe took the picture, and then explained: "Oh, they just told me to get the '4th' of anybody!"

DRAMA DEPT.: When Pirandello, the Nobel Prize playwright, visited this country, he asked to meet Katharine Cornell. In due time, he was invited to visit the home of Miss Cornell and her husband, Guthrie McClintic . . . When Pirandello arrived and was ushered into the living room, he met an exultant lady who, in an outpouring of short but constant sentences, expressed here admiration of his work . . . "You are different from the descriptions," Pirandello told her. "I was told that you were of the sweet and silent goddess type—and now, in addition, I find you so ebullient, Miss Cornell" . . . "I'm not Kit. Kit'll be here soon," was the reply. "I'm Tallulah Bankhead."

BURLESQUE DEPT.: A famous European writer was taken to his first burlesque show, on Forty-second Street last week. His host later asked him what he though about it . . . "Compared to what your burlesque audience wants," the author replied, "Shylock must now be considered a comparatively reasonable man."

OBITUARY DEPT.: August Heckscher, the 92-year-old realtor who died last week, sent me a long autobiographic poem last July. It concerned Luck and Success and his mishaps with New York realty. The last lines read: "I first attempted Coal, just anthracite—the perfect smokeless fuel, and very bright . . . I then tried Oil, the liquid we all need—my smokeless fuel could not supply the speed . . . I next invested heavily in Zinc—which made me rich and gave me time to think . . . That if a person doesn't buck his luck—he'll count his many dollars by the truck . . . Uneasy spirit, realty I next chose—and luck forsook me, a New Deal arose . . . The richest city handicaps our backs—a handicap, called Ad Valorem tax . . . With New York land it's tough to be a winner . . . While that's enforced, I'll soon be a beginner."

Held a Second Week at Earle

When audiences aren't laughing until they cry at Joe Cook's uncanny clowning, they're sniffling and getting red eyed over the troubles of Irene Dunne and Cary Grant in "Penny Serenade." That's the Earle show this week, a double-stretch tear jerker that'll leave you limp with laughter. No wonder it was held over.

There never was, or will be, another fellow like Joe Cook. All of his fun is angled from the madhouse—strictly. Nor will your eyes fall on the like of his Daffy-Dils more than once in a lifetime. There's grandpa who has a reading rack for his detective stories on his bicycle. There's the tiniest stooge who turns out to be half of a man sawed in two. And a dozen others. Joe doesn't do the "Four Hawaiians" which was our earliest vaudeville memory. But his story about the breakfast food with or without real milk, evaporated milk or no milk has the same element of humor. Everyone with Joe Cook is a superdooper.

The Earle's own Roxyettes are in sensational form for their appearance with the Cook revue, playing tiny chimes with their feet, jiving feverishly in "Ferryboat Serenade" and parading like Ziegfeld's finest in huge war bonnets of white feathers.

"Penny Serenade" is a departure from the slashing light comedies in which Irene Dunne and Cary Grant have hitherto been teamed. But it is a gentle and enthralling picture that will make movie audiences realize the potential dramatic powers of Cary Grant.

But trouble is always close in "Penny Serenade." After the worst is surmounted time and again, there comes a suspense of hoping and waiting for some sort of happy ending. The ending isn't too happy, but it isn't too bad. Which makes "Penny Serenade" fairly true to life.—MARY HARRIS.

Palace

"Ziggy" could scarcely be anything but pleased that the second film about his fabulous doings should find entertainment-fanciers still agreeing with him that there's nothing like a pretty girl. "Ziegfeld Girl," produced by the same studio which did "The Great Ziegfeld" several years ago, yesterday morning entered its second week at the Palace, a musical in the expensive manner if not in the inimitable style of the late master.

For whatever faults "Ziegfeld Girl" might have, a paucity of fleshly beauty is not among them. Besides the universally-accepted grace of Hedy Lamarr and the titivating vivacity of Lana Turner, there are the unequaled charms of young ladies who, at another time, would populate the most exclusive harems of the Orient! As some observer has remarked "I'm going back to see 'Ziegfeld Girl' and just watch; I'm not going to think a jot."

With Judy Garland given opportunities to exert her well-trained energy, the talent ledger of "Ziegfeld Girl" is not allowed to draw a blank. Her "Minnie from Trinidad" is a worthy highlight to this erstwhile juvenile's rocketing career. The chiseled Lamaar lacks the sly comic bits which have made her a refreshing comedienne, but Lana Turner, in the role of the elevator girl, is given a demanding role to which she rises with zest and true ability. James Stewart, Tony Martin and Jackie Cooper have the pleasant, if not demanding, male leads, with Charles Winninger and Al Shean reviving the celebrated duo "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean," of which Shean was an original half.

The Palace also continues its short subjects: "Out of the Darkness," latest of the "Passing Parade" series; "The Prospecting Bear," comedy cartoon, and a new edition of "News of the Day."

Secret Out

One of Walt Disney's heretofore closely guarded secrets, the way sound effects are made, forms one of the fascinating sequences in his new full-length combination "live action" and cartoon production, "The Reluctant Dragon," released by RKO Radio.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, May 2.

In the Golden Era of the star system, our leading boys and girls were real individualists in their looks. Rudy Valentino had half the male population of the world growing side burns. Joan Crawford's heavy lipstick work sent the lipstick business booming. I remember when Irene Castle bobbed her hair and started a social revolution. When Anna Q. Nilsson affected a severe boyish bob in "Ponjola," the Ponjola became our national hair-do.

HOPPER

Of the new crop today, the only one with a recognizable "appearance trademark" is Veronica Lake, whose hank of hair seems to be her greatest asset at the moment. Take that away and I'm afraid you've got another Hollywood conveyor belt-assembly line product.

Bing Crosby, Harry Baris, and Jack Teagarden were close friends of the immortal Bix Beiderbecke, swing idint who died some years back. They all worked in Paul Whiteman's band when ing was just one of the boys. I caught them reminiscing on the set of "The Birth of the Blues."

"I remember the time," said Bing, "When Bix took a plane to Shreveport to be on time for a show—then went to sleep when he got there and slept right through the performance!"

He should have told this story. When Bing was traveling with Paul, they had a rule fining the players $1 for every minute they were late at rehearsals, and $5 for every minute they were late on a show. When the tour was over, Bing, instead of drawing salary, was $8 in the red to Whiteman.

I'm very honored having been invited by American Legionnaire Vic McKenzie, to attend the Legion Convention in Milwaukee, come September 15. Bob Hope has already accepted as master of ceremonies. They book their people early, don't they?

"Did you ever play in a movie with a foreign background that you didn't want to visit that country?" said Charles Boyer. Now, after "Hold Back the Dawn," he's planning a vacation in Mexico City. If people keep on booking trips down there, our actors will have as much privacy as on Hollywood Boulevard or in a goldfish bowl . . . Incidentally, Charlie and Jean Gabin, who did "Pepe le Moko" before "Algiers," met for the first time at the French Relief headquarters the other evening, but neither mentioned "Pepe," that suave sinner they both made famous, and vice versa.

Twentieth Century-Fox is changing the title of "The Man With the Shovel." That guy should come after some of our pictures—not before.

George Raft, who never eats breakfast, answered an 8:30 call on "Manpower," and his first scene was a long discussion with Eddie Robinson over two big seidels of beer. After the sixth take, poor Georgie was so pie-eyed they had to send for a platter of ham and eggs to blot up the Budweiser.

Nats Battle 12 Innings to Beat Browns, 7 to 4

Porter's Cap Choice of Haight in Derby

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, May 2.—Cecil Travis, long the problem child of the league's pitchers and outfielders, is now getting downright incorrigible. He is leading the league's hitters at this point with a .521 batting average and is developing into a violent case as an extra-base hitter.

POVICH

Imagine Travis' embarrassment. You can if you know the bashful Georgia lad who has suddenly found himself a league topic. Travis is blushing at his batting figures. "Ah guess ah've been hitting in luck," he says, which is not the truth. The truth is that he has a lifetime average of .322 and that this season he has been murdering the ball a bit more consistently.

Aside from Travis' explanation that "Ah love to hit," he doesn't have any secret concerning his skill with the bat. He's getting more power into his blows (half of them have been for extra bases) because he's using a bigger bat, he says, and because he now weighs 190 pounds.

"Down South Mr. Griffith said he wanted mo' power so ah thought ah'd try to give 'em mo' power this year," said Travis. "Ah got myself a bigger bat and ah got down on the end of it and ah'm doin' all right thataway. Ah used to be a slap hitter. Now ah'm punchin' hard. Ah just walk up there and don't fret much."

Travis Is No Guess Hitter

A White Sox pitcher was discussing Travis' hitting the other day after the Georgian had singled to left, doubled to center and hit a home run to right, and he threw some light on Travis' hitting ability.

"There's no sense trying to outguess that guy, because he's just a dead-pan up there who doesn't look as if he's thinking of anything. He's no guess hitter. He's just hard to fool. When you do think you've got him fooled on a pitch he fouls it off and saves himself. He's always getting a piece of the ball. If you pitch him inside, he'll pull the ball, and if you try to pitch him outside, he loves to slap it to left. He hits all kinds of pitching.

"When I was with another club in this league, the manager came up with a brilliant idea for pitching to Travis. He said the only way to stop Travis was to slow up on him and give him a let-up pitch. We almost got killed. Travis banged so many of those slow balls back through the box for hits that we were taking our lives in our hands. We refused to throw him any more slow stuff."

Apparently Travis is no flash in the pan as a hitter. His major league batting success has been going on for almost eight years now, and he led the only minor league he ever played in—the Southern. He came off a Riverdale, Ga., farm in 1932 and stepped directly into A ball to lead the league with a .352 batting average. His debut with the Nats early in the season of 1933 is, of course, historic. The first day he ever saw big league pitching he clouted out five hits—against the Cleveland club.

Georgian Didn't Want Tip Off on Pitch

Bob Feller, in his recent squawk that third base coaches were transmitting his pitching signs to the hitters, has nothing to fear from Travis along that line, incidentally. Ossie Bluege was saying the other day that "I've told Cece a lot of times that I could tip him off to pitches that were coming, but Cece always said 'never mind'—I don't blame him. If I could hit like Travis, I wouldn't want the signs. They'd only confuse him, and he's smart enough to know it."

There was a year when Travis did lead the league's hitters in one respect—getting hit by pitched balls. There were twin reasons—his absolute lack of fear at the plate and his lack of reflexes. In the parlance of the players, Travis "freezes" when the pitch is too close. It isn't a case of forgetting to duck. He simply doesn't know how.

Indirectly, Ben Chapman is responsible for Travis' new-found power as demonstrated by his home run into the upper deck of right-center field in Chicago, where few balls are hit. Travis innocently picked up a Chapman model bat in Florida during the spring and gave it a try. His first swing with that bat netted a home run and Travis was impressed. It was a bigger bat than he had ever carried to the plate—36 inches long, 36 ounces in weight, and surprisingly it felt light to Travis.

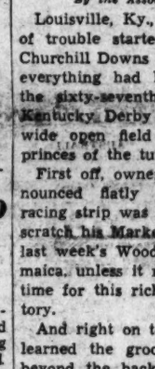
"Ah guess Ah'm feeling stronger this year," said Travis. "Ah weigh 190 stripped. Never weighed that much before. Two years ago Ah weighed only 167. Ah kinda suspected Ah'd have mo' power this year, sure'nuff."

Our Boots Picked for Second Spot

Post Handicapper Likes Dispose for Show, Whirlaway For Fourth Spot

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Louisville, Ky, May 2.—I'm going to string along with the Californians in this Kentucky Derby. Porter's Cap looks like the winner in my book. The son of The Porter has speed to get to the front early and has a better chance of escaping trouble than horses of the Our Boots, and Whirlaway type. I have to place Porter's Cap on top after seeing him win the Chesapeake and then go on to work a mile and a quarter in track-record time. Jockey Leon Haas fits the horse and Tom Smith has the colt at his best. Our Boots deserves second choice in the field. He packs the stretch punch but I don't believe he will be along in time to nail Porter's Cap. For third I'll take Dispose. The son of Discovery, despite his poor New York showing, probably will set the early pace and I expect him to hang on long enough to take a slice of the money. Whirlaway may be fourth and he may prove a factor in Porter's Cap winning. This colt may be kept on the inside of a horse or horses at the final bend in an effort to kee him from running out. Should rivals be making their moves outside of Whirlaway and should Arcaro be unable to hold him, there may be trouble.



HAIGHT

The track handicapper said tonight that the "naught" horse on the program would be Our Boots with Porter's Cap and Whirlaway the second and third program choices. Swain and Valdina Paul will be coupled in the mutuel field.

Grooms Threaten To Strike Today

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—A batch of trouble started to cook up at Churchill Downs tonight, just when everything had looked dandy for the sixty-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby tomorrow with a wide open field of 11 3-year-old princes of the turf.

First off, owner Lou Tufano announced flatly that the Downs' racing strip was so hard he would scratch his Market Wise, winner of last week's Wood Memorial at Jamaica, unless it rained before post time for this richest derby in history.

And right on top of that, it was learned the grooms in the barns beyond the backstretch have several complaints and have threatened a "strike" for two hours before the first race is called to the post unless they're satisfied. The grooms demand better plumbing facilities for themselves and a flat rate of $10 for each winning mount one of them leads from the stable to the paddock. Neither side would make any official comment tonight, but the management was reported ready to talk things over when the grooms made their "beefs" officially.

Nos. 1 and 5 Derby Posts Are Lucky

Louisville, Ky., May 2 (AP).—Six of the last 10 winners of the Kentucky Derby either have had post position No. 1 or No. 5.

Gallahadion, last year's champion, started from the No. 1 spot. So did Lawrin in 1938 and War Admiral in 1937.

Johnstown in 1939, Bold Venture in 1936 and Twenty Grand in 1931 all started from No. 5.

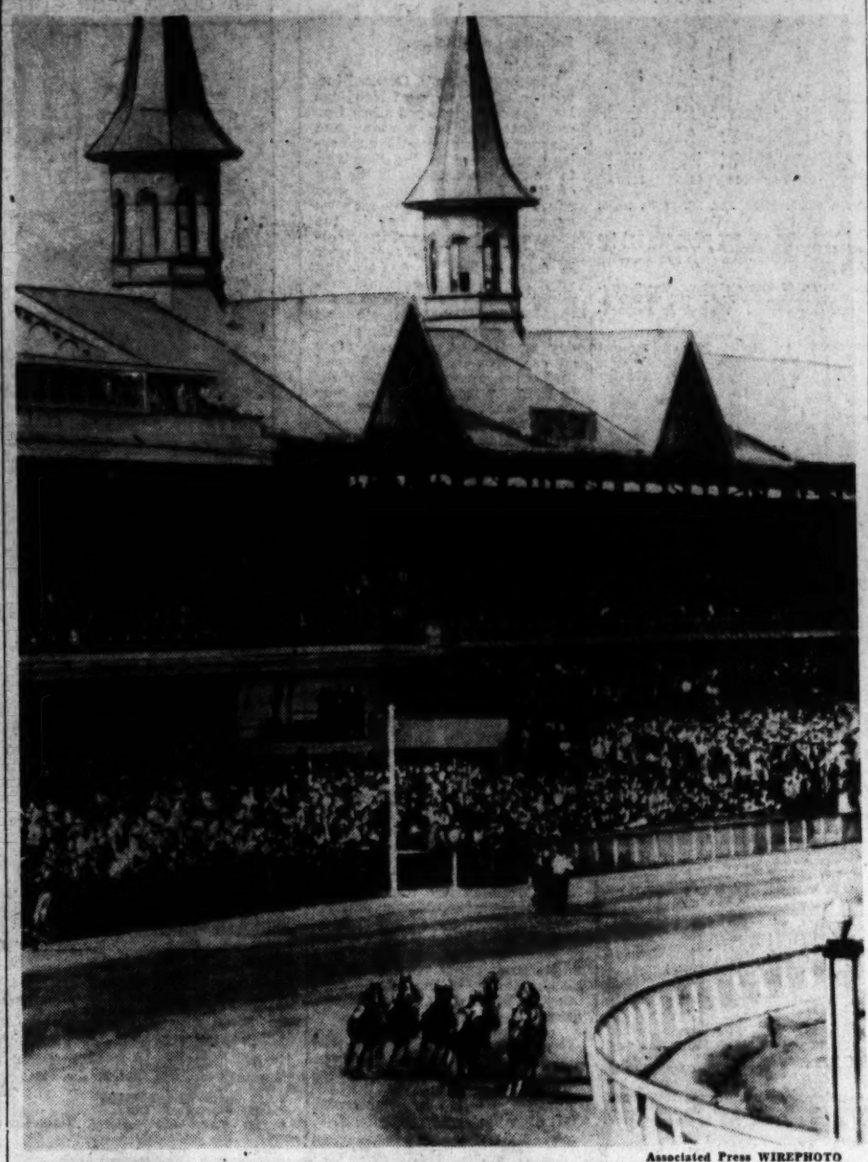
PREPARED FOR DERBY TODAY



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Bright racing weather brought thousands of Kentucky Derby fans to Churchill Downs yesterday afternoon for a preview of the old racing plant. This view is from the first turn as the field in the fifth race swung around from the clubhouse and headed for the back stretch. Leading the pack in the shadows of the historic steeples is Mucho Gusto, who remained out in front to win. Bay Carse was second and Sky Ball and Dog House ran a dead heat for third

White Sox Beat Yanks, 8-1; Take 2d Place

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 2.—The Chicago White Sox set off a blast of hits against the New York Yankees in the sixth and seventh innings today to break up a sensational pitching duel between Red Ruffing and Ted Lyons.

The resulting 8-to-1 triumph boosted the Sox back into second place in the American League, half a game ahead of the Yanks.

For five innings the contest was scoreless with the 37-year-old Ruffing giving only one single in the first and the 40-year-old Lyons allowing his first single in the fifth.

Then in the sixth the Sox batted Ruffing out of the box with four hits for five runs. They added three more off Charley Stanceu in the seventh. Joe Kuhel doubled in the midst of each uprising.

Lyons gave up only five hits, a triple by Charlie Keller and a scratch single by Bill Dickey scoring the Yankees' run in the seventh.

Bob Neyland's Aide Is Named His Successor

By the Associated Press

Knoxville, Tenn., May 2.—Thirty-eight-year-old John Barnhill was named head football coach of the University of Tennessee today to succeed Maj. Robert R. Neyland, who will resume his Army career on May 26.

In the announcement, the athletic council said Barnhill, a former Tennessee guard and line coach under Neyland, would "rearrange the duties of the assistant coaches in such manner as to handle most efficiently affairs during Maj. Neyland's absence."

President James Hoskins issued a formal statement saying that Neyland had been given a leave of absence for a year and that he would resume the post of athletic director and head football coach upon his return.

Barnhill's appointment makes him acting athletic director and acting head coach.

Angott Returns To Beat Castilloux

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—Looking more impressive than at any time in his career, Sammy Angott returned to the ring after a five-month layoff tonight and easily outpointed Dave Castilloux, Canadian lightweight titleholder, in 12 rounds in the Army. Angott weighed 137; Castilloux, 136.

Before a crowd of 3,000, the National Boxing Association's world lightweight champion dropped Castilloux with a slashing left hand for a count of three in the first round, and the Canadian never recovered from that blow.

Before the fight was over, both Castilloux's eyes were cut, the left in the second round and the right in the fifth.

Five Horses Have Chance At Warrenton

By the Associated Press

Warrenton, Va., May 2.—The horse folk assembled here for the twentieth annual running of the Virginia Gold Cup race tomorrow have failed to settle on a favorite from the strong field of 17 nominees.

At least five of the entries listed for the 4-mile timber event, a grueling up-and-down hill test over stiff fences which usually take a heavy toll in spills, are being backed on the basis of past performances, and some of the others with less experience are given a chance to upset the veterans if they can clear the barriers.

Gets Top Weight

Two hurdle races and the Virginia National Steeplechase for a purse of $1,000 will round out the card, opening at 3 p. m. (E. S. T.). The crowd is expected to range between 10,000 and 20,000, depending on the weather.

Music Mountain, owned by Mrs. Laurens M. Hamilton, of The Plains, Va., has been given the top weight of 160 pounds. Other highly regarded horses include Mrs. Frank M. Gould's Hold Forth, C. M. Greer, Philadelphia, May 2 (INS).—Crews from Yale, Columbia and Penn were primed tonight for their race over the Henley course on the Schuylkill River tomorrow in the fifteenth annual renewal of the Blackwell Cup Regatta.

Indians Win, 7-3, Running Streak to 8

4-Run Spurt, Topped By Heath's Triple, Turns Back Red Sox; Mel Harder Winner

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, May 2.—The league-leading Cleveland Indians boomed their victory streak to eight games today with a 7 to 3 triumph over Boston in their series opener.

With their first Ladies' Day crowd of 14,000 cheering loudly at even the semblance of a hit, the Indians collected 11 against Heber Newsome and Tom Judd. They sewed up the game with a four-run rally in the fifth inning, climaxed by Jeff Heath's triple with the sacks clogged.

It was the third straight victory for the Tribe's Mel Harder, although he was chased in the sixth after allowing three runs on four hits. Harder hurled four hitless frames but needed the relief help of Joe Heving, who held his former mates in complete control.

Trosky Starts Uprising

Hal Trosky started the Indians toward victory with the first of his three blows—a single in the second. He scored on Beau Bell's double, and sent a 400-foot drive over Park's center field wall in the fourth League Park's center-field wall in the fourth to tally again.

Cleveland's booming fifth was launched by Roy Weatherly's single. Kent Keltner doubled for one of his three extra-base hits, Lou Boudreau walked and Trosky was hit in the leg to fill the bases. At this point Heath clouted a lusty triple which meant finis for Mr. Newsome, the Boston rookie right-hander. Judd, rookie southpaw, finished the game and permitted one run.

The Indians, who have been running a case of pennant fever, haven't been beaten since Al Smith dropped a 2-to-1 decision to Chicago's Thornton Lee in the Windy City a week ago Thursday.

Vogel's Demas Captures Honors In Stuyvesant

Warrenton, Va., May 3.—Jumping into the championship award for the second time in a week, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Vogel, jr.'s imported Demas took top honors at the Stuyvesant horse show here today, topping Springsbury Farm's Looter, reserve champion.

The big 6-year-old, imported from England last year by Vogel, also was champion a week ago at the Lynchburg Junior League horse show. Today he was ridden alternately by Margaret Cotter, of Travilap, Md., and Everett Bradley.

Attracting high-class entries such as are rarely found at a one-day show the Stuyvesant School event was long on horses but short on spectators as most of Warrenton gathered at the North Wales Club furniture auction several miles away.

Springsbury's Reserve titlist is, strangely enough, a 3-year-old. Juvenile performers are rarely included when championship honors are passed around, but Looter's outstanding rounds and collection of three blue ribbons made him easily the likeliest colt on the grounds.

Sid Hudson Goes Route; Beats Auker

Rick Ferrell Hero Of Game Wth 2-Run Single in Twelfth; Sid Hits 'Clincher'

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

St. Louis, May 2.—Sidney Hudson caught up with his elusive first victory of the season today. He walked off the field a winner after 12 innings of pitching against the St. Louis Browns. Deprived of a soft touch victory by a damaging fumble by Buddy Myer early in the game, Hudson saw the struggle through to a succesful 7-4 conclusion for the Nats.

Outfielder Chet Laabs thrust a ninth-inning single between Hudson and visions of his year's first triumph, tying the score at 3-3, and sending the contest into overtime. In the twelfth, the Nats landed on relief pitcher Bill Trotter for four runs and the ball game.

Hudson himself struck a mighty blow in that twelfth when he doubled to left with the bases full to drive home two runs, but that blow was anticlimatical. Earlier in the inning, Rick Ferrell, a cohero of his batterymate today, had actually won the game with a single that produced two runs at a time when the bases were full.

Ferrell was carrying the load for the Nats at bat. The little catcher, who always was fond of hitting in the St. Louis park, drove in four of the Nats' five runs to keep them in the ball game and ultimately win it.

Hudson's triumph was delayed by Myer's grievous muff. At a time when Hudson was rocking along nicely with a 2-0 lead in the sixth inning and pitching four-hit ball, Myer botched the inning for him. After Judnich opened the inning with a single, a double play stared Myer in the face on Lucadello's ground ball which Travis flipped to the second baseman. Myer muffed the easy lob and all hands were safe. Whereupon the Browns tied the score at 2-2 on an infield out and Bob Swift's single.

Trotter Victim of Uprising

Elden Auker, 18-game winner with the Browns last year, dueled Hudson through the first nine innings until he was extracted for a pinch hitter. It was against Trotter that the Nats made away with the ball game in the twelfth.

Mickey Vernon put the winning uprising in motion by beating out a bunt that settled on the third base foul line despite efforts of the Browns to coax it foul. Trotter was in deep trouble when he walked Lewis with none out. Travis disdained the bunt and lined out to Radcliff, and Second Baseman Lucadello helped ease the tension for Trotter by turning Buddy Myer's grounder into a brilliant force out at second. Trotter filled the bases with a walk to West and had two strikes on Ferrell when the Nats' catcher banged a single to left to move the Nats in front, 5-3. Hudson then delivered the clinching blow—

Chapman Returns To Maxwell Field As Athletic Aide

By the Associated Press

Montgomery, Ala., May 2.—Richard D. (Dick) Chapman, National Amateur golf champion, came back to Maxwell Field today as an assistant physical director with approval of his Connecticut draft board.

He resigned the job ten days ago because of what superiors said was "great concern over articles" attributing his acceptance of the post to "a desire to evade" the draft.

Chapman's acceptance this time was "perfectly all right" with his Greenwich (Conn.) Selective Service Board, with which he differed before on his physical fitness for regular Army duty.

The board, however, has declined to alter the 28-year-old golfer's 1-A (immediately available) classification. Chairman Eben F. Putnam said his return to Montgomery "or wherever else he might decide he would be of use" was approved "until he is notified to appear" at Greenwich.

Fritz Zivic Outslugs Marteliano To Gain 10-Round Decision

By the Associated Press

New York, May 2.—In the closest thing a decision could be to a knockout, Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh outpointed and outslugged Tony Marteliano of New York in 10 rounds tonight, leaving the East Side boy draped over the ropes as the bell ended the final round. Both men weighed 149½ pounds, over the class limit.

Before a disappointing crowd of 6,000 in the New York Coliseum, where they're not accustomed to paying a $3 top for their fights, Zivic gave Marteliano a boxing lesson for six of the first nine rounds, then drove the lesson home with both hands in the tenth.

In the first 30 seconds of this round, Fritzie caught Marteliano coming out of a corner and staggered him with a right hand to the jaw. Two minutes later, after landing assorted smashes with both fists, Zivic brought home a right uppercut that turned Marteliano over in midair and landed him face down on the canvas.

Marteliano Falls

With blood oozing from his mouth, the East Side boy groggily worked his way to what definitely couldn't be called an upright position. He was staggering and weaving, an easy prey for a man as experienced as the Pittsburgher. Fritzie worked his way in, clubbed both hands to the head then stepped away as Marteliano fell exhausted into the lower rope and hung there for two seconds until the bell mercifully ended his agony.

Marteliano was rugged, and he was willing but the ring-wise Zivic picked off most of the New York lad's best shots on arms and gloves, tied him up and then cuffed him unmercifully in the clinches.

His last time out Zivic had lost another overnight bout to Mike Kaplan in Boston. He fights twice more this month, May 13, a non-title bout with Phil Furr in Philadelphia, May 26 a title defense against Freddie (Red) Cochrane in Elizabeth, N. J.

Stable Fire Halts Eighth at Pimlico; Horses Are Saved

Pimlico, Md., May 2.—The eighth race was canceled here today and the lives of many valuable thoroughbreds were endangered when a fire swept a large barn on the backstretch directly opposite the five-eighths pole.

The fire started in a tack room atop the barn and the blaze grew to large proportions on the wings of a brisk north wind. Three alarms were sounded before the blaze was brought under control.

About 25 horses belonging to Janon Fisher, jr., Groton Stable and Charles M. Feltner, were stabled in the destroyed structure. Combined efforts of stablehands and track patrons made it possible to remove every horse before the fire had gained much headway. The released horses were turned loose on the track property in the infield.

Post time for the last race had been set at 5:45 but at 6 p. m. when firemen were still battling to bring the fire under control track officials announced the last race had been canceled. A further announcement was made that all who had purchased tickets on the race would have their money refunded.

The Jockey Club announced later that today's eighth race would be run as the ninth race tomorrow, with the same horses entered. Post time will be approximately 6:15 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Bay Dean Sets Record Winning Steeplechase at Pimlico

$23.30 Shot Wins Easily Over Jumps

Clicks Off 2 Miles In 3:50; Deanslaw Is Second and Good Chance Runs Third

Special Dispatch to The Post

Pimlico, Md., May 2.—The Jervis Spencer Steeplechase Handicap run in honor of the late Jervis Spencer, for many years chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, brought together the best field of leapers to be seen this spring. With 9,000 fans cheering him on, Bay Dean, representing Mrs. Arthur White, came to the finish line five lengths in advance of his nearest rival, Deanslaw, from the barn of Mrs. E. duPont Weir. Rokeby Stable's Good Chance was third in the field of six.

Colonel Brooks, aboard the winner, was wide awake at the break and went to the top approaching the first obstacle. He was followed at this time by Eran de Perse and Good Chance. Fencing faultlessly throughout the two miles, the son of Judge Hay held sway while being well rated by his rider. Brooks put the winner to a drive on the final turn and many thought he would tire in the last few strides. However, today was the day for the White colorbearer and he drew away to be an easy winner.

Making his first start of the year, Bay Dean enlarged his owner's fortune to the sum of $2,420. As proof to his superiority, the jumper need only point to his time of 3.50, which set a new track record. The time was one and two-fifths better than the old record of 3.51-2-5 held by Chaloner.

The mutuel pay-off was $23.30.

R. H. Heighe's Talent had to be much the best in winning the opening race but the son of Theatrical was equal to the occasion. Jockey Sterling Young brought him to the wire a half length in advance of Miss Fix It. Time Scout was third in the capacity field of twelve.

Covering the six furlongs in 1.13-2-5, the winner returned his many backers $6.00 in the role of favorite.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALPINE LAD, $32.90, $13.10, $5.50; REAL VALUE, $4.40, $3.00; BECOMLY, $2.70.

ALPINE LAD came to the outside entering the stretch and was up in the final stride. REAL VALUE moved in contention after a quarter, took command in the stretch and was just nipped. BECOMLY had a rough trip. BLUE STRING was in close quarters early and closed willingly.

FIFTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:16. Winner, L. L. Hazzin 2d's b. g. (2), by Carlaris—Altitude. Trained by M. Hershenson. Value to winner, $700. Time, 0:54⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AIR CURRENT, $9.60, $4.30, $2.70; CHOPSTICKS, $4.10, $2.90; SINGLE, $3.20.

AIR CURRENT came wide approaching the quarter pole, caught the leader in the stretch and was going away. CHOPSTICKS raced between horses early, held on well in the stretch run, but could not resist the winner. SINGLE raced wide throughout and weakened. WALLINGFORD was in close quarters in the stretch run.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:47½. Winner, H. P. Headley's ch. c. (3), by Equipoise—Ancient Queen. Trained by M. Hershenson. Value to winner, $850. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALAKING, $51.20, $14.40, $6.10; CAPE COD, $4.00, $2.90; JOHN'S STAR, $4.80.

ALAKING, close up from the start, made his bid on the outside run to be going away at the finish. CAPE COD was sent to the front at the start, fought it out willingly but was not good enough. JOHN'S STAR lost ground while racing close up and held on gamely. PETE JR. came through on the rail entering the stretch and had no excuse.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:17½. Off at 5:18½. Winner, W. Wickes' b. g. (7), by Canter—Belle of Plymouth. Trained by W. Chatman. Value to winner, $700. Time, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PHILLIPS PETE, $8.10, $5.30, $4.70; CHERRY'S CHILD, $6.10, $4.20; STREAMER, $10.80.

PHILLIPS PETE fought between horses, came to the outside for the stretch run, took command at the eighth pole and was hard ridden to stave off the bid of CHERRY'S CHILD. The latter was outrun early and closed with a belated rush. STREAMER disposed of ODENATHUS and then tired. ELAMP ran a good race.

EIGHTH RACE—Called off on account of fire.

Selections at Pimlico.

Dear Al:

Crispin Oglebay's Ocean Blue, winner of the Rennert Handicap last Tuesday, displayed a bristling workout yesterday morning and is expected to represent the Cleveland sportsman in the Survivor, to be run next week. If the son of Blue Larkspur shows a good effort in that event, he may be figured on as a starter in the Preakness closing day of the meeting. Ocean Blue went the quarter in 0:23 2-5, half in 0:47 4-5 and went out to the five-eighths in a minute flat. Two candidates for the Pimlico Oaks, Boreale and Pomayya, were given trials Friday morning. The former went an easy five-eighths in 1:04 and the latter breezed three-eighths in 0:37 2-5. During the first four days of the meeting, 18 different jockeys have reached the winner's circle. Mannie Berg and Al Schmidl are leading the field with three winners apiece. Bold Irishman, winner of the Pimlico Futurity last fall, showed one of the best trials of the Preakness eligibles to work here. The Fitzsimmons-trained 3-year-old stepped a handy mile in 1:40 3-5. Porter Roberts, who will have the leg up on the son of Sir Gallahad III, guided the star in his work and said that he was going easily all the way. After the work, Trainer Fitzsimmons had one statement to make. Sunny Jim said "he'll King Cole, stablemate of Bold make trouble for anybody now." Irishman, also had a trial but was not as impressive. The Paumonok winner breezed a mile in 1:49 2-5. Alfred Vanderbilt made his selections for the Derby this morning. Alf said, "I'll take Dispose on breeding, Our Boots on form and Porter's Cap on luck." The following officials and trainers have gone to the bat for Our Boots in the Derby: George Brown, jr., Eddie Brennan, William Harron, Jim Fitzsimmons, Moody Jolley, John Turner, George Tappen and Jack Healey. Vince Mara, trainer of Saguenay II, winner of the Gittings Handicap, is busy pointing his charge for the Dixie to be run later in the meeting. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—HAPPY HOME has been second on several occasions and should have no trouble graduating in a field like this. BELLE D'AMOUR could be dangerous. KIMESHA has some good efforts.

Second race—MAROC is dropping way down for this race and appears to be the best bet of the day. IRISH MOON is a consistent one and will be right there at the finish. ALPINE BOY was kidding in that last race.

Third race—SANTI QUARANTI is a fair jumper when at best. Has a lot of weight but should be able to handle it. COXSWAIN is in good hands and will be close. MINDALE is a keen factor.

Fourth race—HALCYONA was made 2 to 5 in debut here and raced very green. Needs only a share of racing luck to take this heat. CAN TREAT might go good at a price. SLEEPY has worked well here.

Fifth race—NEDAYR has been away since last year but has done everything asked in his training. Will have the service of Apprentice Madden and figures to score. SLOW MOTION is better than that last effort. COCODEMON has always favored this course.

Sixth race—LEVEL BEST was the 2-year-old filly champ last year and judging by her works she is even better at present. Any price looks like a good one. CIS MAROON has shown good races with older horses and will be in the money. MOJA could threaten.

Seventh race—STURDY DUKE is at top form now and should score another win in this race. Has trained well since winning and likes the track. BROWN TWIG is bad legged but has trained well enough to take it all. BLACK BOO for the show.

Eighth race—NILON was a beaten favorite at the Graw but was not partial to the off track. Should improve enough on a fast track to beat these. TYR was an easy winner in that last and will be dangerous here. MOWMART is dropping down but has been going bad.

Best bet—MAROC.

Eastern, Roosevelt and Central Win in Interhigh Series

Anacostia, Western and Tech Beaten

Tide Wins, 4 to 3; Riders Score, 10 to 8; Vikings 8-7 Winners; Eastern Takes Lead

By Bill Burnett

Heads-up baseball, timely hitting and the miscues of its foes were the ingredients Eastern High's nine mixed yesterday as it served up a 4-3 victory over Western in the headline attraction of a three-game interhigh baseball card.

Other battles saw Central, after an up-and-down struggle, hang a narrow 8-7 setback on the fighting youngsters of Anacostia, and Tech bow in a surprise finish to Roosevelt, 10-8.

As a result of the games Eastern grabbed undisputed leadership in the Eastern Division race and Central pulled a game and a half away from Western in the Western Division. The Vikings thus virtually assured themselves of a berth in the championship playoff between intersectional titlists.

Deavers Is Hero

Most of Eastern's heads-up baseball was turned in by Kenny Deavers, its ace moundsman. While his mates were grabbing a 2-0 lead in the first five frames, losing it to three unearned Western runs in the sixth, and then scoring the winning runs in the eighth, Deavers went steadily about a seven-hit performance. He fanned nine and gave up only three bases on balls.

Shaken by three costly errors behind him, Western's Bill Grey was chased from the mound in the sixth and Clarence Kuldell took over. Between them they gave the Tide eight safeties. The prize defensive play of the game was Bobby Leach's dive and one-hand grab of Kenny Curles' line-drive to retire Eastern in the seventh with a man on third.

Central Wins Close One

"A narrow squeak" was the best description of Central's effort as it took its third straight public school triumph at Anacostia's park.

The lead changed hands twice in the first three innings before the Vikings tied things up with a run in the third. An Indian counter in the sixth put Central behind again, and it waited until the ninth to do anything about it.

Then the defending champions went to work. Fuoco singled over first and Citrenbaum sacrificed him to second. A torrid drive by Zello Lagos through the box scored Fuoco, and a repetition of the hit by Sam Di Blasi pushed home Lagos. Di Blasi's blow slammed Pitcher Elmer Leukhardt on the jaw before leaving the infield.

Riders Prove Tough

Taking too lightly the Roosevelt nine which had been twice beaten previously was Tech's big sorrow yesterday. Giving big Buddy Webb a day off, the Trainers sent Charley Green to the hill to start, but in quick succession Sam Webb and O'Connell were rushed to the scene to save the day.

The pay-off inning was the seventh, in which the desperate Riders scored four times. Earlier, however, they had led by counts of 2-0, 2-1 and 5-1.

Billy Garner, right-hander, who has performed brilliantly in two losing efforts to date, finally hit the win column, though he was touched for 15 hits. His homer and that of Frankie Ciango, didn't hurt his own chances a little.

Futile Score for Raiders

Bill Jeffries, Western High center fielder, plows safely into home plate for the second run of the Raiders' three-run spree in the sixth inning of yesterday's clash with Eastern. Don McLaughlin goes high into the air for the throw from the outfield after Shoemaker's double. Eastern eventually got a 4-3 decision

Youdie's Takes Duckpin Lead In Class C

Features of the ninth night's bowling in the 20-day tournament of the Washington Duckpin Association last night at Lucky Strike included the ascension of Youdie's Men's Shop, of the Hebrew League into first place in Class B of the team race.

Youdie's, with the aid of Dave Singer's set of 379, fired 1,831. Meantime H. J. Brown Pontiac, of the Rosslyn Independent League, shot 1,788 to also beat the former Class B high score of 1,762, held by Agriculture, which dropped to third place.

LAFAYETTE

Astor Clarke's Lafayette District League quintet will meet Tom Murray's Arlington Bowling Center Aces tonight at Lafayette, at 8 o'clock. One of the features of the match is that Lucy Rose, high-average woman in the Ladies' District League, will be numbered among the Arlington quintet, the others being Al Wright, Jim Luckett, Lloyd Tubbs and Leon Fleisher. The Lafayette team comprises Clarke, Paul Fitzgerald, Ernie Hauser, Al Terry and Abe Povich. Team, doubles and singles matches will be rolled and spectators are invited.

BROOKLAND

Jessie Young, Beta Chi No. 2, was the leading lady of the Inter-Sorority League at Brookland, with highs of 123, 327, although she had a divide the high single honors with Helen Doyle, Chi Sigma No. 1, who also had 123. The Beta Gamma Phi girls took the team honors, with 822 and 1,455. Chi Sigma No. 1 leads by a one-game margin over Alpha Zeta Beta No. 1.

Dorothy Aue, Sterling Opticians, was high game bowler in the Brookland Ladies' League, her 136 enabling her team to stop a 12-game losing streak. Emma Bourne had the high individual set with 345 and her effort made it possible for her Federal Litho quintet to take team highs with 549 and 1,603, the latter count a season record. Federal Litho and Gemeny's Flowers are tied for games won and loss with the former on top by pinfall. Brookland Garage is two games behind with 51 wins against 44 losses.

CLARENDON

The Clarendon Commercial "C" League closed its Eddie Goldberg's nearby Virginia alleys with Yellow Cab taking the flag followed by Geo. H. Rucker and Veribest Weatherstrippings. In a post-season tournament Buddy Tapp won first prize of $25 with 406-12, with Bernie Sollers next with 379-20 that was good for $12.50. Norman Warner totaled 392-2 for $7.50 while high game of 141 was rolled by Tom Nyce that won him $5.

BROOKLAND

The elimination matches at Brookland Recreation start on their second round tonight when the picked quintet representing the Methodist Church roll the Diamond Cab all-stars and a team from the Brookland Merchants League ties up with a picked D. C. Taxi League five. The matches start at 8 o'clock. Sunday night at the same time the Evening Star team will roll against the Western Electric boys.

League on Lookout For Softball Team

The Fraternal Softball League would like to add another team to their already 5-club league and teams interested should phone Joe Caplan at Randolph 6906.

The games are played Sunday mornings at the Reservoir diamonds, Sixteenth Street and Colorado Avenue Northwest.

Catcher Hurls 10-5 Victory For Briarly

Briarly Military Academy won its sixth game in ten starts yesterday by defeating Calvin Coolidge High, 10-5, on the diamond of the public school team.

Winnie Lodge, regular Briarly catcher, discarded his backstop equipment, for a pitcher's role and turned in a brilliant performance. He held the host team to five hits and no earned runs. Three unpropitious misplays by his mates led to all the Coolidge runs.

Batting star for Briarly was Capt. Charley Hodgkin, who hit two homers, the first with none on in the fifth, and the second with two aboard in the ninth.

Bensinger Tops Friends Tennis Tourney Today

Sidwell-Friends School today launches its annual Interscholastic Tennis Tournament at the Wisconsin Avenue courts with 15 schools represented, the largest entry in history.

Topping the list of four seeded players is Bobby Bensinger, host school defending champion. Others will be Bob Hall, the young Kansan who plays out of George Washington, of Alexandria; Dave Smith, of Western, and Ben Fisher, of Roosevelt.

Twelve matches are on today's card, headed by Bensinger's initial outing against Coolidge's Schweitzer.

Meanwhile, the prep school invitational portion of the annual meet was opened yesterday with five counters. Though Friends' Saybold was the only player to register a shutout victory, his coming over Landon's Mealy, the Episcopal team of James Harrison and Bill Hodge were strong favorites to make the finals an all-Episcopal affair.

PREP RESULTS YESTERDAY

Greenbaum, (Landon) defeated Miller (St. Albans), 2—6, 6—4, 6—2; Harrison (Epis.) defeated Crosby (Geo. P.), 6—0, 6—1; Seybold (Friends) defeated Mealy (Landon), 6—0, 6—0; Garlock (Landon) defeated Shifleter (Friends), 6—2, 6—3; Hodge (Epis.) defeated Bernard (Friends), 6—3, 6—3.

INTERSCHOLASTIC PAIRINGS TODAY (All Matches at 10 A. M.)

Hall (G. W.) vs. Nelson (Tech); Gibbons (Central) vs. Miller (Coolidge); Lee (St. Albans) vs. Hackney (Western); Jones (Friends) vs. Bethesda entry; Smith (Western) vs. Bruce (Roosevelt); Quigzie (St. Albans) vs. Kients (Tech); Bensinger (Friends) vs. Schweitzer (Coolidge); Waits (Bethesda) vs. Wash.-Lee entry; Doyle (St. Albans) vs. Ansel (Wilson); Sheehan (Gonzaga) vs. Bethesda entry; Kerr (Western) vs. Fisher (Roosevelt); Garner (Coolidge) vs. Wash.-Lee entry; Hickerson (Devitt) vs. Furniss (Tech).

G. W. Faces Hoyas Today; Amendola Out

Odds favoring a Georgetown victory over George Washington in their baseball game at 2:30 today at Griffith Stadium rocketed to almost prohibitive heights last night when Eddie Amendola, scheduled starting pitcher for the Colonials, was sidelined with a sore arm.

With Amendola out, Coach E. K. Morris has not a single dependable pitcher available for the assignment of quelling the hard-hitting Hoyas. He has two alternatives. One is to gamble with "Red" Kloak, an untried sophomore, and the second is to return Frank McGinnis, his big right-handed ace, to the mound with but two days of rest.

Last night Morris indicated he would try the former experiment since McGinnis isn't considered matured enough to attempt two full games in three afternoons. Chances are he will start Kloak and allow him to continue as far as he can, and then if relief is needed, throw McGinnis into the breach and hope for the best.

Castiglia Leads Hitters

The task confronting Kloak in his first important start is a formidable one, for Georgetown, under Joe Judge, has an unusually good and a hard-hitting club, led by Catcher Jim Castiglia.

Kloak's pitching opponent likely will be Dick Dieckelman, a burly right-hander who has been Georgetown's most consistent bet. Dieckelman's latest accomplishment saw him shackle a hitherto unbeaten Rutgers nine while his mates pounded out a 19-to-3 victory.

A month ago George Washington wouldn't have been given a chance to beat the Hoyas under any circumstances. Then Georgetown was claiming its best team in history and George Washington was a mediocre outfit at best. Since, however, G. W.'s bubble of invincibility has been twice punctured—by Michigan and Temple—while G. W.'s star has been in ascendancy.

jr.'s, Goldun; John E. Hughes' Field Glass and Mrs. T. Beatty Brown's Comedienne.

Mrs. Gould, of New York City, retired the ornate $1,000 Gold Cup last year when her Black Sweep won the timber classic and the owners will be battling for the three legs needed to gain possession of the new trophy.

Field Glass finished third in the Maryland Hunt Cup last week and Mrs. Gould's Hold Forth was fourth. Hold Forth was pushing the leader near the end of the Middleburg Hunt Cup three weeks ago when he fell. Goldun won the Raymond Belmont memorial race at Middleburg and Comedienne has been outstanding in the spring point-to-point campaigning.

Mrs. Gould has entered Black Sweep in the Virginia national, where he will compete with such strong entries as F. Ambroee Clark's La Touche and Mrs. Jane Fowler Bassett's Crooked Wood.

A total of 54 nominations have been made for the races, the largest number in the history of the event.

'Chubby' Dean Is Suspended

Detroit, May 2 (AP).—Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, disclosed tonight that Lovill (Chubby) Dean, southpaw pitcher, had been suspended for "probably ten days." Mack said that Dean had broken training rules. The pitcher was sent back to Philadelphia yesterday, Mack said. Dean won 6 and lost 13 games for Philadelphia last year.

Three D. C. Track Squads on Road

Track teams of four local colleges will be in action today, all but the Maryland meet being scheduled out of town.

Georgetown goes to Philadelphia to meet Temple in a dual meet. Catholic University invades Norfolk Apprentice School, and American University will be at Huntington, Pa. for a tri-angular affair with Susquehanna and Juniata.

Here's One 'Expert' Who Can't Go Wrong

Louisville, Ky., May 2 (AP).—Sports Editor Ed Danforth, of the Atlanta Journal, will be able to go home from the Kentucky Derby and tell a friend "well, I picked the winner for you."

He sent postcards to 11 men on the Journal, solemnly advising each one to bet on a different horse.

Washington Gun Club Shoot Slated Today

The Washington Gun Club will stage its weekly shoot today at 2 o'clock on its Bennings grounds. First event, at 50 targets, will carry double prizes, the weekly club trophy and two legs on the Cadillac three-month trophy.

Second on the program will be a 25-target handicap, with a prize to be awarded the high gun. Yardages will range from 24 (at which the high gun will compete) to 16 yards, allotted the lowest scorer in the first event.

Don Goodman's Village Motors will engage the Quantico Marines tomorrow at 3 p. m. All players are requested to report to Sixteenth and U Streets Northwest before proceeding to the game.

Track Squad Of Gallaudet Beats Loyola

By the Associated Press

Gallaudet College trackmen captured nine out of the ten first places and swamped Loyola of Baltimore, 78 to 12, in a dual meet here yesterday. Ken Morrison won Loyola's only first place, beating out Cecil Alms, of Gallaudet, in the 2 miles.

Hurdles races, the pole vault and the javelin throw were omitted from the meet because Loyola had no entries for these events. Adolph Herzog scored 17 points for Gallaudet.

The summary:

100-YARD RUN—Won by Herzog (G.); second, Brown (G.); third, Croghan (L.). Time, 0:15.

Princeton Tops Penn, 5-4, to Open Golf Series

G. U. Tackles Both Teams Here Today

Hoyas Open Defense Of Their Eastern Collegiate Title At Manor Club

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Princeton University golfers opened the Eastern Intercollegiate series here yesterday at Manor with a 5-4 victory over the University of Pennsylvania sextet, as Dave Jamison, No. 5 man of the Tigers, won the decisive point on the third extra hole.

Georgetown's defending champions will take on both teams today at Manor, Coach Tony Sylvester's Hoyas meeting Penn at 8:30 and Princeton at 12:30 to complete the first of the Southern division's round robin series.

Princeton, runner-up to Georgetown in the Southern division last year, was a heavy favorite over the Quakers but won only by one of the closest margins in league history, eight of the nine matches going at least 17 holes. Georgetown holds a 6-3 practice match decision over Penn, won earlier in the season without its regular line-up.

G. N. May Miss Harris

Dick Harris, one of Georgetown's regulars, may not be available for today's match. Buddy Sharkey and Dick Meyer, the two local boys, will take two of the top spots, while Jack Donohue, Tom Holligan, John Smith and F. X. Van Herpe will also play.

George Bunnell captain of the Penn team, held a 1-up margin over Tiger Capt. Peter Page, but lost the next three holes and the match yesterday, 2 up. Bill Crosson defeated Jack Selby, and Penn won the best ball in the first foursome, 2 and 1.

Harry Wessell's 2-over-par 72 for Penn was good for a point in the second match, his score being the lowest of the day.

The score was tied at 3 all when the third foursome approached the eighteenth green with Bob Boynton having clinched his match over Jack Muend on the seventeenth. Dave Jamison three-putted to miss a chance to win the match without going into overtime, but he finally won on the twenty-first, although the Penn team won the best ball, which was even at 18, with Muend's birdie on the twentieth.

Princeton, 5: Penn, 4

Peter Page (Princeton) defeated George Bunnell (Penn), 2 up; William Crosson (Penn) defeated Jack Selby (Princeton), 2 up. Best ball—Penn, 1 and 2.

Arnold Zimmerman (Princeton) defeated Tom Markel (Penn), 3 and 2; Harry Wessel (Penn) defeated Bill Rockwood (Princeton), 2 and 1. Best ball, Princeton, 2 and 1.

Dave Jamison (Princeton) defeated Bud Muribut (Penn), 1 up, 21 holes; Bob Boynton (Princeton) defeated Jack Muend (Penn), 2 and 1. Best ball, Penn, 1 up, 20 holes.

Pitt Golfers Win, 5-4

Pittsburgh, May 2 (AP).—University of Pittsburgh golfers today defeated Cornell, 5 to 4, in their first Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association contest when Harry Simpson and Jack Glenn won their best ball battle on the nineteenth hole over the big red duo of Harry Bill and Cliff Stanton.

Bob Walkinshaw, Pitt's No. 6 man, shot a 74 on the par 72 course to take low medal honors. Slocum and Bill, Cornell, each scored 75's; Mitchell, Cornell, had a 77, and Kramer and Simpson, Pitt, 78's.

Tigers Swamp Athletics, 15-1; Rowe Winner

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 2—Detroit's hitters stayed hot for a fourth straight day and with Schoolboy Rowe turning in a pitching gem and Rudy York firing his fifth home run, the Tigers massacred the Philadelphia Athletics, 15 to 1, in the series opener today.

The Tigers collected 17 hits off three Athletic pitchers to bring their total for the last four days to 58 blows and Rowe, winning his first game of the year, pitched four-hit ball until the ninth when he permitted three singles for Philadelphia's only run.

Griffith Dedicates Plaque to Baseball 'Immortal'

that he deserves top billing. His stiffest competition should come from Our Boots and Dispose, whom we pick second and third, respectively.

Not in recent years have the turf writers been more pleased with themselves in picking the horses who would be named for the Derby. The withdrawal of Agricole early in the week was the only change in the line-up that had been predicted since last Monday. The entries brought no surprises, despite the fact that it is still regarded as a rather "open affair." Other years have found "just for the thrill" owners entering no-chance horses, but not 1941.

The big four of the Derby line-up is intact. Roy Martin's Our Boots, Charles S. Howard's Porter's Cap, Warren Wright's Whirlaway and Mrs. Vera Bragg's Blue Pair are ready to fight it out. So are Rocky Palladino's Little Beans, Robert Kleberg, jr.'s Dispose, Lou Tufano's Market Wise, Cleaveland Putnam's Swain, J. Fred Byers' Robert Morris, Hugh S. Nesbitt's Staretor and E. F. Woodward's Valdina Paul.

There is a definite swing to Porter's Cap that has made the son of The Porter the likely favorite for the Derby. The West Coast ace, by solid trials, plus the apparent confidence of Trainer Tom Smith, has gained prestige throughout the week. There was a rush to support Our Boots following his fine victory over this track and there was rebirth of Kentucky backing for Whirlaway after his recent closing rush. However, Porter's Cap is being held the probable choice at odds of about 8 to 5.

Our Boots Well Liked

Most line-makers contend that Our Boots and Porter's Cap will get about the same big money support but it will be the small bettors who will give the Howard ace the most play. The opinion is growing that Howard has a whole lot more this time than his much-discussed luck. Porter's Cap has done about everything asked of him.

If not the favorite, Our Boots certainly will be second choice. His race had a smashing stretch move on the end of it that his backers expect him to repeat. Whirlaway may be the third choice and from that point, just how the public will back the others, is guess work.

With the exception of Market Wise who was described by Trainer George Carroll as having a "bad foot," all of the Derby hopes were on the track this morning for everything from exercises to workouts. Porter's Cap was not asked for speed and went along under a strong pull. Trainer Smith watched him from the saddle of Tick Tock, the lead pony, and afterward led the colt around a ring on the grass in front of the barn.

To Keep Off Pace

Smith then turned the Howard star over to handlers and tossed his leg around the saddle post and talked in a way that belied his nackname of "Silent Tom." He seemed to be fairly boiling over with confidence and was one of the few Derby trainners to discuss tomorrow's plan of attack.

He said that Jockey Leon Haas would be instructed to keep off the pace in third or fourth position up the backstretch and then to make his move.

Trainer Ben Jones, who saddled Lawrin when Eddie Arcaro rode him to his Derby victory, was pleased to have the little Italian-American jockey on hand for Whirlaway. Jones, riding a pony, kept beside Arcaro as the colt jogged along before taking a light workout. The trainer probably was telling the boy about Whirlaway's running out habits. The colt stayed in on the rail under Arcaro's handling and the jockey said later that he felt confident that he could keep Whirlawy on a true course tomorrow.

Staretor Gains Favor

The only gelding in the field, Staretor, who had disappointed his handlers somewhat of late, regained prestige in a workout with Little Beans. The horse, whom money-rider Georgie Woolf pilots tomorrow, was under heavy restraint and showed the way to his Boston-owned rival. Two other outings were not of a serious nature.

Backers of derby horses hope the thoroughbreds show more speed in the race than their handlers did in getting them in the entries this morning. The lists opened at 7 o'clock but it was not until 41 minutes later that Bill Whitley, agent for the Calumet Farm, made Whirlaway the first to officially be in the line-up.

It was not until 10 o'clock that they were all eligible. Trainer Steve Judge, conditioner of Our Boots, was last to make an entry and he stalled around the lobby of the secretary's office for more than 15 minutes before filing out the blank for the son of Bull Dog. The veteran trainer read his mail, scanned the bulletin board while the scribes, eager to complete stories, fretted behind the counter. He finally went into the entry booth and came out smiling, saying: "We'll be ready for the best tomorrow."

None of the trainers was present for the draw for post positions. Stable agents, on the scene, seemed pleased all along the line with the numbers drawn. The Dispose stable was satisfied with the outside position. The son of Discovery may lose some ground but if he is to be a serious factor he probably will have to go to the top or near the top and the outside should keep him free of trouble.

Handlers of Swain are those who are pulling hardest for the track to be muddy. The Putman colt displayed his off track ability at Havre de Grace. Early this morning it appeared that Swain probably would get his mud. There was a shower shortly after sunrise and the track was a bit gooey on the rail.

The skies remained overcast until 10 o'clock and then the sun came out in full force. The Weather Bureau prediction for tomorrow is for partly cloudy skies.

But fast or mud, good or slow the 1941 Kentucky Derby is going to be a hoss race.

Cards Whip Phillies, 4-2

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 2.—The St. Louis Cardinals strengthened their grip on the National League lead today by winning, 4 to 2, over the Phillies for their seventh straight victory, unveiling a rookie pitcher of considerable promise.

Right-hander Howard Krist, who won 22 games for Houston and set a Texas League earned run record of 1.71 last year, gave the Phillies only five hits, two of them—and both the losers' runs—coming in the ninth inning. He walked only one man, hit one batter and struck out four.

Ferrell drove in the Nats' first run back in the second inning after two were out. Myer walked and West beat out an infield hit. At this point Ferrell singled to left to set Washington up in a 1-0 lead. In the fourth, after Buddy Lewis led off with a double against the centerfield wall, Travis was robbed of a hit by Radcliff's running catch, but Auker filled the bases on passes to Myer and West, and Lewis scored from third on Ferrell's infield out.

Hudson held the Brownies scoreless in the first five innings with a three-hit performance. Buddy Myer, seemingly penetent for his fumble that gave the Browns the tying runs in the sixth, singled in the eighth to move the Nats out in front again.

Lewis singled to center with one out in the eighth and galloped to third on Cecil Travis' only hit of the day—a single to center. With only one out, Myer fetched Lewis home with a single to left and the Nats had a 3-2 lead.

That appeared to be a sufficient margin for Hudson until the ninth, when he found himself in trouble after Pinch Hitter Roy Cullenbine batted for Auker and singled to center. In this crisis, Hudson fanned Clift and teamed with Jim Vernon to make a sensational put-out on Radcliff's ground ball for the second out. Along came Laabs with a single to right, however, and it was a tie ball game.

Hudson pitched hitless ball in the tenth and eleventh to keep the Nats in it, and after getting his four-run lead in the twelfth, he had to bear down to keep it. Judnich hit a home run over the right-field roof with one out and none on in the twelfth, and Lewis obliged Hudson by spearing Lucadello's liner for the second out. McQuinn delayed the denouement with a double against the center-field wall, but Hudson disposed of Strange on a meek fly to Cramer and broke his three-game losing streak.

Manor Women Beat Kenwood Team, 8 and 6

Manor's top combination of Mrs. Walter R. Stokes and Mrs. L. G. Pray posted an 8 and 6 margin of victory over Kenwood's Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg to feature the women's first team matches yesterday at Manor. Manor swept the three points in the top bracket, Mrs. Stokes posting a 78 and with Mrs. Pray returned a best ball par 35 on the front nine. They won the back nine, 5 and 4.

Manor went on to beat Kenwood, 7-2, losing their only points to the loser's surprisingly strong second bracket.

The Chevy Chase line-up, defending champions, took the lead by a half point over Manor as they blanked Army and Navy, 9-0. Mrs. David Clark played the No. 1 combination of District Champion Elizabeth Houghton and Mrs. Landra Platt alone under the new no-substitution rule and lost only 1 up on each side. Mrs. Y. E. Booker took individual honors in the second bracket with an 86.

Wyatt Hurls As Dodgers Beat Cubs, 7-3

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, May 2.—The Brooklyn Dodgers took up their winning ways today as though they never had been interrupted and crushed the Chicago Cubs, 7 to 3, behind the four-hit hurling of skillful Whitlow Wyatt.

It was the fourth straight win after one defeat for the lean right-hander, who was invincible after a faltering start.

He gave two walks a-piece of singles by Bill Nicholson and Augie Galan for two runs in the first and was touched for the Cubs' other run without a hit in the second when Rookie Clyde McCullough walked, moved around on a sacrifice and an infield out and stole home.

Big Bill Lee started strong, yielding two hits in the first frame and nothing in the next three innings. But the Dodgers battered him for three runs in the fifth, another in the seventh and finally knocked him out in the eighth with three runs on Joe Medwick's single, Dolph Camilli's seventh homer of the season, a single by Pete Coscarart and a double by Wyatt himself.

Mail Revenues Here Set New April Record

Washington postoffice receipts in April increased 12.5 per cent over the like month last year, it was learned yesterday.

The $794,564 total shattered all previous records for April and compared with $705,744 in April, 1940. Each month so far this year has recorded a sharp increase over last year, as the following table shows:

January	$705,804	$672,270
February	727,323	626,825
March	759,105	698,348
April	794,564	705,744

Total postal revenues here in the first four months were $2,986,797, as compared with $2,703,189 in the like period of 1940.

Perpetual Again Leads

Comparison of balance sheets of the Nation's building and loan associations compiled by the United States Savings and Loan League again show Perpetual Building Association of Washington as the largest in the country by the substantial margin of $15,645,000. The local home loaning institutions, which gained $2,229,675 in assets during 1940, reported total resources at the close of the year of $52,728,018 with the Railroad Federal Savings and Loan Association of New York second with assets of $37,082,292.

According to the report 11 Washington building and loan groups are among the 136 groups in the United States showing a balance sheet in excess of $5,000,000.

In order of their listing is American Building resources $13,374,868 and standing twenty-first; National Permanent, $10,938,462, in thirty-second place; Washington Permanent, $10,361,806, in thirty-sixth place; First Federal, $9,701,633, in forty-second place; Hyattsville Building, $9,253,100, forty-ninth; Equitable Cooperative, $8,376,426, in sixty-second position; Oriental Building, $6,412,468, ninety-fourth; Metropolis, $6,255,567, 100th place; Columbia Federal, $6,157,898, in 104th spot, and Northern Liberty, $5,825,291, 113th

Record Telephone Gain

A gain of about 112,700 telephones in service during April was reported today by principal telephone subsidiaries of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the largest April gain in history.

This compared with an increase of 123,500 phones in the preceding month and 84,100 in April, 1940. At the end of April telephones in A. T. & T.'s Bell system totaled 17,067,200.

Lakes' Ports Report Sharp Gain in Loadings

Cleveland, May 2 (AP).—Iron ore loadings in upper Great Lakes ports during April were nearly double the previous record for the month, reports of the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association showed today.

This year's total was 6,054,793 tons compared to the previous high of 3,770,550 tons. April 1940 loadings were 454,669 tons.

N. Y. Telephone Gains 10,793 Units in April

New York, May 2 (AP).—The New York Telephone Co. today reported an increase of 10,793 units for April this year, compared with 11,445 units for April, 1940. In March, there was a gain of 11,423 units over last year.

Unit increases for the first four months this year were 45,925 against 40,784 for the comparable period last year.

Cotton Futures

New York, May 2 (AP).—Faltering after a rise of 8 to 10 points to new seasonal peaks, cotton futures today closed only a shade above previous finals. Trade opinion was that a recent sharp advance had for the present discounted the bullish implications of Washington moves to boost parity loan values. The Senate Agriculture Committee voted to make the loan level 85 per cent of parity.

Wall Street trade in cotton fabrics showed a brisk revival, brokers estimating the day's turnover in print cloths and related lines as between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 yards. A number of basic cloths were advanced ½ of a cent a yard for nearby shipment. It was the most active day in almost six weeks, according to the trade.

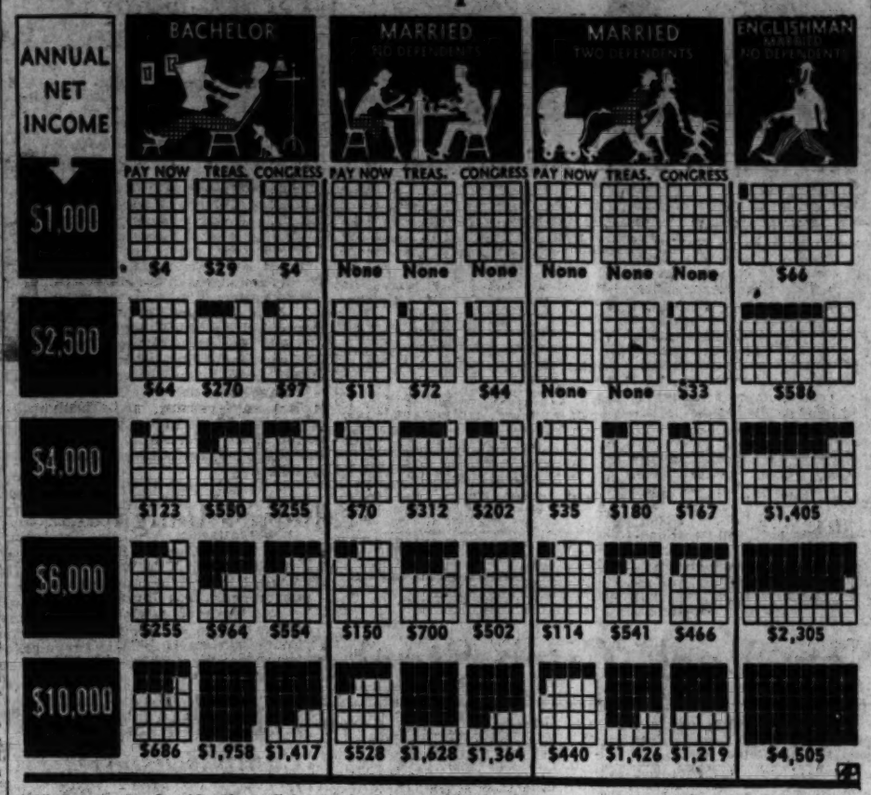
What Income Tax Proposals Mean to You



Under each classification, Column 1 shows what you pay now; Column 2, what you would pay under the Treasury's proposal, and Column 3, what you would pay under a proposal of the staff of the joint congressional committee on taxation. The Englishman's income tax is not strictly comparable with the American's. The Englishman pays fewer other taxes, though his rates generally are higher. He pays a purchase tax of about 24 per cent of the retail price on luxury items and about 12 per cent of the retail price on standard commodities. Each square represents about $100

Wool Tops Lead General Upturn In Commodities

By the Associated Press

Wool tops added 1½ to 2 cents a pound to recent gains and generally higher prices ruled yesterday in commodity futures, especially in the international group.

Trading was active in wool tops, even at the day's highest levels, and demand was said to be based partly on low stocks in the United States and prospective additional heavy demands incident to defense requirements. Closing prices on the wool top exchange were 1.6 to a full 2 cents a pound higher.

Others moving up at New York included lead, some deliveries of straits tin, cottonseed oil, cotton, cocoa, hides and copper.

Rubber sounded a discordant note, ending unchanged to .42 of a cent a pound lower.

The Associated Press index of 35 important wholesale commodities reached a new high since 1937 at 82.01 compared with Thursday's 81.88.

Proposed Radio Station Faces Receivership Suit

Dyke Cullum, Silver Spring, Md., filed suit in the District Court yesterday for a receivership of the Capital Broadcasting Company, which sponsors the proposed radio station, WWDC.

Cullum said that he resigned as Washington representative of the National Automobile Dealers Association and worked on the proposed station from March 19, 1940, to February 5, 1941. He said that he also invested $2,000 and that he owns 40 per cent of the company's stock.

Named defendants besides the company were Stanley Horner, president and 40 per cent stock holder, and Edwin M. Spence, secretary-treasurer and 20 per cent stockholder.

Va. Furniture Workers Get 12½% Pay Boost

Martinsville, Va., May 2 (AP).—Wage increases averaging approximately 12½ per cent were announced today for factory employes at three Bassett plants and one Stanleytown plant.

J. D. Bassett, sr., chairman of the board, and William Bassett, president, of the Bassett Furniture Industries, said that effective May 1 the minimum wage would be 35 cents an hour and that employes earning more than 35 cents would be raised accordingly.

Two other industries controlled by the Bassett interests, the Bassett Mirror Co. and the Valley Veneer Co., were given a similar rate, affecting in all an estimated 2,500 employes.

Security Offerings Heavier in Week

New York, May 2 (AP).—The new security market revived a bit this week after a dull fortnight. Public offerings of new securities during the week ended yesterday totaled $47,178,640, compard with $17,338,800 the previous week, Standard & Poor's Corporation reported today.

Public utilities and railroads took about $12,000,000 of new capital, the largest amount in some time. The rest of the total was accounted for by municipal offerings.

R.-K.-O. May Redeem 7% Preferred Stock

New York, May 2 (AP).—Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation is negotiating to obtain $8,500,000 of new funds to be used for various purposes, including possible exercise of options held to purchase a substantial block of the 7 per cent preferred stock of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation now held privately.

As planned the new money would be derived from bank loans and mortgags on theater properties.

Earnings Reports

Revere Copper & Brass, Inc., and subsidiaries today reported net profit of $1,053,747.38, after quarterly dividend requirements on preferred and Class A stocks, for the quarter ended March 31, or $1.20 a common share. This compared with $720,196, or .62 a share, for the comparable three months ended March 31, 1940.

American Cyanamid Co. and subsidiaries reported net earnings of $1,590,515, after preferred stock dividends, for the three months ended March 31, or .60 a common share. In the like period of 1940, net profits were $1,408,643, or .53 a share. The main plant of the company, which manufactures chemicals, is at Niagara Falls.

North American Co., utility holding company, reported for the March quarter net profit of $5,948,721, equal to 58 cents a common share, compared with $5,287,172, or 51 cents a share, in the first quarter last year.

Standard Oil Co. of Ohio reported first quarter net earnings of $1,260,758. The company issued no statement of first quarter earnings in 1940.

Paramount Pictures, Inc., estimated earnings for the quarter ended April 5 at $2,475,000, including $850,000 from partly owned but nonconsolidated subsidiaries. This would equal 89 cents a common share and compare with $1,606,000, or 53 cents a common share, in the like period last year.

Week's Auto Output Soars to 130,610

Detroit, May 2 (AP).—Ward's Reports, Inc., today estimated this week's output of automobiles and trucks at 130,610, compared with 108,165 last week and 99,305 at this time last year.

It attributed the upsurge to the resumption of full operations by the Ford plants, which have been placed on a six-day basis to make up time lost in the April strike.

Ward's said that the "excessive demand for new cars in the field would hold factory manufacturing to as high levels as are practical in the period ahead."

Corning Crude Oil Price Is Advanced

Pittsburgh, May 2 (AP).—The Joseph Seep Purchasing Agency of the South Penn Oil Co. today announced a 7-cent increase in the price of corning grade crude oil, raising the quotation to $1.24 a barrel.

The new price, effective today, is in line with recent increases in Western grade crude oil prices, the agency said. Corning grade is produced in the southeastern Ohio field.

Four Newsprint Firms Are Fined In Antitrust Case

San Francisca, May 2 (AP).—Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure today levied fines totaling $30,000 on four firms and two individuals to climax the Government investigation of antitrust violations in the newsprint industry of the West Coast.

The defendents, charged with violations from October, 1935, to July, 1939, pleaded nolo contendere—a plea which neither admitted nor denied guilt.

Fined $10,000 each were the Crown Zellerback Corporation, San Francisco, and the Powell River Sales Company, Ltd., with mills at Powell River, S. C.

Fines of $2,500 each were assessed the Hawley Pulp Company, Portland and Oregon City, Oreg., and the Inland Empire Paper Company, with mills at Milwood, Wash.

William Barclay, Vancouver, B. C., connected with the Power River Sales Co., and Gerald E. Young, San Francisco, of the Crown Zellerbach firm, drew $2,500 fines each.

Middle West Corp. To Spend $15,000,000

New York, May 2 (AP).—The Middle West Corporation expects to spend $15,000,000 on construction in 1941 to meet increased demand for service in the territory it serves, Purcell L. Smith, president, said in the annual report to stockholders. Last year $11,400,000 was spent for such purposes.

The company is a holding concern with operating properties in the North Central, Middle West and Southwestern States.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—The wheat market almost completely ignored important crop news today and took its cue from a firmer stock market.

Reports of four private crop experts estimating the 1941 winter wheat crop at 643,000,000 bushels, or 27,000,000 bushels greater than the April 1 Government forecast was shrugged off by the market which apparently had discounted these reports long in advance.

Wheat started ⅜ to ¾ cent higher despite the fact that long expected bearish crop estimates were due 30 minutes later. The gains were almost erased later by profit taking, but short covering checked the decline and prices never reached yesterday's closing levels.

At the close, wheat was ⅛ to ½ cent above yesterday's finish; May, 91⅝@91½; July, 90@90⅛; corn, ⅛ to ⅛ down; May, 68⅝; July, 68⅞; oats, unchanged to ⅛ higher; soybeans, ½ lower to ¾ higher; rye, ⅛ to ⅛ off, and lard, 7 to 10 cents advanced.

The Department of Agriculture announced also, as of April 15, that the parity price on wheat had been raised to $1.14 a bushel, up 1 cent from the previous parity price. This would raise the loan value of a bushel of wheat under terms of the House-passed Pulmer bill to 83⅓ cents, figuring 73 per cent of parity.

Oats trading was quiet and light. Rye was firm with upturns led by the July delivery in early rounds, but later lost all its gains and wound up net loser for the day.

D. C. Gain Is 32 Pct.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday that Washington department sales in the week ended April 26 were 32 per cent higher than in the same week last year. For the four weeks ended April 26, local store sales were 42 per cent heavier than the like 1940 period.

Retail Sales In Week Soar To New Highs

By the Associated Press

New York, May 2.—Sales at retail stores, riding the broadening wave of rising consumer spending, soared this week to the highest levels in history for this time of year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The credit agency said that while all reports compiled thus far are preliminary, subject to later correction, flash reports indicated sales in many categories of goods were topping 1929 spring figures, with the general average paralleling the pace of 1919 spending.

"A persistent demand for seasonal merchandise, along with exceptional interest in home furnishings and durable items, ran up another record week for retailers," the agency said. Store reports frequently described activity as 'good and getting better.'

Expansion Is General

"Biggest gains were being registered in lower and medium-priced ranges, but the expansion was said to be general throughout all price lines and all types of merchandise."

Sales averaged 15 to 20 per cent above last year for the country as a whole, the agency estimated, adding:

"Purchasing of home furnishings for autumn delivery was already under way in some volume. Blanket and comfortable sales were reported substantially ahead of all recent years. Initial response to May white goods promotions was termed unusually brisk.

"Studio couches, living and bed room ensembles and modern furniture in lighter woods were selling actively for immediate and later delivery. . . .

"In women's ready-to-wear, outstanding items this week were in summer lines. . . . Men's clothing stores noted a marked improvement in furnishings."

Fall buying was reported rising in wholesale markets.

"Retailers continued to call for reorders on goods for current selling, at the same time rapidly enlarging commitments for the next season," the agency said.

"According to wholesalers, many retail buyers who started out with what they considered full spring requirements were already back in the market to replenish stocks. Delivery continued a major problem, became slower rather than better in a number of lines.

"The fall season was said to be taking hold quickly, with orders being placed a month to two months in advance of the usual time. . . . Midseason wholesale furniture markets reported initial registrations the largest on record. Despite heavy buying in advance of the formal openings, bookings were substantial. A reduction in the number of lines offered, a shortening of terms and an increase in prices of 5 to 10 per cent over January markets were outstanding developments."

Appeals Court Affirms Conviction Of General Motors

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—The United States Appellate Court today affirmed the conviction of the General Motors Corporation and three subsidiaries for violation of Federal antitrust laws in connection with financing automobile sales.

The ruling sustained fines of $5,000 each against General Motors Corporation, General Motors Sales Co., General Motors Acceptance Corporation and the General Motors Acceptance Corporation of Indiana.

A United States District Court jury at South Bend, Ind., returned the convictions November 18, 1939, on indictments charging conspiracy to "monopolize and control" financing of car sales through General Motors dealers.

The jury acquitted William S. Knudsen, then G. M. C. president; Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the board, and 17 other officers of the four firms.

Chicago-Great Western Grosses $18,748,595

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—Trustees of the Chicago & Great Western Railroad filed a report in U. S. District Court listing gross income of $18,748,595 for 1940, the last year the road was in receivership.

The report said that for the five-year period of receivership the railroad's net deficit was $1,315,541. Since February 19 the road has been operating under a new reorganization plan which provided a new capitalization of $63,091,827—some $40,000,000 less than that of the old company. The gross income for 1935 was $15,816,843.

The report listed assets of the line on last February 19 at $148,927,384, compared with $145,879,427 on December 1, 1935, when the road went into receivership.

Bill Offered to License Sightseeing Buses

A bill to authorize a $3-a-day license fee to be charged operators of chartered sightseeing buses who bring tourists to the city for not more than ten days a year was introduced yesterday by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee.

Stocks Stage Mild Recovery, Then Falter; Steels and Rails Buoyant; Bonds Mixed

New York, May 2.—Stocks hung out the rallying sign in today's market, attracting bidders for steels, rails, oils and assorted specialties. Activity and prices were best in the first hour, however. Selling then began to dribble in and early gains of fractions to more than a point were reduced or canceled in many instances at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues retained a net advance of .1 of a point at 39.3. Transfers of 400,390 shares compared with 310,040 yesterday.

As in previous mild recoveries, brokers inclined to attribute today's mild come-back mainly to the belief of speculative forces the list was "oversold."

Handicapping sentiment was the still despressing tone of foreign dispatches, particularly threats of a new holy war gainst the British in the Near East.

At the same time, some cheer was derived from reports of a sharp expansion in retail spending throughout the country and expectations steel mill operations soon would return to high levels as settlement of the coal mining controversy assures fuel supplies and enables the reopening of numerous blast furnaces.

Revocation of the ceiling on soft coal prices was of much market interest, although Administrator Henderson warned that "unreasonable" boosts in rates here would bring further governmental restrictions.

Rails were aided by thoughts of heavy ocean traffic being diverted to carriers as ships are taken over for defense purposes. Stiffening crude and gasoline quotations brought support for the oils.

Stocks finishing on the upside included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Southern Pacific, Phillips Petroleum, Standard Oil of Ind., Standard Oil of N. J., Socony-Vacuum, Union Carbide, Sperry, American Car & Foundry preferred, Eastman Kodak, American Telephone, Allied Chemical and Wesinghouse.

General Motors and Chrysler shifted ⅛ either way. This week's automotive output was up substantially. Lower were Anaconda, American Can, Radio Corp. and Air Reduction.

Recently buoyant commodities turned irregular. Wheat at Chicago was up ¼ to ½ cent a bushel and corn down ⅛ to ½. Cotton improved 5 to 25 cents a bale.

On the upside in the curb were Creole Petrolum, Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, N. J. Zinc, Pantepec and Todd Shipyards. The turnover here was around 78,000 shares against 66,000 Thursday.

Rising prices ruled in most domestic bonds today under leadership of the rail group. Trading expanded to $8,334,900, par value, from $5,952,700 yesterday when the entire list, including the carriers, had difficulty in finding direction. The Associated Press average of 20 rails moved up .5 of a point and smaller advances were posted by industrials and utilities. The foreign group was hit for a loss of .4 of a point largely as a result of a drop of 3½ points in Denmark 4½s on sale of two bonds.

Standing out in the advancing column were, among others, Illinois Central 4½s at 46⅝, Delaware & Hudson Refunding 4s at 54½, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 3⅛s at 98, Southern Railway 4s at 84¼, New York Central 5s at 66, Southern Pacific 4½s of '69 at 53⅝ (on sales of $255,000) and Western Maryland 4s at 93.

Government bonds kept in the background. The trend was lower by around ¼ point on the Stock Exchange but showed a more robust trend over the counter with the aid of increased demand for some of the longer term treasuries.

Man Power Ample In Steel Industry, Institute Reports

New York, May 2 (AP).—Steel has maintained its current record output without encountering a labor shortage, the American Iron and Steel Institute announced today.

Although the supply of some products is becoming increasingly tight, trained man power has been found to continue the flow of defense orders as well as some other products.

A survey showed that by increasing the average number of hours worked each week labor shortages had been prevented, although 150,000 more workers were employed now than in the summer of 1939.

Numerous replacements were necessary because of men called for military training and outside industries drawing on the labor supply.

Lockheed Aircraft Sets Production Record

Burbank, Calif., May 2 (AP).—Lockheed Aircraft Corporation reported today it had set a new employment record during April and had exceeded by $3,000,000 its best previous month in the value of airplanes delivered.

In the past month the company built and delivered $12,150,000 worth of planes. The previous record of $9,100,000 was established in March. Production totaled $44,000,000 in 1940. The total for the first four months of 1941 was $32,998,000.

The company hired 3,540 men during April and now has 23,488 at Lockheed and 5,442 at the plant of its affiliate, the Vega Airplane Co.

Youngstown District Steps Up Steel Rate

Youngstown, Ohio, May 2 (AP).—With coal once more rolling into the Mahoning Valley, Youngstown district steel plants are regaining their stride, and steel output is cheduled to jump six points, to 95 per cent, next week. Two blast furnaces, banked to conserve fuel, went back into blast last night, and Republic Steel Corporation resumed making Bessemer steel today.

Forecast

For the District of Columbia—Partly cloudy and rather cool Saturday; Sunday fair and slightly warmer; moderate to fresh northeast winds Saturday.

For Maryland—Mostly cloudy and rather cool, occasional rain on the coast Saturday; Sunday fair with rising temperature in the interior.

Weather Conditions

A large mass of quite cool air is pushing southward over the North Atlantic States and is bringing rather cool weather to the Middle Atlantic States. It is accompanied by rather high barometer readings, reaching a maximum of 30.22 inches (30.19 inches) over the northern New York. Air pressure is relatively low over the South Atlantic States, with a minimum of 29.97 inches (29.74 inches) in eastern North Carolina. No disturbance which developed in the middle Atlantic coast last night is now centered about 450 miles east-southeast of Nantucket, Mass., accompanied by strong shifting winds.

Contract Bridge

Robert McPherran and Mrs. Albert M. Sobel added considerably to their match points in the national mixed-pair championship when they succeeded in taking eight tricks at no-trump on the East-West cards of today's hand. Nice play by McPherran combined with a not-unfavorable opening lead and faulty defense to secure the contract. Ironically enough, the defenders could have captured nine tricks themselves at no trump if they had been playing the bid instead of East-West.

North opened the ten of hearts, which rode to West's jack. McPherran then played the king of diamonds and a low diamond to the dummy's queen, South holding off both times. Had South won the first heart and switched to a spade or even taken the first or second diamond, the result would have been quite different.

The jack of clubs was led from dummy and finessed. A low club to the ten followed, and the ace and king were cashed. Next a heart; and when declarer played low from dummy, allowing North's nine to hold the trick, South felt forced to overtake his king to prevent his partner leading spades into the West hand. But it was too late to prevent an end play; South cashed the ace of hearts and diamonds and played the ten of spades; the jack covered, but North had to let declarer take the king. McPherran made two no trump, winning a heart, two diamonds, four clubs and a spade.

"SENTINELS"

Like Sentinels of Freedom the Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial stand in clear view from Aurora Hills on Arlington Ridge.

Only Aurora Hills offers—within 10 minutes of the White House—such combinations of convenience, improvements, views and large, heavily wooded homesites so close to the heart of the Capital.

Drive across Memorial Bridge and turn left immediately on Arlington Ridge road to Aurora Hills Office, corner 23d St. South.

NEARBY ALEXANDRIA

Large wooded lots at a price you can well afford. You may use your own plans and builder, provided the house is Colonial in character and in keeping with the high standards of architecture established in this carefully restricted subdivision.

All lots have 100 feet or more frontage—a half acre of tall oaks—and excellent for building the rambling type of home now so popular.

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"You're so handy bringing your friends home for dinner, I just thought I'd let you take us girls out to lunch!"

Listen! with Glynn

Today being the day the Kentucky Derby is run—a horse race which, they tell me, a great number of people are interested in—it's only fair to inform you that it can only be heard in Washington over WJSV, that being the Columbia network's station here and the Columbia network being the only one to broadcast it.

The time is from 5:30 to 6 p. m., E. S. T., and the description and calling of the race will be respectively handled by Ted Husing and Clem McCarthy.

And, while in this fine sporting mood, it should be announced too that Maxie Rosenbloom, the former pugilist who finds it very easy to be funny—it's practically unconscious—is to be a guest on "Duffy's Tavern" which you'll hear over the same station at 7:30 p. m. For the sake of contrast, it's to be supposed, that dulcet-voiced singer known merely as Hildegarde is also to be a guest on the show.

With the question of to convoy or not to convoy very much in the public mind, two C. B. S. programs are to be devoted to it tonight, "Report to the Nation," which originates at 5 p. m. every Saturday at WJSV is to dramatize the problems of getting supplies across the Atlantic to embattled Britain.

At 6 p. m., on "People's Platform," four average people are to give their views about it. They'll be a boss carpenter, a clerk a printing pressman and a cabinet-maker.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — BY MILTON CANIFF

I HARDLY EXPECTED SUCH A DISPLAY OF EMOTION OVER THIS MAN KIEL GOING DOWN WITH THE RAIDER AND MOST OF HER CREW!
...DON'T BE SURPRISED AT ANYTHING I DO!.... WELL, POP, I DON'T SUPPOSE YOU'D RECONSIDER WHAT YOU SAID ABOUT CASHING IN MY CHIPS!
YOU KNOW TOO MUCH ABOUT KIEL'S BUSINESS IN THE ORIENT! IT IS THE HIGH COMMAND'S POLICY TO KEEP OUR ACTIVITIES HERE QUIET FOR THE MOMENT!
AFRAID I'LL SELL OUT, HUH?
ON THE OTHER HAND —YOU MIGHT BE VERY VALUABLE TO OUR SECRET POLICE—UNDER PROPER SUPERVISION, OF COURSE!... SUPPOSE YOU DRESS WHILE I CONSIDER THE MATTER FURTHER!
KIEL'S DEAD...TERRY'S DEAD! LOOK AT YOURSELF, FACE...YOU'RE STILL IN ONE PIECE BY A NARROW MARGIN! YOU GET BURMA INTO TROUBLE, AND YOU GET HER OUT! MIGHT AS WELL PUT ON A NEW COAT OF PAINT AND START ANOTHER CAMPAIGN TO KEEP OUT OF THE BREADLINE!
MILTON CANIFF

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

THAT, MR. LEACH, ADDS ARSON TO YOUR OLD CHARGE OF ASSAULT WITH THE INTENT TO KILL! YOU'LL SOON BE OUT OF CIRCULATION FOR A WHILE!
FINDING CANDLE GREASE UNDER YOUR FINGERNAILS PROVES IT WAS YOU WHO BURNED THE BLACKSTON HOUSE--AFTER CAREFULLY PLANTING EVIDENCE AGAINST MR. WORTH!
WELL, MRS. WORTH--I'M GLAD WE COULD CLEAR YOUR SON'S NAME! NOW YOU HAVE NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT!
THANK YOU, MR. GRIFFIN!
NOTHING NOW TO WORRY ABOUT--EXCEPT WHERE WE'RE GOING TO LIVE!
-DALE

DONALD DUCK — CUT RATE! — BY WALT DISNEY

YEH, WELL I DON'T PAY A DOLLAR AN HOUR! YUH WORK FOR FIFTY CENTS OR YUH DON'T GET THE JOB!
PRICES ARE HIGH BUT NOT AT SAM THE TAILOR
DOGGONE CHISELER! CUT MY PRICE IN HALF!
PRICES ARE HIGH BUT NOT AT SAM THE TAILOR
PRICES ARE HIGH BUT NOT AT SAM THE TAILOR
PRICES ARE HIGH BUT NOT AT SAM THE TAILOR

MICKEY FINN — INTERRUPTION! — BY LANK LEO.

I DIDN'T COME HERE TO ARGUE, HART—YOU OWE ME 25 GRAND, AND I WANT IT!
I HAVEN'T HAD TIME TO RAISE IT, TEX! I ONLY GOT YOUR LETTER LAST WEEK!
YOU'VE HAD TIME, HART! YOU LOST THAT DOUGH IN MY JOINT LAST WINTER —AND YOU'VE STALLED ME LONG ENOUGH!
BUT, TEX, BUSINESS HAS BEEN BAD AND—
BUZZ--2
WHO'S THAT AT THE DOOR?
I DON'T KNOW!

DIXIE DUGAN — HOUSE GUEST — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

AND THIS IS YOUR DAUGHTER? MY—HOW TIME DOES FLY!
DIXIE—THIS IS MR. GEORGE SHIPLEY, AN OLD, OLD FRIEND OF MINE
HOW DO YOU DO, MR. SHIPLEY—
A LONG, LONG TIME AGO A CERTAIN FELLOW NAMED TIM DUGAN BEAT MY TIME AND MARRIED THE SWEETEST WOMAN IN THE WORLD—YOUR MOTHER
WHY, MA!
OH, GEORGE—I MEAN, MR. SHIPLEY—PLEASE!
TELL ME ABOUT YOURSELF—YOU'RE MARRIED OF COURSE—
NO! I REMAINED A BACHELOR!
I'VE BEEN TRAVELING AROUND THE COUNTRY FOR MY CONCERN—JUST GOT IN TOWN—I'LL BE HERE A FEW DAYS—
THEN YOU MUST STAY WITH US, MR. SHIPLEY!
WELL—THANKS I'D LOVE TO!
I'M SURE TIMOTHY WILL BE GLAD TO SEE YOU AGAIN—

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — GREETINGS — BY FRANK MARTINEK

CHEER UP, RED—AT LEAST WE FOUND OUT WHERE THE SCORPION WAS HEADING. IT PROBABLY TIES IN WITH THAT NEW MENACE DOWN IN THE CARIBBEAN
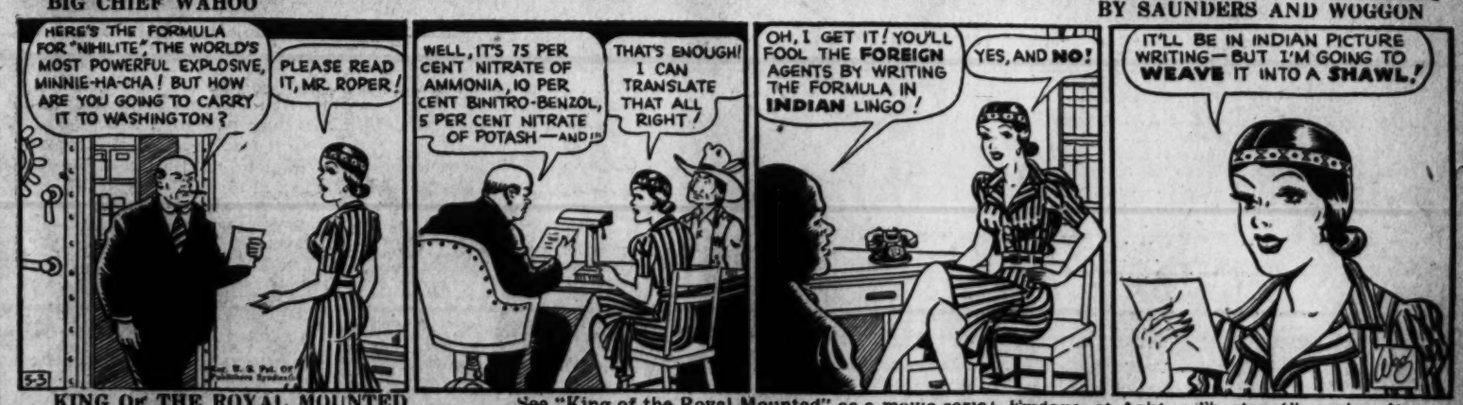
COMMANDER MACK, THERE'S A THREE-STRIPER HAILING YOU FROM THE DOCK
AHOY SKIPPER
BY THE ETERNAL! IT'S MY OLD SHIPMATES, WINSLOW AND PENNINGTON! HAPPY TO HAVE YOU ABOARD!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON



HERE'S THE FORMULA FOR "NIHILITE", THE WORLD'S MOST POWERFUL EXPLOSIVE, MINNIE-HA-CHA! BUT HOW ARE YOU GOING TO CARRY IT TO WASHINGTON?
PLEASE READ IT, MR. ROPER!
WELL, IT'S 75 PER CENT NITRATE OF AMMONIA, 10 PER CENT BINITRO-BENZOL, 5 PER CENT NITRATE OF POTASH—AND—
THAT'S ENOUGH! I CAN TRANSLATE THAT ALL RIGHT!
OH, I GET IT! YOU'LL FOOL THE FOREIGN AGENTS BY WRITING THE FORMULA IN INDIAN LINGO!
YES, AND NO!
IT'LL BE IN INDIAN PICTURE WRITING—BUT I'M GOING TO WEAVE IT INTO A SHAWL!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

See "King of the Royal Mounted" as a movie serial, Fridays, at Ashton Theater, Clarendon, Va.

SHEILA! I HEARD A SHOT!
SO DID I! COME ON, BETTY!
KING, KID AND YOUR FATHER ARE ALL RIGHT, THEY'RE PULLING SOMEONE OUT OF THE WATER!
KEEP BACK, GIRLS, THIS MAN'S BEEN MURDERED!
HE'S CLUTCHING THIS MASK! HE MUST BE THE POLKA DOT PIRATE!
NO, JIM! BUT THIS IS THE PRICE HE PAID FOR A LOOK AT THE POLKA DOT'S FACE!
